But a Government junior scholarship held in Bengal is not transferable to other provinces of India."

P. NOLAN,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

NOTIFICATION.

The 2nd April 1887.—In continuation of the notification dated the 16th October 1886, published at page 1121, Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of the 20th idem, promulgating the rules permitting the payment of revenue by means of postal money-orders in certain selected districts in Bengal, it is hereby notified that the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to extend their operation to all the districts in the Lower Provinces with effect from the 1st May next.

Rules relating to Revenue Money Orders.

These rules are divided into five parts—

PART I.—Form of Revenue Money Order.
PART II.—Issue of Revenue Money Orders.
PART III.—Payment of Revenue Money Orders.
Section A.—Payment from Disbursing Offices at the head-quarters of districts.
Section B.—Procedure to be followed in the Collectorate.
PART IV.—Treatment of Revenue Money Orders not accepted by the Collector.
PART V.—Disposal of Acknowledgments.

PART I.

THE FORM OF REVENUE MONEY ORDERS.

1. The Revenue Money Order form is divided into four parts, viz. :—
(a) the Money Order,
(b) lower portion of Money Order or the Receipt,
(c) the Coupon or Chalan,
(d) the Acknowledgment.

2. Parts (a) and (b) require no description, as they are exactly like the corresponding portions of the ordinary inland Money Order form. Parts (c) and (d) are considerably larger than the Coupon and Acknowledgment of an ordinary Money Order. Part (c) contains on one side all the particulars required by the Treasury and on the reverse instructions for remitters of Revenue Money Orders. Part (d) is on one side a duplicate of the Chalan and is returned to the remitter as his receipt; on the reverse of this part are the remitter's name and address

3. This form is to be used for Revenue Money Orders only and for no other purpose.

4. The forms of Revenue Money Order should be freely distributed among the revenue-paying classes, and no restrictions whatever should be placed in the way of zemindars obtaining these forms.

5. Every Postmaster, Sub-Postmaster and Village Postmaster will be personally responsible that a sufficient supply of Revenue Money Orders is always available in his office. In cases of emergency, supplies may be obtained by telegraph direct from the Stock Depôt of the Circle. Divisional Superintendents and Inspectors when visiting offices will see that a sufficient supply of Revenue Money Order forms is available, and mention in their diaries and inspection reports that they have done so.

PART II.

ISSUE OF REVENUE MONEY ORDERS.

6. Revenue Money Orders are issued from every Head, Sub and Village Post Office under the rules which govern the issue of ordinary Inland Money Orders The following paragraphs contain additional instructions which relate solely to the issue of Revenue Money Orders :—

7. No Revenue Money Order may be issued for more than 50 rupees. The rule prohibiting the inclusion of pies (fractions of an anna) in the amount of a Money Order is not applicable to Revenue Money Orders, which may be for amounts including any fraction of an anna not less than one pie.

8. The Office of Issue will help the remitter in making the requisite entries, and, if necessary, will make entries for him in the form of a Revenue Money Order; but no fee or any other gratification whatsoever is to be demanded or accepted, either directly or indirectly, by any official of the Postal Department for this service. Disregard of this order will be punished by dismissal of the official in fault, who will, moreover, be liable to any further penalties provided by law.

9 The Office of Issue is responsible that no Revenue Money Order is issued of which the Coupon (Chalan) is blank or is not completely filled up. The Post Office has no means of ascertaining the correctness of the information supplied by a remitter; all that it is necessary to see is that entries are made against every printed item in the Coupon (Chalan) and that the Money Order is not for a larger sum than 50 rupees.

10. The letter "R" should be written before the number of every Revenue Money Order, and this mode of distinguishing Revenue Money Orders should be adopted wherever the number is entered.

11. The number assigned to a Revenue Money Order by the Head Office or Selected Sub-Office of Issue will also be entered at the top of the Coupon (Chalan) by the Money Order Clerk of the Head Office or the Sub-Postmaster of the Selected Sub Office of Issue as the case may be. The number on the acknowledgment will, as in the case of an ordinary Money Order, be the number of the receipt given to the remitter.

12. On the 5th of every month Head and Sub Offices will prepare a return (Form $\frac{4}{R.M.O.}$) of all Revenue Money Orders issued during the last month, and forward the same to the Disbursing Postmaster who will compile a General District Return and submit it to the Head of the circle not later than the 15th of the month following that to which it relates. Village Offices will not submit returns, as Revenue Money Orders issued from such offices will be included in the returns of the Account Offices to which they are attached. The district return submitted by the Disbursing Postmaster will be in Form $\frac{5}{R.M.O.}$

PART III.

PAYMENT OF REVENUE MONEY ORDERS.

SECTION A.—Procedure in the Disbursing Office.

13. When the Revenue Money Orders are in all respects ready to be handed over to the Postman, a list in duplicate (Form $\frac{3}{R.M.O.}$) should be made out by the Money Order Clerk, and the entries in the money column of the list carefully totalled.

14. The Money Orders, both copies of the list, and a slip receipt (Form $\frac{3}{R.M.O.}$) duly filled up, should then be handed over to the Postman for delivery at the Collectorate, the Postman's receipt for the documents being taken in the usual manner in the register of Money Orders received.

15. The Postman will deliver all the documents mentioned in paragraph 14 to the treasury officer (or other responsible official authorized by the Collector, in writing, to receive Revenue Money Orders and whose name has been communicated by the Collector to the Postmaster), and will take back to the Post Office the slip receipt duly signed by the officer receiving the Money Orders. The slip receipt will be kept by the Money Order Clerk under lock and key.

16. When the original list, duly signed by the treasury officer or other authorized officer, is received back, along with the refused Money Orders (if any), the Postmaster will give in exchange for the list a treasury voucher (Form A C—17) representing the value of the Money Orders accepted, as shown in the certificate at the foot of the list.

17. The Postmaster should on no account give a treasury voucher in payment of Revenue Money Orders, without receiving the original list with the certificate of acceptance written at the foot thereof.

18. The Postmaster will be responsible always to have sufficient funds at his credit in the district treasury to meet Revenue Money Order demands, and it will be his duty, when giving a treasury voucher, to see that there are funds in the District Treasury to meet it.

19. The original list and the slip receipt will be filed together by the Money Order Clerk. The refused Money Orders (if any) will be dealt with in accordance with the instructions laid down in Part IV of these rules.

20. On receipt of the Money Orders, together with the receipts and ackowledgments duly signed, the Money Order Clerk will examine and compare all the documents with the original list already in his possession and with the duplicate presented to him along with these documents, and if all are found correct will sign the duplicate list and return it to the Collectorate official who brought back the documents to the Post Office.

21. The Money Order Clerk should be particularly careful to see that he receives from the Collectorate an acknowledgment for every Money Order accepted, and that every acknowledgment which he receives is in acknowledgment of the full amount of the Money Order to which it appertains.

22. The Money Order received back from the Collectorate, with their receipts, will be entered in the Journal of Money Orders paid and be disposed of in the usual manner. The acknowledgments will be returned to the remitters in the manner described in Part V of these rules.

23. The amount of the treasury voucher will be entered in the Post Office and Treasurer's cash day books and the cash account on the receipt side opposite the item "Drawn from District Treasury," and will be included in the sum entered on the disbursement side under the head "Amount of Money Orders paid." The amount will also appear in the Treasury account as money drawn from the District Treasury. All these entries must be made on the same date.

24. Before the duplicate list is finally returned to the Collectorate, the Money Order Clerk will carefully compare it with the original and see that they are exactly alike, any remark recorded in the one list (either in the Collectorate, or by the Money Order Clerk, or the Postmaster) being copied in the other list.

25. It will be the duty of the Money Order Clerk to report to the Postmaster if the Money Orders and other documents sent to the Collectorate are not returned to him before 12 o'clock (noon) on the day following that on which they were sent.

26. The Money Order Clerk will report to the Postmaster every case in which the Coupon (Chalan) of a Revenue Money Order received by him is blank or is imperfectly filled up.

27. On the 5th of every month the Money Order Clerk will prepare a return (Form $\frac{6}{R.M.O.}$) of all Revenue Money Orders received during the last month, and this return will be submitted by the Postmaster to the Head of the circle along with the District Return of Revenue Money Orders issued.

SECTION B.—Procedure to be followed in the Collectorate.

28. On receipt of the Money Orders, with other documents, in the Collectorate the treasury officer, or other responsible official authorised as above (see Rule 15) to receive Revenue Money Orders, will carefully compare the entries in the list with the Money Orders, and, when satisfied of their correctness, will sign the slip receipt and hand it over to the Postman who has brought the documents to the Collectorate, retaining the other papers for subsequent disposal.

29. The next business to be done in the Collectorate will be the careful examination of the Money Orders to see that the necessary particulars of remittance are given in each case, and that the Money Orders are otherwise such as should be accepted.

30. The original list, together with refused Money Orders (if any), must be returned to the Post Office and a treasury voucher be obtained immediately on the certificate of acceptance being signed. The officer signing the certificate will be responsible that the check prescribed in paragraph 29 has been carried out, and that the original list, with the certificate duly endorsed, is returned to the Post Office on the day of receipt.

31. On receipt of the treasury voucher from the Post Office the treasury officer will on the same day credit the amount thereof in the accounts of the Collectorate as remittances received by means of Money Orders from the zemindars concerned, and will charge the amount against the monthly letter-of-credit of the Postal Department as money paid to the Disbursing Postmaster.

32. After the amount of the treasury voucher has been credited in the Collectorate in the accounts of the mahals concerned, the acknowledgments will be signed by the appropriate officers.

33. The Money Orders will then be signed by the treasury officer or other officer authorized as above to receive them, and that officer, after detaching the Coupons (Chalans) from the Money Orders, will return the original orders, with the receipts, acknowledgments, and the duplicate list, to the Post Office and retain the Chalans in the Collectorate.

34. When the duplicate list, with the Postmaster's acknowledgment for the documents returned to him written thereon, is received back from the Post Office, it should also be filled in the Collectorate.

35. The original Money Orders with their receipts and acknowledgments must be returned by the Collectorate before 12 o'clock (noon) on the day following their receipt. This period is on no account to be exceeded.

PART IV.

TREATMENT OF REVENUE MONEY ORDERS NOT ACCEPTED BY THE COLLECTORATE.

36. If the Collector, or the officer to whom he delegates authority in this matter, declines to accept a Money Order, because of the omission of necessary particulars in the Coupon (Chalan), or other cause, the Money Order will be treated as refused and be disposed of in the usual manner.

PART V.

DISPOSAL OF ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

37. The acknowledgments appertaining to Revenue Money Orders received from the Collectorate will be sorted separately for each office of issue and enclosed in envelopes (Form $\frac{9}{\text{R. M. O.}}$) addressed to the Postmasters of those offices; the numbers of Money Orders to which the acknowledgments appertain being detailed on the back of the envelopes, thus $\frac{103}{314}$ where 103 is the number of the acknowledgment and 314 the number of the Money Order.

38. These envelopes will be entered in detail, in a special memorandum book (Form $\frac{7}{\text{R. M. O.}}$) and be despatched as letters registered on Postal Service. The total number of acknowledgments closed in each envelope will be the registered number assigned to that envelope.

39. On arrival in the Office of Issue, the envelopes will be opened and the acknowledgments contained in each envelope compared with the entries on the back thereof. The acknowledgments will then be stamped with the Money Order stamp and be sorted for distribution to Postmen. The numbers of all acknowledgments to be given to each Postman will be detailed separately in a special memorandum book (Form $\frac{8}{\text{R. M. O.}}$) and the Postman's signature obtained against the entry. The acknowledgments will then be handed over to the Postmen. The envelopes will be retained for 12 months sorted in daily and monthly bundles, and will be destroyed after the expiration of that period.

40. The Postmen will enter the acknowledgments in detail in their books, and will obtain the remitter's signature or mark when delivering each acknowledgment.

41. Acknowledgments which cannot be delivered in consequence of the remitter not being found will be returned by the Postman to the Sub-Postmaster or the Money Order Clerk (as the case may be), and his signature obtained in the Postman's book.

42. Undelivered acknowledgments will be kept in the Office of Issue (if a Head Office) for a period of 12 months, and, if still unclaimed, will be destroyed.

43. In Sub Offices and Village Offices undelivered acknowledgments will be retained for a period of three months, and, if still unclaimed, will be forwarded to the Head Office under a Postal Service Registered cover. Such acknowledgments will be kept in the Head Office for a further period of nine months, and, if then still on hand, will be destroyed.

44. Postmasters, Sub-Postmasters and Village Postmasters of the Offices of Issue will be responsible that acknowledgments are delivered to remitters of Revenue Money Orders without any unnecessary delay and free of charge. Enquiries as to the punctual and free delivery of acknowledgments should be made from time to time from zemindars who may call at the Post Office to have Revenue Money Orders issued.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.—PUBLIC.

Calcutta, the 17th December, 1886.

No. 2226.—With reference to Rule 14 of the draft Rules for the transport and importation of explosives published with Home Department Notification No. 1438, dated the 14th August 1885, and in accordance with the provisions of section 18, sub-section (1) of the Indian Explosives Act No. IV of 1884, and with the directions contained in Home Department Notification No. 1437, dated 14th August 1885, the Governor General in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following draft rule which His Excellency in Council proposes to make on the subject of the tests which certain explosives shall be required to pass before their importation is permitted.

The draft will be taken into consideration on the expiry of six weeks from the date of this Notification.

Draft Rule.

The following explosives and none others shall be liable to be tested under these Rules—

(1) All nitro-compounds included in class III, Division 1.

(2) Nitro-compounds containing gun-cotton included in class III, Division 2.

(3) Chlorate mixtures containing nitro-glycerine included in class IV, Division 2.

2. To nitro-compound mixtures included in class III, Division 1, except methylic nitrate the following tests are applicable :—

(a) Heat test for nitro-glycerine contained in dynamite and analogous nitro-glycerine preparations ;

(b) Heat test for nitro-glycerine preparations ;

(c) Heat test for blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite ;

(d) Test for liquefaction of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite ;

(e) Test for liability to exudation of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

3. To those nitro-compound mixtures included in class III, Division 2, which contain gun-cotton the heat test for nitro-glycerine preparations in clause (b) of the preceding paragraph is applicable.

4. To those chlorate mixtures contained in class IV, Division 2, which contain nitro-glycerine one or more of the five tests contained in paragraph 2 above are applicable, but the precise test or tests to be applied shall be regulated by the composition of the explosive.

5. The tests specified above shall be applied in the following manner :—

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE CONTAINED IN DYNAMITE AND ANALOGOUS NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

Apparatus required.

1. Test-tubes from 5½ inches to 5¾ inches long, and of such diameter that they will hold from 20 to 22 cubic centimetres of water when filled to a height of 5 inches.

2. The test-tubes to be fitted with perforated corks, which should be conical so as to fit all the tubes equally well. The perforations hold glass rods provided with a hook of glass or platinum to hold the test-paper.

3. The heating apparatus, as prescribed with the original Government heat test.* This apparatus is described at p. 112 of the Report of the Special Committee on gun-cotton, 1871 to 1874.

Materials required.

a. Test-paper.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch, previously washed with cold water, are added to 8½ ounces of distilled water, the mixture is stirred, heated to boiling, and kept gently boiling for 10 minutes; 15 grains of pure potassium iodide (i.e., which has been re-crystallized from alcohol) are dissolved in 8½ ounces of distilled water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed and allowed to get cold. Strips or sheets of white English filter paper, previously washed with water and re-dried, are dipped into the solution thus prepared, and allowed to remain in it for not less than 10 seconds; they are then allowed to drain and dry in a place free from laboratory fumes and dust. The upper and lower margins of the strips or sheets are cut off, and the paper is preserved in well-stoppered or corked bottles and in the dark. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about $\frac{4}{10}$ inch by $\frac{8}{10}$ inch (10 mm. by 20 mm.)

b. Standard tint paper.—A solution of caramel in water is made of such concentration that when diluted one hundred times (10 cc. made up to 1 litre) the tint of this diluted solution equals the tint produced by the Nessler test in 100 cc. water containing 0·000075 grm. of ammonia or 0·00023505 grm. of chloride of ammonium. With this caramel solution lines are drawn on strips of white filter paper† by means of a clean quill-pen. When the marks thus produced are dry, the paper is cut into pieces of the same size as the test-paper previously described, in such a way that each piece has a brown line across it near the middle of its length, and only such strips are preserved in which the brown line has a breadth varying from ½ mm. to 1 mm. ($\frac{1}{50}$th of an inch to $\frac{1}{25}$th of an inch).

Preparation of the Sample to be tested.

a. Apparatus required.—A wide-mouthed bottle (a) of about 6 oz. capacity, to which is fitted an India-rubber stopper (b) having two perforations. Through one of these passes the bent tube (c), through the other the filtering tube (d). The latter should have sufficient capacity to hold about 500 grains of dynamite. Within the bottle is placed a small test-tube (e) to receive the nitro-glycerine filtering through (d).

b. Mode of Operation.—About 400 grains of dynamite, finely divided, are placed into the filtering tube (d) (small piece of cotton-wool having previously been pushed into the contracted part of the tube), and made to fill it as evenly as possible by shaking and tapping; the upper surface is smoothed by gently pressing with a wooden rammer.

Water is then poured on the top of the dynamite and allowed to sink into it by its own weight until a sufficient quantity of nitro-glycerine has been displaced. The bent tube (c) may then be connected with the filtering pump or other means of reducing the pressure in the bottle, the displacement of the nitro-glycerine being thus accelerated.

The nitro-glycerine collects in the tube (e), and the operation is stopped before the water reaches the narrow part of the filtering tube.

If any water should have passed through with the nitro-glycerine, it should be removed with a piece of blotting paper, and the nitro-glycerine, if necessary, filtered through a dry paper filter.

Application of the test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160°F.) to a depth of 2½ inches. 50 grains of nitro-glycerine to be tested are weighed into a test-tube in such a way as not to soil the sides of the tube. A test-paper is fixed on the hook of the glass rod, so that, when inserted into the tube, it will be in a vertical position. A sufficient amount of a mixture of half distilled water and half glycerine is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's hair pencil to moisten the upper half of the paper, the cork carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube, and the position of the paper adjusted, so that its lower edge is about half way down the tube; the latter is then inverted through one of the perforations of the cover to such a depth that the lower edge of the test-paper is just above the surface of the cover. The test is complete when the faint brown line which after a time makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint paper.

* A globe of copper or other suitable material may be used instead of the glass globe, and any efficient gas regulator, such as a mercury regulator, may be substituted in place of Scheibler's regulator.

† This paper should be carefully washed with distilled water in the first instance to remove any traces of bleaching matter and

The nitro-glycerine under examination will be considered as "thoroughly purified" within the terms of the license, whenever the time necessary to produce the standard tint as above described is not less than 15 minutes.

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

Fig. I.

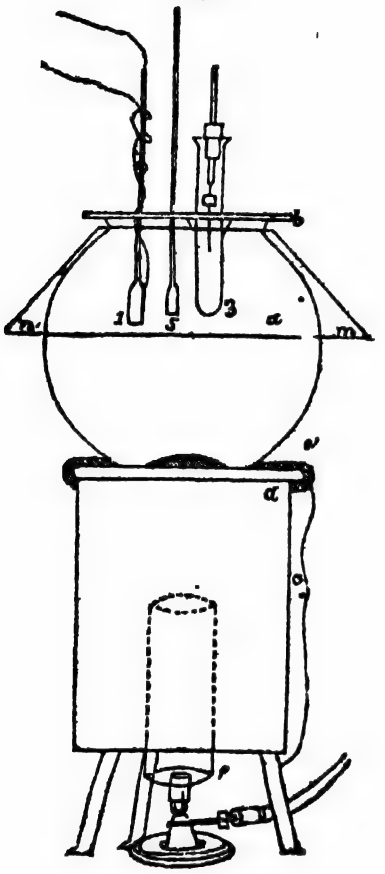

Fig. II.

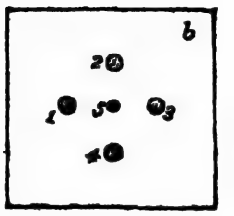

Fig. III.

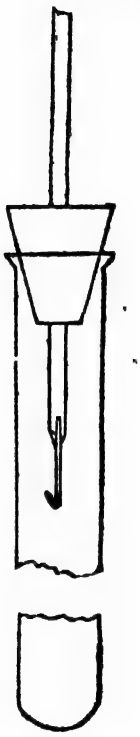
Fig. IV.



Apparatus required.—1. A spherical glass vessel (Fig. I) about 8 inches diameter (a) filled with water to within a quarter of an inch of the edge, having a loose cover of sheet tin or copper about 7 inches square (b), rests on a tripod stand about 14 inches high (c), covered with coarse iron-wire gauze (e), and surrounded with a screen of thin sheet copper (d). Within this is placed an argand burner (f) with glass chimney. Over the glass globe is placed a common green paper lamp shade (m, n). The cover (b) has five holes arranged as seen in Fig. II; No. 5 to receive the thermometer; No. 1, the regulator; No 4, a small funnel; and Nos. 2 and 3, test-tubes, containing the gun-cotton to be tested. Around holes 2 and 3, on the under-side of the cover, are soldered three pieces of the brass wire with points slightly converging (Fig. III turned upside down); these, acting as springs, allow the test-tubes to be easily placed in position and removed.

2. Scheibler's temperature regulator.

3. Two cells of Le Clanche's battery No. 1.

4. A few yards of insulated copper wire.

5. Test-tubes about $\frac{3}{4}$ inch diameter, and not less than 5 inches long.

6. Glass rod with a flat head—of sufficient length to reach to the bottom of test-tubes.

7. Corks, fitting the test-tubes and carrying an arrangement for holding the test-paper (a thin glass tube passing through the centre of the cork, drawn out and terminating in a platinum wire hook, Fig. IV).

8. A thermometer with range not less than from 30° to 212° Fahrenheit.

9. A minute clock.

Materials required.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch are added to 8½ ounces of water, and the mixture is stirred and heated to boiling; 15 grains of iodide of potassium are dissolved in 8½ ounces of water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed together. Strips or sheets of white Swedish filter paper are dipped in the solution thus prepared; they are then allowed to drain and dry. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about ½ inch by ¾ inch. The paper should be preserved in a well-stoppered or corked bottle.

Preparation of Samples for Testing.—Half a cartridge of the material (or about 500 grains if it is not supplied in the form of cartridges) is thoroughly rubbed up together, so as to furnish a very uniform sample. If the material is frozen, it should first be thawed

Application of the Test.—The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160° Fahrenheit to a depth of 2½ inches). 50 grains of the samples to be tested are inserted into the test-tube and gently pressed down to the bottom with a flat-headed glass rod. The test-tube is then inserted through the perforation in the cover, and is immersed in the hot water to the depth of 2½ inches, the tube being closed with a loosely-fitting cork. A test-paper is fixed on the lower extremity of the glass rod, so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A drop of distilled water, containing 10 per cent. of pure glycerine, is applied to the upper edge of the test-paper, the quantity used being only sufficient to moisten about half of the paper; the first cork is then taken out of the test-tube and replaced by the cork holding the glass rod and test-paper, keeping the test-paper as near the top of the test-tube as possible until the tube has been immersed for about five or six minutes. A ring of moisture will about this time be deposited in the test-tube a little above the cover of the bath; the glass rod must then be lowered until the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is on a level with the bottom of the ring of moisture in the tube; the paper is now closely watched. The test is complete when a very faint brown coloration makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper. The interval of time between the first insertion of the tube containing the sample in the water at 160°, and the first appearance of discoloration on the paper, constitutes the test.

HEAT TEST FOR BLASTING GELATINE AND GELATINE DYNAMITE.

Fifty grains of blasting gelatine are to be intimately incorporated with one hundred grains of French chalk The mixture is to be gradually introduced into a test-tube of the dimensions prescribed in the dynamite heat test, with the aid of gentle tapping upon the table between the introduction of successive portions of the mixture into the tube; so that, when the tube contains all the mixture, it shall be filled to the extent of 1¾ inches (one inch and three quarters) of its height. The test-paper is then to be inserted, and the heat is to be applied in the manner prescribed for the dynamite heat test, and the sample tested is to withstand exposure to 160° Fahrenheit for a period of ten minutes before producing a discoloration of the test-papers corresponding in tint to the standard colour test which is employed for governing the results of the dynamite heat test.

Test for liquefaction of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

A cylinder of blasting gelatine to be cut from the cartridge to be tested, the length of the cylinder to be about equal to its diameter and the ends being cut flat.

The cylinder is to be placed on end on a flat surface without any wrapper and secured by a pin passing vertically through its centre.

In this condition the cylinder is to be exposed for one hundred and forty-four consecutive hours (six days) to a temperature ranging from 85° to 90° Fahrenheit (inclusive), and during such exposure the cylinder shall not diminish in length by more than one-fourth, and the upper cut surface shall retain its flatness and the sharpness of its edge.

Note.—(If the blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite to be tested be not made up in a cylindrical form, the above test is to be applied with the necessary modifications.)

Test for liability to exudation of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

There shall be no separation from the general mass of the blasting gelatine or gelatine dynamite of a substance of less consistency than the bulk of the remaining portion of the material under any conditions of storage, transport or use, or when the material is subjected three times in succession to alternate freezing and thawing, or when subjected to the liquefaction test hereinbefore described.

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

DRAFT.

DRAFT RULES UNDER THE EXPLOSIVES ACT, 1884.

PRELIMINARY.

1. FOR the purposes of these rules, explosives shall be classified as follows, namely :—

Class	1	Gunpowder.
,,	2	Nitrate-mixture.
,,	3	Nitro-compound.
,,	4	Chlorate-mixture.
,,	5	Fulminate.
,,	6	Ammunition.
,,	7	Firework.

And when an explosive falls within the description of more than one class, it shall be deemed to belong exclusively to the latest of the classes within the description of which it falls.

CLASS 1.—Gunpowder Class.

The term "gunpowder" means exclusively gunpowder ordinarily so called.

CLASS 2.—Nitrate-mixture Class.

The term "nitrate-mixture" means any preparation, other than gunpowder ordinarily so called, formed by the mechanical mixture of a nitrate with any form of carbon or with any carbonaceous substance not possessed of explosive properties, whether sulphur be or be not added to such preparation, and whether such preparation be or be not mechanically mixed with any other non-explosive substance.

The nitrate-mixture class comprises such explosives as—

Pyrolithe, Pudrolithe,
Poudre saxifragine,

and any preparation coming within the above definition.

CLASS 3.—Nitro-compound Class.

The term "nitro-compound" means any chemical compound possessed of explosive properties, or capable of combining with metals to form an explosive compound, which is produced by the chemical action of nitric acid (whether mixed or not with sulphuric acid) or of a nitrate mixed with sulphuric acid upon any carbonaceous substance, whether such compound is mechanically mixed with other substances or not.

The nitro-compound class has two divisions.

Division 1 comprises such explosives as—

Nitro-glycerine,	Dualine,
Dynamite,	Glyoxiline,
Lithofracteur,	Methylic nitrate, and any chemical compound or mechanically mixed preparation which consists either wholly or partly of nitro-glycerine or of some other liquid nitro-compound.

Division 2 comprises such explosives as—

Gun-cotton, ordinarily so called,	Cotton gunpowder,
Gun-paper,	Schultz's powder,
Xyloidine,	Nitro-mannite,
Gun-sawdust,	Picrates,

and any nitro-compound as before defined, which is not comprised in the first division.

CLASS 4.—Chlorate-mixture Class.

The term "chlorate-mixture" means any explosive containing a chlorate.

The chlorate-mixture class has two divisions.

Division 1 comprises such explosives as—

and any chlorate preparation which consists partly of nitro-glycerine or of some other liquid nitro-compound.

Division 2 comprises such explosives as—

Horsley's original blasting powder,	Reichen's blasting charges,
Erhardt's powder,	Teutonite,
Reverley's powder,	Chlorated gun-cotton,
Hochstadter's blasting charges, and any chlorate-mixture as before defined, which is not comprised in the first division.

CLASS 5.—Fulminate Class.

The term "fulminate" means any chemical compound or mechanical mixture, whether included in the foregoing classes or not, which, from its great susceptibility to detonation, is suitable for employment in percussion caps or any other appliances for developing detonation, or which, from its extreme sensibility to explosion, and from its great instability (that is to say, readiness to undergo decomposition from very slight exciting causes), is especially dangerous.

This class consists of two divisions.

Division 1 comprises such compounds as the fulminates of silver and of mercury, and preparations of these substances, such as are used in percussion caps, and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with phosphorous, or certain descriptions of phosphorous compounds, with or without the addition of carbonaceous matter, and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with sulphur, or with a sulphuret, with or without carbonaceous matter.

Division 2 comprises such substances as the chloride and the iodide of nitrogen, fulminating gold and silver, diazobenzol, and the nitrate of diazobenzol.

CLASS 6.—Ammunition Class.

The term "ammunition" means an explosive of any of the foregoing classes when, enclosed in any case or contrivance, or otherwise adapted or prepared so as to form a cartridge or charge for small arms, cannon, or any other weapon, or for blasting, or to form any safety or other fuze for blasting or for shells, or to form any tube for firing explosives or to form a percussion cap, a detonator, a fog signal, a shell, a torpedo, a war rocket, or other contrivance other than a firework.

The term "percussion cap" does not include a detonator.

The term "detonator" means a capsule or case which is of such strength and construction, and contains an explosive of the fulminate-explosive class in such quantity that the explosion of one capsule or case will communicate the explosion to other like capsules or cases.

The term "safety fuze" means a fuze for blasting which burns and does not explode, and which does not contain its own means of ignition, and which is of such strength and construction and contains an explosive in such quantity that the burning of such fuze will not communicate laterally with other like fuzes.

The expression "safety cartridges" means cartridges for small arms of which the case can be extracted from the small arm after firing, and which are so closed as to prevent any explosion in one cartridge being communicated to other cartridges.

The ammunition class has three divisions.

Division 1 comprises exclusively—

Safety cartridges.
Safety fuzes for blasting.
Railway fog signals.
Percussion caps.

Division 2 comprises any ammunition as before defined which does not contain its own means of ignition, and is not included in Division 1, such as—

Cartridges for small-arms, which are not safety cartridges,
Cartridges and charges for cannon, shells, mines, blasting, or other like purposes,
Shells and torpedoes containing any explosive,
Fuzes for blasting, which are not safety fuses,
Fuzes for shells,
Tubes for firing explosives,
War rockets,

which do not contain their own means of ignition.

Division 3 comprises any ammunition as before defined which contains its own means of ignition, and is not included in division 1, such as—

Detonators,
Cartridges for small-arms, which are not safety cartridges,
Fuzes for blasting, which are not safety fuzes,
Fuzes for shells,
Tubes for firing explosives,

which do contain their own means of ignition.

By ammunition containing its own means of ignition is meant ammunition having an arrangement, whether attached to it or forming part of it, which is adapted to explode or fire the same by friction or percussion.

CLASS 7.—Firework Class.

The term "firework" comprisesfirework composition and manufactured fireworks.

Division 1.—The term "firework composition" means any chemical compound or mechanically mixed preparation of an explosive or inflammable nature which is used for the purpose of making manufactured fireworks, and is not included in the former classes of explosives, and also any coloured fire composition.

Division 2.—The term "manufactured firework" means any explosive of the foregoing classes and any firework composition, when such explosive or composition is enclosed in any case or contrivance, or is otherwise manufactured so as to form a squib, cracker, serpent, rocket (other than a war-rocket), maroon, star, lance, wheel, Chinese fire, Roman candle, or other article adapted for the production of pyrotechnic effects or pyrotechnic signals.

MANUFACTURE, POSSESSION, AND SALE.

(a) General Rules.

2. An explosive shall not be manufactured except under and in accordance with the conditions of a license to manufacture the explosive granted under these rules.

Nothing in this rule shall apply—

From—The Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Chittagong,
To—The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit the annual report and accounts of the Chittagong District Road Cess Committee for the last cess year, showing in detail how the money was spent on the various roads of the district.

2. Messrs. A. Manson and S. J. Douglas were the Chairmen, and Baboo Dina Nath De, Mr. Douglas and Mr. Herald were the Vice-Chairmen during the year. The Committee consist of 21 members, and some of them took interest in their work.

3. There is a Branch Committee at Cox's Bazar, who were entrusted with a sum of Rs. 4,000 for improving the village communications in that part of the district, and the district roads of the subdivision were placed under the supervision of the District Engineer. Mr. Mackertich, the Chairman of the Branch Committee, reports that the members of the Branch Committee took no interest, as the funds placed at their disposal were "nominal." The amount spent for roads of the subdivision, which were placed under the supervision of District Engineer, is Rs. 16,104-8-11.

Planting trees.—Nothing has been spent towards this work during the year, as the planting of trees is not much wanted in this district. The trees planted on the Ramghur and Hill Tracts roads during the previous years have been maintained. The following would show the nature of the work done on each road during the year.

No. 1. Robertgunge road.—Surface repair and turfing have been executed on this road. Bamboo rivetments have been put on the sides of the road in places for protection from the rush of the water from the hills. Brick-metalling has been executed to the approaches of bridges Nos. 1, 2 and 3. The road is in good order and is fit for cart traffic. Bridge No. 3 will be made of iron.

No. 2. Mahajan's Hât road.—It has received surface repair. Two pucca culverts on it have received necessary repairs. The first three miles of the road is passable for carts, and the rest will be so when one bridge across a khal is put up.

No. 3. Moheshkhalli Strand road.—Repair to the surface has been executed. Sanding has been done to the first mile of the road; all the bridges on it have received necessary repairs. The road is in good order and fit for cart traffic.

No. 4. Halishahar road—Repairs have been done to the road: surface and necessary repairs to the metalling have also been done to the approaches of the pucca bridges.

The road is in good order and fit for carts.

No. 9. Bacolia road.—Surface repair and sanding has been done to the road.

No. 10. Kalurghat road.—Necessary repairs to its surface and bridges have been executed. Iron wings have been put to bridges Nos. 5, 7 and 8.

No. 11. Ramghur road, I Section,—Three inches of earthwork has been executed over this road throughout its length. Jungle has been cut down from its sides. Bamboo rivetments have been put in the 11th mile for protection of the road from encroachment of hill stream. All the bridges on this line have been repaired. Brick-metalling has been executed to the approaches and over the crown of bridges Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 17, 21, and 30. The road and its bridges are in good order and freely passable for carts.

No. 12. Ramghur road, II section—It has been divided into two portions, A and B.

The first portion is 14 miles in length, from the 13th mile up to FatickKoherri in the 26th mile. The first five miles of this portion of road have been repaired with 5,000 cubic feet of earthwork per mile, and the rest with four inches of earth all over the surface. The slopes of three crossings on this road, on which there are public ferries, were maintained. There are two inspection bungalows on this road—one at Koter Hât, and the other at Fatickcherri, both of wh ch have been thoroughly repaired.

The second portion of the road runs from Fatickcherri in the 26th mile to Ramghur, and is 21 miles in length. Earthwork has been done on approaches of 17 pucca bridges only, and the slopes of crossings on which there are public ferries and of a gap have been maintained. Jungle has been cut in the 34th 35th 36th, and 37th, miles, and a timber mile-post has been renewed. There are two inspection bungalows on this road—one at Kajee's Hât and the other at Narayan's Hât. The former has received petty repairs and the latter thorough repair.

No 13. Fenwah road.—It has been repaired with 3 inches of earthwork in the first and second miles, and with petty earthwork in the remaining miles. Jungle has been cleared from the road, and metalling has been done over pucca bridge No. 1. Bridges Nos. 4 and 8 have been partly repaired with jungly wood. Wooden bridges Nos. 4, 12 and 13 of this road had to be replaced with iron ones, but the estimates for these having been sanctioned very late, these could not be replaced during the year, but the bridges are now ready and will be taken up in hand shortly. The road is in fair order.

No. 14. Hill Tracts road, I section—The first two miles of this road have been repaired with three inches of earth over its surface, and the remaining 4 miles with 4,000 cubic feet of earthwork per mile. The trees planted on this road have been maintained by renewing their fencings. There is a crossing of Halda in the third mile, on which there is a public ferry. Brick metal has been put over pucca bridge No. 2. Timber bridge No. 1 has been coal-tarred. Jungly wooden foot bridges Nos. 6, 7, 10 and 14 have been thoroughly repaired. The bridge No. 15, which was of jungly wood, has been replaced with iron one. The first mile of the road is drivable, and the rest is a bridle path.

No. 15 Hill Tracts road, II section.—Only two and a half miles of this road is under repair. Petty repairs have been done to this portion of the road, and jungle has been cleared from its sides. The inspection bungalow at Roujan has received repairs of petty nature. The timber substructure of the bridge over Kaskhalli has been replaced with iron, and four tatty bridges have been renewed.

No. 16. Chandpore road.—The surface of the road and the inspection huts on it have received petty repairs only. The first two bridges and those on the south of the Sanghoo are only fit for cart traffic. The bridges on the south of Kamdar Fakir's hât up to the Sanghoo are only four feet wide, and therefore not passable for carts. It has been proposed to make these bridges fit for carts during the next year. The waterway of bridge No. 2 has been increased by 20 feet. Five wooden bridges on the south of the Sanghoo have been replaced with stoneware pipes.

No 17. Anwara road.—The whole of the road has received a coating of three inches earth-work. The wooden bridges, two in number, are only four feet wide. However, they have received petty repairs.

Earthwork has been executed only to the third, sixth and seventh miles. The wooden bridges have received petty repairs only. The bed of Murali Khal at its crossing of the Poroikorah road is extremely miry, and it is highly desirable that an iron foot bridge be put here. If the Committee like to charge the passengers when passing this bridge, they would gladly pay double the ferry rate now they are paying, and the cost of bridging will be realized within four or five years.

No. 19. Dhalghat road.—The surface of the road and its bridges have received petty repairs.

No. 20. Sakirapole road.—The whole of the road has received a coating of three inches earthwork. The bridge repair could not be completed owing to the delay in getting iron-work from England.

No. 22. Arracan road, I section.—The rivers and streamlets crossed by this line of road are Sreemati, Bargunies, Sanghoo, Hangar, and Tongahati. All these nullahs have got sandy beds, and therefore have no bridges over them. The approaches, however, have easy slopes, and the carts can pass without much inconvenience. The surface repairs of the road was undertaken by Mr. F. W. Higgins of Khorona. The bridge repairs are still in progress and will be finished shortly. The last year's unusually heavy floods damaged many bridges on this line. The inspection bungalows on it have received necessary repairs.

No. 23. Khorona road.—Both surface and bridge repairs of the road were executed by Mr. F. W. Higgins of the Khorona tea garden.

No. 24. Cox's Bazar road.—The road has been raised and widened in the sixth, seventh, and eighth miles, and surface repairs have been done in places. Timber bridges have received necessary repairs. No. 26. Issapore road.—The first five and the last two miles of this road are under repair, there being no road in the remaining portion. No doubt it will be great improvement if the whole line of the road is opened out by acquiring land. The first five miles of the road have been repaired at a cost of Rs. 12 per mile. Jungle from these miles have been cleared. Bamboo foot bridges and tatty bridges have been put over its gaps, and two timber bridges have been repaired. The road is a bridle path.

No. 27. Kadalpore road.—This road has been repaired with 5,000 cubic feet of earth-work per mile up to 7½ miles, and 1½ miles have been repaired with three inches of earthwork on the surface. Timber bridges Nos. 35 and 36 have been thoroughly repaired, and bamboo abutments, foot bridges, and tatty bridges have been replaced over its gaps. The road is a bridle path.

No. 28. Ranguniah road.—It has been repaired with three inches of earthwork all over its surface, and jungle has been cleared from its sides. The inspection bungalow on this road has also been repaired. The road was very much damaged by the flood of July last, and has been put right. Timber bridges Nos. 1 and 12 on it had to be replaced with iron ones, but they could not be done so as the iron work was not received in due time. The iron bridges, however, are now ready, and the work of the same has been taken in hand. The road is drivable all along.

No. 29. Arracan road, II Section.—In the first portion of this road jungle-clearing has been done in the Dhallas three times in the year, stoneware pipes have been put in three places. Many of the gaps have been filled up, diverting the course of the drainage to the adjoining nullahs. Bamboo foot bridges have been put over all the gaps, and the jungle clearing done in the Dhallas. Some trough plate bridges are also being put up. Bamboo foot bridges over the remaining gaps have been put up. Jungle has been cleared from sides of the road throughout its whole length. The inspection bungalow at Eadgong has received necessary repairs. A new inspection bungalow at Rumkahat has been erected.

No. 31. Garjonia dak line.—Repairs to suface have been done, and jungle has been cleared from its sides. Bamboo foot bridges have been put up over all gaps.

Bamboo foot bridges have been put over the gaps up to Jaldi to make the road fit for dâk runners and foot passengers. The inspection bungalow at Chakoria has received repairs.

No. 55. Sugonkotta Dhalla.—It has been repaired with earthwork in plains, and the portions in the hills have been dressed and levelled. Jungle of the road has also been cleared. Stoneware pipes of 12" diameter have been placed in three places, and timber foot bridges of entire log of jungly wood placed over all the gaps. It is the only short cut joining the Trunk Road with the Halda valley, but it is not rideable.

No 59. Kattolli road.—Necessary repairs have been executed to the surface of the road and its bridges. The road is in fair order and passable for carts.

No. 60. Captain Leak's road.—It has received surface repair but it has been damaged in places by the flood of July last. Channel iron bridges have been placed over gaps Nos. 3, 4 and 5, and stoneware pipes have been put in other gaps. This road is not passable for carts for narrowness of the road and for want of wide bridges, and one iron bridge will be constructed over gap No. 2.

No. 61. Patia Anwara road.—The portion of the road from Jagadamba's Ghât to Anwara was very bad, and most of the estimated quantity of earthwork has been executed here. Bamboo sankoes have been maintained throughout the year. The last year's flood caused much damages to the road, specially near Srimati. In the 5th mile the road crosses the Chandkhalli, where there is a ferry belonging to Baboo Kailash Chundra Rai, Zemindar of Porolkorah.

For convenience of navigation silt clearance is required in this canal every third year. The present length of the canal where silt clearance is necessary is over two miles.

No. 50. Banskhalli canal.—Silt clearance has been done here in the cess year 1883 84. It will probably have to be cleared of silt again in the next year. There are good deal of curves (bends) near the Kumaricherra. It will therefore be adviceable to straighten them when the khall is to be cleared of silt next time.

Road cess office building.—Work of the building has been commenced; 983 cubic feet of concrete, 12,063 cubic feet of brickwork in foundation, and 7,682 cubic feet of masonry in superstructure have already been executed. Rolled joists, beams, and other materials have been collected at the site. Teakwood doors and windows have been prepared. The work of the building have been stopped for want of good bricks. Bricks will be manufactured and work commenced in the next season. The work is expected to be completed within the 31st May 1887.

Work shop.—One workshop has been kept in the head-quarters for fitting up iron bridges, the materials of which are procured from Europe. The bridges have been fitted up here by local labour under supervision of two fitters who have received their training in the Calcutta Workshops, and the officer in charge of the head-quarter subdivision, and then despatched and fixed up in their respective sites. Though it has entailed heavy pressure of work on the establishment, bridges have been prepared here at a considerably less cost than the cost of prepared bridges received from England.

Establishment.—The establishment has worked well this year With regard to the remarks made last year by the Vice-Chairman, the Accountant was reinstated, and his character was cleared from any imputation of misconduct, he knows his work, and he has worked hard this year.

S. J. DOUGLAS,
Chairman.

No. 114R.C.C.—VII—3, dated Noakholly, the 27th December 1886.

From—R. M. WALLER, Esq., Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee,
To—The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the Annual Report and accounts of the District Road Cess Committee of Noakholly for the cess year 1885-86.

Original Works.—A sum of Rs. 17,492-3-9 was spent in original works, which consisted chiefly of constructing bridges on the existing roads and paying compensation for lands acquired for Pasuram and other roads lately made. No important new road was constructed this year. Sundip road was extended southward about three miles from the thana up to which it was constructed before. About half a mile of roadway was made at Companygunge to bring the Chittagong road across the chur up to the west bank of the Little Fenny. The approaches to several ferries were improved; portions of the old Lakhipur and Begumgunge road were raised above the flood level. Two of the loops of the khal running close by the old Lakhipur road near Jackson's bridge were cut across, and new and straight channels opened in one place so as to lead the current away from the roadway, which it threatened to breach, and in another to avoid having to bridge the khal in two places where the loop cut the roadway. The west side drain of the Senbag road was excavated so as to make a continuous waterway. Three bridges on Sundip road, two on Hattiah road, and eight on other roads were constructed during the year. Materials for other bridges were collected.

The project of opening steamer communication has not developed further. The expense, it was found, would be very heavy, and the matter has been, it is understood, under the consideration of Government.

Repairs.—All the roads that really exist under the charge of the Committee were repaired during the year, and a sum of Rs. 36,088 was spent for maintaining them. These are all unmetalled roads, and are, I think, on the whole in at least as good condition as formerly; but during the rains some of them became very muddy, owing to the heavy rainfall of this year and height of flood-level. The two main roads of the district, viz. Bhovanigunge and Dewangunge, were kept in a fair condition throughout the year.

The rainfall being very heavy in the year, the floods were exceptionally severe and destructive. It is said to have been the highest flood for several years past, and damage was done in consequence to most of the roads. All the roads in the east of Fenny sub-division were damaged more or less, but the damage to the highly embanked portion of the road from Fenny to Chagolnya was the most considerable. This road offered a strong resistance to the flood, lying, as it does, transversely across the line of drainage. One masonry abutment of an iron bridge on this road was destroyed, and the earthwork partly washed away on one side of the road for nearly a mile in length. Several breaches were made in Pasuram and Captain Lick's roads, which were overtopped by the flood-level in places, but were not much damaged.

In the northern part of the district the roads were submerged by water, which damaged the embankment. Cuttings were made in the roads for letting the water through. The flood rose to the level of the houses and gardens of the people, and threatened to destroy the paddy and supari trees.

Station roads.—The metalled roads in the Municipality were all repaired in the year, and are in fair order. A sum of Rs. 2,517-8-6 has been expended for this purpose.

Inspection Bungalows.—Three inspection bungalows, the construction of which was sanctioned last year, were commenced this year: two of them are finished, and the other three-fourths completed.

Village roads.—A sum of Rs. 5 527-1-5 was spent during the year on the construction of the village roads. Of this sum, Rs. 2,222-9-3 was spent by the Fenny Branch Committee on village roads in the Fenny and Chagolnya thannas. Three roads were completed by the Branch Committee and several others taken in hand. Several of these were not village roads proper, and the Branch Committe exceeded their powers and broke the rules by making them. Village roads ought not to require professional assistance, but the Chairman of the Branch Committee has stated that some of the roads were defectively made for want of professional supervision, which they ought not to have needed.

Planting trees.—No new trees were planted during the year. The trees planted before were maintained during the year. They are mostly doing well, and in good condition. Some of them are beginning to bear fruit. During the rains the water rose as high as the roots of some of them, and a few died in consequence.

Establishment.—The Vice-Chairman has attended to his duties, but his relations with the District Engineer were not such as to enable me to fully utilise his services. This is the second term of service he has completed as Vice-Chairman, and the experience he has so gained is considerable and advantageous.

The District Engineer has given satisfaction on the whole, but he does not keep sufficient control over his subordinates. His absence for two months, owing to a severe attack of fever, naturally prevented things going on as well as might be desired. The sub-overseers, with two exceptions, worked fairly.

RAMLAL SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

No. 147R., dated Commilla, the 29th December 1886.

From—S. S. JONES, Esq., Chairman, Road Cess Committee, Tipperah,
To—The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division.

UNDER section 179 of Act IX (B.C.) of 1880, I have the honour to submit the following report on the Road Cess administration of this district during the cess year ending 30th September 1886, together with a copy of the annual accounts of income and expenditure for that period, as passed by the District Road Cess Committee at a special meeting held on the 11th December 1886.

2. Audit report.—The Sub-Committee appointed for the purpose of scrutinizing accounts held monthly meetings during the cess year in accordance with the standing order of Government, No. 201A of 26th February 1880. The result of their audit was, on the whole, satisfactory. A copy of Vice-Chairman's report of the 4th December 1886 is herewith submitted (Appendix A).

3. The road cess office and that of the District Engineer's were inspected by Baboo Mohendra Lal Mookerjee, Local Auditor, on the 26th June 1886. His report was to the effect that books and returns were all carefully examined, and found to be in good order. Some few minor irregularities were detected.

4. Committee's meeting—Eight meetings only of the District Road Cess Committee were held during the year, it having been found that all important business could be disposed of in monthly meetings. The Branch Committees at Brahmunberia, Chandpur, Muradnagar and Choudagram met with tolerable punctuality, and the attendance of members at District and Branch Committees was fairly good. * * * * *

5. Roads and Bridges.—There are three principal district roads of importance in the district, viz, Commilla to Brahmunberia, Chandpur and Navinagor. Not one of these roads, with its feeders noted in the margin, could be kept open for foot passengers and wheeled traffic throughout the year.

(1). Feeders to Brahmunberia road are—
(a). Agurtollah road.
(b). Gokorno road.
(c). Serail road.
(d). Chunta village road.
(2). Feeders to Chandpur road—
(a). Lakshamroad.
(b). Berullah road.
(c). Choudagram road.
(d). Chitosha road.
(3). Feeders to Companygunge-Navinagur road—
(a). Muradnagur road.

(1). Brahmunberia road.—From Commilla to Brahmunberia (40 miles long). It is well bridged up to Brahmunberia, except at Nayanpur, and this one break practically has rendered the road useless. The bridge required is being taken in hand, and will, I hope, be finished by March. There still remains three breaks in the communication between Commilla and Brahmunberia subdivision, viz., the river Boonee, Titas river, and Gokorna khal, which have been properly supplied with ferry boats. The road is extended up to Serail, and then goes towards Chunta. The plans and estimates for bridging the Serail road with iron-girders and platform bridges were sent to Government for professional sanction, but returned for revision.

(2). Chandpur road.—From Commilla to Chandpur (45 miles long). This road is well bridged up to Mudafergunge (18 miles). The Committee are making arrangements for the construction of some masonry and iron bridges on the road between Mudafergunge and Hajigunge (12 miles). The bridging and improving the road from Hajigunge to Chandpur was postponed till the question of the railway between Chandpur and Chittagong is finally settled. But I propose to resubmit this project.

(3). Companygunge-Navinagur road.—This road begins from a point of the Daudkandi Trunk Road near Mynamutty. It is about 38 miles long from Commilla to Navinagur, and is partially completed and bridged up to Companygunge, and will be extended up to Navinagur station on the river Titas. The line taken for the Navinagur road is parallel to our Brahmunberia road, and will run through most of pergunnah Bardakhal when it is finished.

6. Original works.—The chief original works taken in hand during the year were the bridging of the Brahmunberia road and of the Kadomtolly khal, and these works were completely finished.

7. Repairs.—Repairs have been executed to all the roads noted in the margin in the usual manner, and the more important lines of communication have been kept open for foot-passengers during the rains by means of temporary bamboo bridges, &c.

8. Planting trees.—One thousand and three hundred young trees have been planted out, and old plants maintained on the Brahmunberia, Agurtollah, Companygunge, Suburban roads and village roads; but the recent flood has destroyed many of the well grown Jack trees on the Brahmunberia, Companygunge and Agurtollah roads.

9. Improving village roads and khals.—A large amount was spent by the District Committee for village roads and khals during the year under report, for many of their voluntary local contributions were received from the villagers. The expenditure on village roads and khals by each Committee is shown below. In the Sudder sub-division much was spent after local enquiry by the late Chairman Mr. F. H. Skrine, who took great interest in cleaning out silted up water-courses navigable for a greater or less portion of the year. Considering that our arterial communications are not yet complete I would not expend much money on such works at present, but in a few years these khals should be systematically cleaned out.

10. Steam communication.—Through the energy of my predecessor Mr. F. H. Skrine, a steamer station with a bungalow has been opened at Shatnal, where the up and down steamers from and to Goalundo stop every day at 3 P. M. and 9 A. M. except Monday, from thence our road cess boats carry passengers to Daudkandi, 9 miles above Shatnal. The Committee spent about Rs. 1,497 to secure this steam communication. From December 1885, the mails of the whole Chittagong Division have been received 8 hours earlier. The purchase of the proposed steam launch at a cost of Rs. 16,500 is for the present abandoned. The Committee are patiently awaiting the proposed railway communication throughout the district, and when it is finished the Committee will have to spend in a few years a large amount for feeders for it.

11. Establishment.—The establishment has worked fairly well, but I cannot single out any officer for special praise.

No. A, dated Commilla, the 4th December 1886.

The accounts of the year were examined by the Audit Committee once every month, and twelve meetings of the Sub-Committee held for the purpose above alluded to.

* * * * * * * *

The result of the audit was, on the whole, satisfactory, and the Audit Committee found that the prescribed registers have been properly kept up in the District Road Cess office as also in the office of the District Engineer.

The Accountant Baboo Radha Charan Roy has been very attentive throughout the year, and given me great assistance in checking expenditure; it is in a great measure due to his watchfulness and care that I have been able to check the monthly accounts.

The second clerk has performed his duties very creditably, and has given great satisfaction.

A third clerk is very necessary for the purpose of keeping down arrears, the work is growing rapidly; unless there is some help in the accountant's office, I am afraid the current work will not be handled efficiently.

H. M. WEATHERALL, Vice-Chairman,

District Road Cess Committee, Tipperah.

No. 60R., dated Rangamatti, the 10th January 1887.

From—C. A. S. BEDFORD, ESQ., Deputy Commissioner of the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

To—The Commissioner of the Chittagong Division.

IN submitting herewith in duplicate the annual accounts of the Road Fund Department for the cess year 1885-86, I have the honor to state that all the existing roads of the district have been ordinarily maintained by clearing jungle and throwing up temporary bridges All these works were given in contract and executed, I understand from the District Engineer, satisfactorily.

2. Government having sanctioned the appointment of a temporary supervisor for the survey of the Ruma and Rangamatti road, efforts were made to start the work with all possible despatch; but as it was the latter end of March, the season was far advanced when that officer commenced operations. Several cases of fever and some deaths among the coolies materially affected the progress of the work, and only a trace from Ruma to Politye could be cut.

3. Efforts were also made to improve the road from Burkal to Demagri. The opening out of a new trace from Demagri to Tegga khal was commenced by Lushai and other hill coolies who had previously obtained advances from Government during the year of scarcity. Owing to the disturbances in the Frontier, the unsettled condition of the people generally, only a few men could be obtained and a 3 feet wide trace was cut up to nearly within two miles of this side of Tegga, where it joined the old road. As regards earth-work nothing could be done for want of funds. However on receipt of Rs. 2,500 in March, transferred under your orders from the Police grant, arrangements were made to send up as many coolies as could be hastily got together. Only about one and half miles of the road from Demagri towards Tegga was completed.

No. 83GM—VII-1, dated Chittagong, the 26th January 1887.

From—D. R. LYALL, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit the annual report on the administration of Road Funds in the districts of this division for the cess year ending 30th September 1886, and to forward the district reports and accounts in original, together with a general abstract of the accounts for the whole division.

2. An abstract of the particulars regarding the meetings of the District Road and Branch Committees in the regulation districts of this division during the year under report is also enclosed.

Chittagong, 20th December 1886.
Noakholly, 29th December 1886.
Tipperah, 3rd January 1887
Hill Tracts, 12th January 1887.

3. The dates on which the district reports and accounts were received in this office are noted in the margin.

4. The statement below shows the attendance of the members of the District and Branch Road Committees as compared with that of the preceding year:—

	Cess year ending 30th September 1885.				Cess year ending 30th September 1886.
	Members		Number of meetings held.	Average attendance at meetings	Members		Number of meetings held.	Average attendance at meetings.
	Official.	Non-official.			Official.	Non-official.
Chittagong	5	17	11	10	5	16	12	9·75
Cox's Bazar	2	10	7	3·85	2	10	9	2·88

Muradnagar	2	18	2	12	2	18	3	10
Chowdhagram ...	4	11	5	8·6	4	11	4	9

It will be seen from the statement above that the average attendance is below 50 per cent., with the exception of the Sub-Committees of Fenny, Muradnagar, and Chowdhagram.

There were, however, only three and four meetings held at the last named places respectively.

At head-quarters, attendance was best at Chittagong and worst at Noakholly.

The number of meetings held at the head-quarters were—12 in Chittagong, 13 in Noakholly and 8 in Tipperah.

I consider that in all districts a sufficient number were held to dispose of the business to be done.

5. The total revenue of the division for the year under review amounted to Rs. 2,94,274-4-7. This together with the unexpended balance of the last year, and the receipts on account of advances and deposits, gave a total income of Rs. 4,62,004-12-11 available for expenditure during the year under report, against Rs. 3,97,724-15-1 in the previous year. The total disbursements, including advances and deposit repayments, amounted to Rs. 3,59,801-3-7, against Rs. 2,66,201-11-8, leaving a balance in hand of Rs. 1,02,203-9-4, against Rs. 1,31,523-3-5 in the previous year. Of this balance, the sum of Rs. 29,283-8-7 belongs to Chittagong, Rs. 18,131-13-6 to Noakholly, Rs. 53,567-15-10 to Tipperah, and Rs. 1,220-3-5 to Hill Tracts. The attention of the several authorities has again been drawn to paragraph 9 of the Government Resolution No. 4227RC, dated 18th December 1885, as to the framing of Road Fund budgets in future, as the result of the past year shows the budgets to have been very carelessly prepared.

Assistant Surveyor-General, in charge Surveyor-General's Office.

Rules and Regulations of the Mathematical Instrument Office, Survey of India Department.

THE Mathematical Instrument Office, Survey of India Department, supplies new and serviceable instruments, &c., and repairs, examines, and adjusts, &c., old ones, on book-debit, for all branches of the public service. As a general rule, new instruments are not supplied, if serviceable instruments of the class required are available for issue.

2. All applications for instruments on the public service must be submitted on the following indent form, which is not required in duplicate, the specification of instruments and particular purposes for which required being made as full as possible. Indent forms may be had on application being made to the Mathematical Instrument Office :—

Indent No. on the Calcutta Mathematical Instrument Office, S. I. Dept., Calcutta, for Instruments required for the use of , dated 188 .

Description of Instruments.	Quantity or number in use or in store.	Quantity or number indented for.	Purpose for which required.	Average cost as per printed list.		How and where to be despatched.
				Rs.	As.
						The address which should be affixed to the parcels or cases to be distinctly given in full. Abbreviations sometimes lead to mistakes.

I do hereby certify that the articles specified in this indent are indispensably necessary for the purposes set forth, according to the best of my knowledge and belief, after the most careful examination.

Recommended.

Countersignature of approving authority.

Signature of Indenting Officer, with designation of appointment in full.

3. All indents must be duly approved and countersigned by the heads of departments, or of the Government under which indenting officers may be serving, before they can be supplied, viz.—

Survey of India Dept., Trig. Branch,	by Deputy Surveyor-General and they should be addressed to the Officer in charge, Government Mathematical Instrument Office, No. 9, Park Street, Calcutta.

4. The mode of transit, and address, or station to which the instruments are to be consigned, must invariably be specified on indents in the proper column. Indents should not be accompanied with forwarding letters, unless more explanation is necessary than can be given on the face of the indent.

5. All officers, to whom instruments and other stores are issued on public service, have to account for them to the officer to whom their accounts are rendered, in such manner as may be by him directed.

6. All instruments, and component parts of instruments, when no longer required, should be at once returned to the Mathematical Instrument Office, except when the Officer in charge considers that their transit charges may nearly equal, or exceed, their actual value as material; in which case, he should refer to the Officer in charge, Mathematical Instrument Office, for instructions as to their disposal. No unused instruments should be allowed to accumulate in any office, as, if returned, they can be utilised for re-issue.

7. When instruments are considered unserviceable by any officer, a survey should be held on them by a committee of Government officers, whose report should be forwarded to the Assistant Surveyor-General, in charge of Mathematical Instrument Office, who will issue instructions as to which of the articles are to be forwarded to the depôt, Calcutta, and which should be sold by public auction to the best advantage. The proceeds of all articles sold by auction must be deposited in the nearest treasury, and the treasury receipt, with auction account sale, and copy of the committee report, should be attached to the next cash account current, in which the transaction should appear both on the debit and credit sides.

8 When instruments are received for final deposit in store, a valuation receipt will be granted for them by the Officer in charge, Mathematical Instrument Office, to enable officers, from whom received, to remove them from their debit, by forwarding the receipt to the Comptroller of India Treasuries, with the half-yearly or other returns of stores submitted to him.

9. All Government instruments, &c., requiring repair, &c., should be forwarded with an official letter or repair indent.

10. All instruments, &c., received from England and issued on book-debit on the public service, will be charged at their invoice cost, plus a percentage to cover freight, insurance, loss by exchange, &c.

11. Instruments made in the workshops, and those purchased locally for issue on book-debit, will be charged at cost rates. Instruments purchased locally for officers not entitled to receive them on book-debit will be charged at cost price, plus 5 to 10 per cent. for examining, testing, and incidental charges.

12. Instruments, when they can be spared, are sometimes sold to officers in the service of Government on payment of their value, plus from 5 to 10 per cent.; and instruments, the private property of officers, are repaired, if necessary, on like terms. In such cases the amount must be remitted to the Officer in charge, Mathematical Instrument Office, before the instruments can be despatched.

13. Instruments returned into store will be valued according to their condition on arrival at the Mathematical Instrument Office.

14. It should be distinctly stated in the forwarding letters, or on the face of delivery vouchers advising despatch of consignments to the Mathematical Instrument Office, whether the articles forwarded are "for repair" or "for deposit."

15. All consignments for the Mathematical Instrument Office should be forwarded "prepaid."

16. In the event of instruments, indented for by Government officers, not being available from the Mathematical Instrument Office stock, they can, if urgently required, be usually purchased in the local market. In such cases, however, the Government have ruled as follows:—"When instruments are purchased by the Mathematical Instrument Office in the local market at the request of any Department, they shall be paid for by the department concerned by Remittance Transfer Receipt on presentation of the Bills (letter No. 4308., dated 29th September 1883, from Revenue and Agricultural Department, to Surveyor-General of India").

17. Officers and departments entitled to issue of instruments on book-debit should never remit the price in cash or by Transfer Receipt, unless especially asked to do so by the Officer in charge, Mathematical Instrument Office. The transfer of issues from book-debit to cash, and vice versa, causes great trouble in the adjustment of the accounts.

18. It is particularly requested that the size and description of instruments, length of scales, how divided, and purposes for which required, and generally any information, which will guide this office in knowing, without further reference, the exact wants of the indenting officer, be entered, as far as possible, on the face of the indent, instead of in covering letters.

19. The following list shows the nomenclature of the various descriptions of instruments ordinarily kept in store in this office for issue on public service. This nomenclature should be strictly adhered to in all indents.

20 To enable the indenting officer, as well as the officer who countersigns and finally passes an indent, to know the cost involved thereby, the average ordinary price of each description of instrument is also given in the annexed list. Indenting officers must invariably enter the value of all instruments required by them in the column of the indent allotted for that purpose.

21. The supply should be regulated, not according what an officer would like to have, but by what is absolutely necessary.

MATHL. INSTT. OFFICE,
CALCUTTA,
The 1st April 1887.

PART IV.

Bills of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following report of the Select Committee together with the Bill as amended by them is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

We, the Committee appointed to consider the draft Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the municipal affairs of the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, beg to submit the following report.

We have made certain alterations in the section of definitions, which require no special comment.

We have retained 75 as the most convenient number of Commissioners, all things considered for the new Corporation; but in lieu of dividing them into $\frac{1}{5}$ths nominated and $\frac{4}{5}$ths elected Commissioners, we have preferred to fix $\frac{3}{5}$ths as the proportion of nominated Commissioners, $\frac{1}{5}$ths elected in the ordinary way, and $\frac{1}{5}$ths elected by special constituencies associated with the commerce and trade of Calcutta. In this we have followed a principle adopted in the draft Bill for altering the constitution of the Port Trust of Calcutta.

We consider the proposed system of allowing plural votes according to a recognized method to be a great improvement upon the existing system. We have therefore adopted the new sections with unimportant modifications.

We also approve of the proposal of making the valuation of the house, rather than the amount of rates actually paid, the standard qualification. It will greatly facilitate the preparation of a list of voters by the Executive of the Municipality, instead of leaving it, as at present, to the activity of the agents of the candidates.

By a bare majority of the Committee present at the meeting, at which the question was finally discussed, we have decided to retain the clause giving a vote to Fellows and Graduates of the University resident in Calcutta.

We have made certain alterations in section 29, the section which prescribes the purposes to which the funds of the Corporation shall be applicable, the most important being the addition of the construction of hospitals.

In lieu of sections 31 and 32 and sections 287, 288, and 289 we have adopted, at the instance of Government, a new section (section 31 of the amended Bill), simplifying the system of control by the Local Government. The present sections prescribe a procedure which has been found to be cumbrous and impracticable.

In section 36 of the amended Bill, we have retained, by a majority, the provision fixing the minimum salary of the Chairman at Rs. 2,500 per mensem, as without such provision the vesting of the appointment in Government might be made a nullity by the vote of a nominal salary. We think the maximum salary for the Vice-Chairman should be raised to Rs. 1,500.

We have omitted section 45, which provides for the maintenance of a complaint book, because we have satisfied ourselves that the section as it stands causes useless inconvenience. The Municipality is divided into many departments, each with a separate staff of clerks and registers. The entry of complaints in a general complaint book before they are made over to the departmental clerks for entry in the departmental register, causes waste of time and double labour. Consequently, the Secretary, to whose discretion it must be left to determine what is and what is not a complaint, naturally exercises it in favour of expedition and promptitude of work as far as admissible. The question was discussed whether the section might not be amended and a separate complaint book prescribed for each department; but this was open to the objection that, in the case of the great majority of applications, it is difficult to say whether they are complaints or not. This creates no embarrassment when all applications are entered in a register, whether complaints or not; but if one register has to be kept up for applications which are querulous in their character, and a separate register for non-querulous applications, it would obviously cause great inconvenience. No similar section is to be found in the Bombay or other Municipal Acts, and the Committee think that such details of office arrangements should be left to the Commissioners. The registers maintained hitherto are quite sufficient to allow any application to be traced, as well as the action taken on it and the orders passed, and this is all that is requisite.

We have made certain modifications in the law regarding general meetings of the Commissioners, following, as far as possible, the teachings of experience. At present there are 15 to 18 meetings every year, all of them quarterly or special general, because any other kind of meeting is incapable of disposing of certain classes of business. We think that a meeting once a month may well be made obligatory by law. These we call ordinary meetings, and we leave with 10 Commissioners the same right as at present of demanding a meeting whenever they think it necessary and proper to have a special meeting. There is nothing to be gained by making any distinction between the ordinary and special meeting so far as regards the number necessary to constitute a quorum and the circulation of a list of business. A list of business should be laid before every meeting, and this is always done at present.

We have changed the name of the Town Council into that of General Committee. The Town Council in all English Acts is equivalent to the general body of the Corporation, and it is misleading to use the term in a different sense in Calcutta. We have raised the number of this Committee to 18, of which we propose to give 12 to the 50 elected Commissioners, allowing them to elect in such manner as the Commissioners in meeting may determine; three to the 15 nominated Commissioners to be elected in accordance with such rules as Government may prescribe, and the remaining three to be nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, the Trades' Association and Port Commissioners, respectively.

We have made some alterations in the Chapter regarding the taxation of carriages and animals. Only one of these requires special notice. Under the present system it is usually found, when the actual number of carriages and horses kept in any chummery, boarding-house or other place where many families reside, is compared with the number that have taken out licenses, that there is a considerable discrepancy. There is no difficulty in ascertaining which of the carriages and horses are unlicensed, but it is very difficult to ascertain who are the owners of them. The provision to meet this in the present law, section 72 of Bengal Act IV of 1876, is to allow the Commissioners to summon any person whom they have reason to believe to be liable, or his servant, and examine him as, to the number and description of his property or horses. This procedure is so cumbersome, and would give rise to such great dissatisfaction if the wrong person were summoned, that it is found almost useless, and we propose therefore to omit it, and in lieu thereof to allow the Inspector, if he cannot after due warning get the licenses taken out, to attach the carriage or horse under a written order of the Commissioners until the license is taken out. The experience of the Warrant Department, which shows that less than one in a thousand of the distress warrants issued results in a sale, satisfies us that this will prove a summary and effectual remedy. The license will be at once taken out and the carriage or horse released. By requiring an attachment order from the Commissioners, that is the Chairman or Vice-Chairman (section 75 of the amended Bill), we think the provision will be sufficiently protected against any danger of abuse.

We have altogether recast the sections dealing with the tax on trades and professions. The present system is said to work very badly in consequence of the uncertainty arising from the effect of partnerships and from one license covering every kind of business, however radically distinct in character. We have endeavoured to remedy this confusion as far as possible, by systematising the licenses and distinguishing personal from local licenses. We have thrown all these provisions into a Schedule and have somewhat raised the scale for the larger Joint-Stock Companies and places of business. We have also introduced the rule of a minimum fine of one-and-a-half times the license when default necessitates a prosecution (section 81 of the amended Bill). It is very common at present for the Courts only to impose as a penalty the bare license fee. We think it but fair, when a person drives the Commissioners to take him into Court, and when the result proves that he is in the wrong and is a defaulter, that some penalty should be imposed.

We have adopted a very important proposal made by the Hon. Kali Nath Mitter regarding the levy of rates, viz to combine all the rates, after they have once been fixed with reference to the requirements of the various departments, into a consolidated rate, and recover half the amount from owners and the other half from occupiers. It is hoped that it will not only get rid of all the friction which now is caused by one rate falling on one class of tax-payers and another rate on a different class, but will also greatly simplify the work of writing out bills and making the collections.

In section 90 of the amended Bill we have ventured to retain the provision authorising the Commissioners, with the consent of the Local Government, to levy a tax on petroleum brought for storage within the limits of Calcutta. It is not desirable to encourage the storage within Calcutta of petroleum intended for consumption in the mofussil, and now that the petroleum depôt is at Budge Budge, there can be ordinarily no necessity for storing it within municipal limits except for retail sale. We submit that, if dealers choose to store petroleum in Calcutta for their own convenience, and thereby enhance the risk of fire to their neighbours, they may well be called upon to pay a small tax without the right of obtaining a drawback when the petroleum is removed.

In section 106 of the amended Bill, for the valuation of houses and lands, we have made some important alterations. While retaining the gross annual rent at which a house may reasonably be expected to let from year to year as the standard for houses built for letting purposes or ordinarily let, we have, in consequence of the difficulty of applying this test to houses not suitable for letting, fixed for them the standard of 6 per cent. on the estimated cost price after making due allowance for deterioration.

We have also with some hesitation omitted the clause exempting machinery from valuation for assessment purposes. In England, of recent years, the current of decisions is entirely in favour of assessing such machinery as is permanently attached to or built into the structures, and we can see no reason why the rule which is found equitable there should not be equally equitable in India. The effect of leaving out the clause will apparently be that whatever is attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth, will be liable to assessment.

We have made numerous other alterations of less importance in this Chapter, only one of which requires to be noticed. The present law gives an appeal against a valuation made by the Assessor either to a bench of three Commissioners other than Executive Officers of the Corporation, or to the Small Cause Court. The latter appeal we have not touched; we think a Court of Small Causes a tribunal well qualified to try such appeals, and in the few appeals which have been made to it, its decisions are all that could be desired; but we are satisfied that an appellate bench of three Commissioners, unassisted by any officer of experience, has proved a very unsatisfactory tribunal. It is very desirable that in an appellate tribunal of this kind there should be a continuity of decisions for the guidance of the Assessor, the same principle being recognized and applied with some uniformity and consistency; otherwise, if valuations for assessment purposes are made in a haphazard manner, great injustice is done, and an intelligible system becomes an impossibility. This is what happens under the present procedure. The decision of a bench depends entirely on the opinion of 3 out of 72 Commissioners drawn by lot. Such benches can follow no intelligible system, and in a case which came before the High Court, an assessment was quashed, among other reasons, because the Appellate Bench had diminished the valuation on the ground of the appellant having once been a Commissioner. We have grave doubts whether an appeal to a Small Cause Court ought not to be made obligatory; but we are quite satisfied that at least the association of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman with these benches is indispensable so as to give system and continuity to the judgments in appeal.

We have made various modifications in points of detail in the chapters regarding the levying of the rates and the water-supply, but they do not appear to require any special comment.

The chapter regarding the registration of births and deaths has engaged our special attention, but we have not been able to make any improvements on the existing system. Dr. Simpson, who gave us the benefit of his advice on all the sanitary portions of the Bill, desires to see registration of deaths at the Registrars' offices made compulsory, instead of at the office of the Registrar or, with the Sub-Registrar at the burning or burial-ground, as at present. It seems to us that, to be effective, registration with the Registrar must be made a condition precedent to interment or cremation, and this we are not prepared to recommend. The inconvenience which would be caused by keeping a corpse unburnt or uninterred, because the death had not been duly registered, would be extreme, and we cannot advocate this. On the other hand, to make registration at the Registrar's office obligatory after the cremation or interment, would be no practical improvement on the existing system. We think the existing system, if intelligently worked, should suffice to secure accuracy so far as deaths are concerned, especially after the limits of the town have been extended. As regards the causation of death, the present system is avowedly inaccurate, and we have accepted Dr. Simpson's proposal to make it obligatory on all medical men attending cases which terminate fatally to certify the cause of death.

We have made numerous alterations in those portions of the Bill which deal with the conservancy and sanitation of Calcutta. The Health Society placed before us many suggestions for recasting this portion of the Bill, the discussion of which has taken up the greater part of our time. It would be impossible within reasonable limits to give a complete account of these discussions, or of the reasons which have induced us in some cases to accept, in others to reject, the amendments laid before us. The general problem in each case has been to reconcile the close and minute supervision which effective sanitation requires, with the domestic privacy and habits of the people, especially when inquisitorial powers would have to be exercised by a subordinate agency ever ready to convert power into an engine of oppression. We have thought it better to extend the sanitary powers of the Corporation to a considerable extent, when the Health Officer can personally exercise those powers, or when the risk of abuse can be minimised; but we have been unable to recommend the concession of all that has been asked for. This portion of the Bill has been almost re-written and recast, and a reference to a few of the more prominent changes must suffice.

In section 191 of the amended Bill we have borrowed from the draft Bombay Municipal Bill a provision making the occupier primâ facie responsible for the acts of his family or servants in throwing refuse into the streets, unless he proves some other person to be the offender. This seems to have been the intention of the present law, which holds a person liable who 'suffers' such refuse to be deposited, but the courts here and at Bombay have held that this is not sufficient to make the master of the house liable, unless proof of actual permission is adduced, as of course ordinarily cannot be done. At present the promiscuous throwing of refuse into the streets is perhaps the greatest conservancy defect in Calcutta, as it is in Bombay. It is impossible to keep streets clean if the moment the scavenger's cart has passed a fresh instalment of fragments of food and other domestic refuse is thrown out. At present this is done constantly, and it is almost impossible to find out the offending party; such refuse is thrown out of a window, or a door opened for an instant, hardly more than an arm being visible. It seems reasonable to expect every occupier to keep his servants in order in this respect.

In section 200 of the amended Bill we have required the occupier, after a number has once been affixed to his house, to maintain it and replace it if removed or defaced.

We have brought the building regulations regarding huts and the sanitary measures regarding blocks of huts into one part, as the two subjects are so closely allied. In regard to the building of new huts, we have, in section 232 of the amended Bill, materially increased the power of the Commissioners. It was represented to us that it is impossible to exercise adequate control over the erection of a single hut, unless the situation of the huts to be afterwards added is also shown. We have, therefore, authorised the Commissioners to require the owner of the land, which he proposes to let out for huts, to send in a plan showing how future huts are to be built before they sanction any one hut being erected. This will be a very unpopular proposal, we fear, with the owners of bustee lands, but we see no other means of enabling the Commissioners to control the building of new huts effectively. We have also altered the wording of the section so as to make it clear that a free passage must be left before and behind each row of huts, instead of between double rows of huts, as the section was interpreted.

The sections for the enforcement of sanitary measures in blocks of huts have been almost entirely re-written in accordance with the requirements of practical experience in working those sections. The alterations are rather in matters of detail than in principles.

In section 233 of the amended Bill we have authorised the Commissioners in meeting to impose a special rate on the owners of bustees to defray the cost of any establishment they may maintain for the cleansing of bustees.

We have consolidated sections 218, 219, and 220, specifying the powers of the Commissioners as to the construction, repairs, and cleansing of sewers, into one comprehensive section (section 236 of the amended Bill), and we have made it unlawful for any person, not a licensed contractor, to construct a private sewer.

Powers have been conferred on the Commissioners in section 245 of the amended Bill to allow one owner to connect with a private drain laid by another owner on such terms as they, the Commissioners, may think equitable, when such connection is desirable.

We have consolidated the five sections 249 to 253, regarding keeping animals for profit, and made the powers of the Commissioners more clear and definite.

When a tank is filled up by the Commissioners in default of action on the part of the owner, we have, in section 277 of the amended Bill, authorised the Commissioners to retain possession of the filled up tank till the cost is paid. In many cases we find that the Commissioners cannot recover the cost of filling—either the owner lives out of the jurisdiction of the Commissioners, or there is disputed ownership, or the property in the tank changes hands, so that as a fact the Commissioners cannot recover more than half what they spend under this head. It seems perfectly fair that before the owner can make any profits or use out of the filled up tank, he should be bound to pay the bill for filling it up. Moreover, the power conferred in this section is that which is also much needed to make tank-filling more beneficial. At present the moment the tank is filled up, the control of the Commissioners ceases; they cannot plant the newly-made land with trees or grass, as is very desirable, to hasten its conversion into good soil, or exercise any other rights of possession over it. By this section they will be empowered to do all that is necessary before the owner enters into possession, unless he recovers possession by paying the cost, and if in some cases the owner prefers to let the lands remain in the hands of the Commissioners rather than redeem it, the benefit to the public will be great, as the land must be utilised for public purposes and will generally be kept as an open space.

In section 287 of the amended Bill we have authorised the Commissioners in meeting to provide places for the slaughter of goats and the sale of their flesh according to Hindu customs.

The sections of the new Act to prevent the adulteration of ghee have of course been introduced into the new Bill, but we have suggested various amendments in the wording of those sections, the most important being the transfer to the higher Executive Officers of the Corporation, or to any Commissioner, of the power of ordering meat, fish, &c., which is unfit for food, to be destroyed. The rule requiring it to be brought before a Magistrate does not work well in the case of articles which are liable to become offensive so very rapidly.

We have authorised the Commissioners to fix a scale of fees for licenses for offensive and dangerous trades, as is done in Bombay, Madras, and the Suburbs; such licenses are to be instead of, and not in addition to, the ordinary trade license.

In section 301 of the amended Bill we have required persons in charge of burning and burial grounds to maintain registers.

Besides minor amendments in the chapter regarding markets, we have, in section 316, of the amended Bill made it obligatory on meat and fish shops to take out licenses if situated elsewhere than in recognized markets. This we consider a very necessary provision.

In chapter XIII Part IV we have introduced a series of new sections empowering the Commissioners to take measures for the prevention of infectious diseases. These are chiefly borrowed from Bombay, where most of them have been in force since 1878. While open to some objection, the urgent necessity of vesting the Commissioners with sufficient powers to prevent the spread of infection seems to us to justify these sections.

We have proposed several alterations in the chapter regarding the municipal debt, simplifying the rules regarding contributions to the Reserve Fund, and making it clear that the contributions at 1 per cent. are to be reserved for the loans on which they are paid, and not swept away to liquidate the earlier loans as they fall due.

We have thought it desirable to fix a maximum limit to the power of the Commissioners to borrow. Such a limit seems a necessary protection to creditors. The limit we have selected as the best is one which is self-adjusting to the financial capacity of the Corporation, viz., such an amount that the interest and contributions to the Reserve Fund shall not exceed a 10 per cent. rate. The maximum rate being 21 per cent., this leaves 11 per cent. on the annual valuation of the Town for annual expenditure. In round numbers, taking the present rate of interest, and the present valuation of the Town and Suburbs, this will enable the Commissioners to borrow up to a limit of about 300 lakhs.

Section 354 of the amended Bill proposes a novel but very important provision, enabling the Commissioners in meeting, with the sanction of the Local Government, to consolidate their loans, if so advised. One of the greatest impediments to easy borrowing on the part of local bodies is that investments made in their loans cannot easily be realised as they can in the case of Government securities. The loans being so numerous, and subject to different conditions, there are difficulties in buying or selling at the nominal prices, which would be in great measure removed if the loans were consolidated. It is thought probable that, under the proposed arrangement, all holders of municipal debentures, who do not wish to hold permanently, will readily transfer their securities into the consolidated loan at equitable terms, and that henceforth this loan will be in much more favour with investors than municipal loans are at present.

In chapter XVI we have borrowed from the English Public Health Act (38 and 39 Vic., Cap. 55, sections 91 to 98) a procedure for dealing with semi-public nuisances within the municipal area. The existing law in Calcutta, section 346 of Bengal Act IV of 1876, authorises the Commissioners to prosecute for a public nuisance, but leaves it uncertain what constitutes a public nuisance and provides no procedure to enable private persons to set this machinery in motion.

The new chapter enumerates the more ordinary nuisances which require to be prevented, and enables any person aggrieved thereby to move the Commissioners to take action to abate a nuisance according to a reasonable mode of procedure.

In the chapter regarding prosecutions, and in all other places where the term occurs, we have substituted any Magistrate for a Justice of the Peace.

In section 395 of the amended Bill we have introduced a provision authorising the Commissioners to exempt the owner of any hut from all rates. This has been represented to us as necessary, in consequence of the extreme poverty of some of the hut-owners in the Suburbs.

In consequence of the numerous alterations made by us, we recommend that the Bill, as amended, be republished for general comment before it is taken into consideration by the Council.

Our colleague, the Hon'ble H. J. Reynolds, C.S.I., who left before this report could be circulated for signature, authorizes us to say that he concurs generally in the recommendations of the Select Committee.

KALLY NATH MITTER.

Minute of Dissent by the Hon. G Irving.

IT becomes necessary for me to place on record the reasons which have influenced me to dissent from my colleagues in some of the more important conclusions they have arrived at, and which are now embodied in the amended Municipal Bill, and in their report thereon. It will be convenient to do this under the different heads noted below.

Section 4.—The constitution of the Corporation.—A Corporation composed of 75 Commissioners will be, in my judgment, a very unwieldy body. I cannot overlook the fact that Sir Henry Harrison himself, in his note on the constitution of the proposed Metropolitan Municipality, has very properly and unreservedly admitted the paramount importance of the commercial interests in Calcutta. He says, page 22 of the report of the Amalgamation Committee:—

Paragraph 6.—"I deduce from these considerations the following essential principles for the successful working of a metropolitan municipality:—

(1) That all the more important interests should be truly and effectually represented.

(2) That no one interest should obtain such a predominance in numbers as to enable it to carry its point against reason and justice.

Paragraph 7.—Now, what are the chief interests in the metropolis of India?

(a) By far the first in importance is the commercial interest. It is to the fact that Calcutta is the emporium of the trade and commerce of Bengal that the high value of property in it is due, and that employment is found for more than half the persons who obtain a livelihood in it. Let Calcutta remain, as at present, the seat of Imperial and Local Governments, and yet if the Hooghly was closed and the Mutlah left unused, if all its commerce deserted Calcutta for some new port, the value of property in the town would be depreciated more than 60 per cent., and one-fourth of the inhabitants would have to leave it. We only have to compare the value of land in Calcutta with that in Madras to see this."

No system of representation is admissible which does not give full effect to the circumstance that the very existence of Calcutta depends on its commerce and on the class that has established it. No argument drawn from mere area or population should have any weight in this matter; and I am constrained to point out that I believe the proportion of Anglo-Indian and Native representatives proposed in the new Bill will in practice be really less effective than is secured by the present system

I submit that no argument can be advanced against the Anglo-Indian community from the fact of their not coming forward readily under the present system, inasmuch as they are regularly outvoted, and practically effaced, by the undue preponderance of native members in the present Corporation. I have no hesitation in saying that if, under a better system of representation, the Anglo-Indian community had any chance of having a fair voice and an opportunity of doing real practical work, no difficulty whatever would be felt in getting experienced business men, whose help and counsel would be invaluable, to come orward as municipal representatives. To maintain or intensify an admittedly defective system is, therefore, to ensure the exclusion from municipal government of the very interest which Sir Henry Harrison has declared to be of by far the first importance.

I feel assured, however, that in order to secure this end, it will be necessary, as I urged in special committee, to enlarge and re-adjust the wards in the town.

Section 8 (g) —Fellows and Graduates of the University of Calcutta.—I object to the provisions of the Bill which confer a voting power on this class. I submit that there is no educational interest in the municipality which would entitle fellows and graduates to votes. The argument from the English practice of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge returning members to Parliament does not even remotely apply, inasmuch as those universities represent, first, an ecclesiastical, and afterwards a large landed, interest in the various endowments attached to those ancient seats of learning in different parts of Great Britain.

Section 29. sub-section 7.—Contributions towards the establishment and maintenance of primary schools and patshalas.

On full consideration of the proposal, I object to the appropriation of municipal funds to these objects for the following, amongst other, reasons:—

(a) Education is a State and not a municipal concern; and the State and not municipalities should (and as a fact does in this country) provide for it in its schemes of taxation. I cannot but regard the proposal as serving to extend municipal control towards matters which, for a very long time to come, should, in my opinion, either be left in the hands of Government, or in the case of primary schools of the people, but which certainly should not be in the hands of a Municipality, which has enough of legitimate work to attend to apart from education.

(b) The duty of contributing towards schools of this class necessarily carries with it an obligation of inspection, which, in addition to expense, is in its turn calculated to result in a possible conflict between the Government and municipal authorities.

(c) The establishment of schools, even though sanctioned by the Act, would, in my opinion, be a most unjust burden on rate-payers of all classes, inasmuch as it would serve to divert purely municipal funds, which are urgently needed for such pressing sanitary purposes as the extension of the water-supply, of efficient sewers, of new roads, of bustee improvement, &c., &c., to the purposes of education.

Section 45, old Act.—The complaint book.—I regard this—though in a certain sense a matter of comparatively minor importance—as furnishing a very necessary check upon the performance of executive work, which should be retained. The complaint book is a safeguard if properly worked, and therefore a most useful provision.

Section 97.—Consolidated rate.—Although from a merely executive point of view this may be a convenience, it is, in my opinion, an objectionable proposal. In practice, it will serve to impose an increased burden on the tenant, for it must be remembered that landholders have adjusted their rents to the present, or probably a higher, incidence of taxation, and that they will not, on any such consolidation of taxes as is proposed, willingly depart from their adjustments for the sake of their tenants.

Section 112.—Assessment of machinery.—I object to the omission of the clause exempting machinery from assessment purposes. It can hardly be contended that the conditions of life here and in England are identical, and it is obvious that the establishment of any factory contributes materially to the prosperity of the neighbouring community. Again, it must be admitted that buildings containing heavy machinery are as costly as ordinary buildings covering the same area; and, therefore, if the rating is on the building only, it will yield a fair and proportionate return. Moreover, in a purely agricultural country everything should be done to foster such industries, and not to handicap them.

Section 139.—The water-supply.—I consider the saving clause in section 139, "so far as may be reasonably practicable," should be omitted. There can be nothing unreasonable in requiring the Commissioners to maintain the moderate pressure prescribed in the section for the very limited interval of two hours in the forenoon and one hour in the afternoon. The provision is one which would assuredly be enforced against any private water company, and I consider it imperative to provide that duties and obligations such as this—the maintenance of an efficient pressure—which, in the interests of the public, must after all be imposed on the Corporation, should be as definitely and as unmistakeably laid down in the Act as the provisions in regard to taxation.

Sections 162-171.—Registration of births and deaths.—Referring to the provisions of section 171, the responsibility for death registration being vested by section 165 in the District Registrar, the certificates required of the Sub-Registrar are, in my opinion, indispensable, as the only means enabling the District Registrar to ascertain the particulars of all deaths occurring within his district. It is the express object of the law to make each District Registrar responsible for the work of registration within his district, and the certificates furnished to him by the Sub-Registrar will be, in my judgment, the only check available to him, containing as they will do the data, respecting which he is required to "inform himself" and to "ascertain" full particulars.

It is a subject for regret that there is no provision in the new Bill to fix the minimum width of streets. Experience has found it necessary in all other countries to do this, and the conditions of life in Calcutta are such as to make such a provision doubly necessary.

GEO. IRVING.

Minute of Dissent by the Hon. Baboo Kally Nath Mitter.

I HAVE signed the report of the Select Committee subject to reservations on several important points, which I shall proceed to enumerate, giving shortly the reasons why I disagree with the majority of my hon'ble colleagues.

2 Proposal to reduce the proportion of nominated members before the present law was passed.—I certainly think that the time has come when the Local Government should make further concessions to the cause of Local Self-Government. Shortly before the present Municipal law was passed the then Lieutenant-Governor, with a view to comply with certain representations made to him, expressed his willingness to support the proposal for the reduction of the Government nominees to one-fourth of the total number of Commissioners, but the majority of his Council being then of a different opinion, the proposal was not carried. The voting was as follows:—

For the proposal.	Against the proposal.
Hon. Kristodas Pal.	Hon. Nawab Syud Asghur Ally.
Hon. Mr. Reynolds.	Mr Brookes.
	Baboo Ram Sunker Sen.
	„ Jogendro Sing.
	Mr. Bell.
	Sir Stuart Hogg.
	Mr. Dampier.

It is a matter of very great satisfaction to me, and certainly to a very large number of my countrymen, to find that my distinguished friend, the Hon. Mr. Reynolds, was in favour of the proposal. This discussion took place in the year 1876. Since then more than ten years have elapsed, which I take it is a sufficiently long period to justify inferences being drawn either for or against the elective system.

3. Administration of the town by the present Commissioners.—The duties which the Commissioners have to perform necessarily create enemies for them, but I am certain if the administration reports of the Corporation for the past ten years are carefully studied by a disinterested person, he will have no reason to regret that the Government of Sir Richard Temple thought fit to sanction the present elective system in the municipal administration of the town. I am not wholly without authority for making this statement, for the administration of the town by the Commissioners has been criticised by persons eminently qualified to do so. I mean the Army Sanitary Commission, and the testimony of this body can at any moment be placed before the public to the credit of the Commissioners. I suppose those who advocate the proposition that the proportion of the nominated members should be kept intact will not contend that it is either expedient or judicious to formally declare that under no circumstances this proportion be reduced.

4. Select Committee's recommendation.—The Select Committee, however, have recommended certain changes which are in favour of the expansion of elective principles, but their proposal has not wholly satisfied me. In the first place, I am inclined to think that it is a mistake to put any restriction upon the system of election; and secondly I cannot understand why the privilege of election should be confined to any particular bodies to the exclusion of others. The hon'ble member in charge of the Bill expressly declared that he thought that the proportion of one-third was hardly sufficient, and on the 27th of November last, when he moved for the Bill being referred to a Select Committee, he gave his reasons at length. I admit that the arguments adduced by him would have been unanswerable ten years ago; but now, with the experience we have obtained during ten years of municipal administration, I feel emboldened to controvert them. The elections which have taken place conclusively show that the different communities did not return their candidates according to the number of the voters of each class, but on the contrary it shows that the election was principally influenced by the amount of interest taken by any particular community.

5. Elections in 1876, 1879, 1882, and 1885.—The following table gives the result of the elections in 1876, 1879, 1882, and 1885, together with the number of voters registered on each occasion:—

	Registered voters.	Number of Commissioners elected.
Hindoos	4,556	41
Mahomedans	289	3
Other nationalities	199	4
1879.
Hindoos	6,025	39
Mahomedans	604	3
Other nationalities	877	6
1882.
Hindoos	9,194	32
Mahomedans	850	5
Other nationalities	1,363	11
1885.
Hindoos	7,827	27
Mahomedans	1,064	8
Other nationalities	1,105	13

This statement shows that as the Mahomedans and other nationalities have taken greater interest in the election, they have been able to return a larger number of members from their own communities.

The number of Hindoo Commissioners as returned by the last election has answered exactly the same proportion as was contemplated by the Legislature in 1876.

6. Election of Mahomedan Members.—The result of voting does not favour the supposition that voters give their votes according to the nationality of the candidate: on the contrary, it shows that persons of position are selected apart from the consideration of nationality. To illustrate my meaning, I subjoin a table showing the number of Mahomedan Commissioners elected, the number of voters who voted for each of them, and the total number of the registered Mahomedan voters in each of the wards in which they were elected—

Ward No.	Names of elected Commissioners.	Number of registered Mahomedan voters.	Number of voters who actually voted for this candidate.
8	Moulvi Buddorooddin Hyder ...	260	293
9	Dr. Zohoruddin	76	214
13	Moulvi Fazzel Rahman ...	159	188
14	Ahmed	441	261
	A. F. M. AbdurRahaman ...		180
15	Moulvi Zoomul Huq	119	115
	Sirajul Islam		98
17	Aga Mahomed Mendee ...	16	32

7. Conclusion drawn in favour of reduction.—It is clear from the above statement that a large number of Hindoo voters voted for Mahomedans. And if enquiry were made it would also appear that a large number of Hindoo voters voted for candidates belonging to the other nationalities. The idea that Government or any interest will suffer if the proportion of the nominated members be reduced is entirely an erroneous one. I am not aware of a single instance where there has been class voting against class, or nominated Commissioners against elected Commissioners. The letter of the Chairman of the Corporation, dated 15th November, 1886, which sets forth some of the amendments suggested by the Commissioners, gives the particulars of voting by them on the question of reduction of the proportion of the nominated members, which shows that of the 20 Commissioners who voted against the reduction, 12 were elected and 8 were nominated, thus affirming my statement that the voting does not take place class against class, or nominated Commissioners against elected Commissioners.

8. Hindoo Commissioners preponderate.—It is said that the ratio of Hindoo representatives is far in excess of that which is desirable. Those who hold this opinion are perhaps not aware of the immense permanent interest the Hindoos have in the town. I have had a statement prepared showing 100 of the largest rate-payers of the town, without including the Government buildings, and of them I find that 58 are Hindoos, who pay total sum of Rs 55,411-6; 22 are Europeans and other nationalities, who pay Rs. 22,581-1-9; 6 of them are Mahomedans, who pay the sum of Rs. 5,425-3-9; and 4 of them are Jews, who pay Rs. 13,037-1-3. Besides the above, the Bonded Warehouse pays Rs. 3,158-1-6, the Official Trustee Rs. 2,235-15 6, Bank of Bengal Rs. 1,938, Administrator-General Rs. 1,745-2-6, Receiver, High Court, Rs. 1,209-15-3, Oriental Bank Rs. 850, and Agra Bank Rs. 612; and it is a fact which cannot be gainsaid that as you go lower down the list of rate-payers you will find that the Hindoos pay far the largest amount of tax.

9 Adequate representation of trade and commerce.—Another argument urged against the reduction is that because Calcutta owes its present position to trade and commerce, therefore those interests ought to be more adequately represented. I maintain, however, that with election, pure and simple, and with the aid of nomination on a considerably less scale than at present, it will be quite possible to secure an adequate representation of these interests, if the persons who represent them will come forward with same zeal as the Hindoos do and take the same trouble in getting their candidates returned

10. "Government interests." It has also been argued that the Government interests are so great that it will not be safe to reduce the number of the nominated Commissioners. Now there is of course no doubt that the interests of Government ought to be fully protected, but nothing has been adduced to show that if the number of nominees be reduced to one-fourth, the interests of Government will be endangered. It is perhaps not very well known that Government does not pay more than one-tenth of the rates and taxes, and surely when this is remembered the power to nominate one-fourth of the whole body of the Commissioners does not seem to be inadequate. With a view of protecting the interests of trade and commerce and other general interests, and of strengthening the minority represented by the other nationalities, the Select Committee have recommended that four Commissioners should be elected by the Chamber of Commerce, four by the Trades' Association, and two by the Port Commissioners.

11. Number of Commissioners.—The suggestion which I have to make is an important one in principle, but if adopted it is not likely that any special interest will suffer. I would recommend that the number of Commissioners should be fixed at 80, exclusive of the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman. Of these, 60 should be elected and 20 nominated by Government. Of the 25 wards in which Calcutta has been divided, the wards Nos 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 12, 13, 15, 16 and 17 should elect three, and the remaining wards two, members. This mode of election will secure the return of five more representatives of the other nationalities than will be the case if every ward is allowed to elect only two members. And as according to this scheme Government would have five more members to nominate than are provided for by the Select Committee, the opportunity might be taken to nominate proper representatives of the minorities. And so the intention of the Select Committee to add 10 more of the other nationalities to the number of the Commissioners would, to all intents and purposes, be carried into effect. I might point out that at the last election two of the elected Commissioners were also Commissioners for the Port of Calcuttta, that one was a Member of the Trades and another a merchant, and I am positive that if the European community will take greater interest in getting qualified voters to come forward and register themselves as voters, they will be in a position to return a larger number of merchants and traders in the body of the Commissioners. Under the present Bill provision has been made for the Chairman of the Corporation to prepare the list of voters, and therefore the trouble for applying to be registered as voters will no longer exist, and necessarily a much larger number of voters will be able to take part in the next election.

12. Controlling section.—At the instance of the Hon. Mr. Macaulay, the majority of the Select Committee has substituted for the controlling sections of the Bill the drastic measure to be found in the English Health Act and in the Bombay Municipal Act. This I consider a retrograde movement. The only reason assigned for the change, is that the sections in the present law provide a cumbrous and unworkable procedure When the Municipal Bill of 1875 was in the first instance settled by the Select Committee, a similar provision to that now proposed was inserted in spite of strong opposition by two of the members. This action of the then Select Committee evoked powerful opposition from the public, and various bodies made strong representations to the then Lieutenant-Governor on the subject. The consequence was that the Council referred back the Bill to the Select Committee, with liberty to examine delegates who were willing to appear before it, and also to hear counsel on behalf of the Justices.

After a good deal of discussion, the Select Committee adopted the present controlling sections, and when the matter finally came on for discussion before the Council, those sections were adopted without any objection, and the then Lieutenant-Governor (Sir Richard Temple) was pleased to express his entire approval of them. Under such circumstances, it certainly seems to me that the proposed change is not only not desirable, but wholly inexpedient, inasmuch as the semi-independence which the Corporation now possesses will be completely taken away from it.

13. English constitution compared with that of Calcutta.—It will not be forgotten that the constitution of the Corporation of Calcutta is such that the Government is able at all times to have a potent voice in the administration of the town, whereas the corporate body of an English town is wholly independent of the Local Government Board. In England the Government has no power to nominate a single Town Councillor nor to appoint their Chairman, while in Calcutta the Government reserves to itself the power of nominating a large number of the Commissioners and of appointing their Chairman.

Then again a large English town has the privilege of being represented in Parliament, which is of itself an effectual safeguard against the capricious exercise of power on the part of the Local Government Board.

As the section now stands, the Government has only to be satisfied that default has been committed by the Commissioners to justify action being taken under it. It is very difficult to say what would satisfy the Government. To supersede the Commissioners without a public enquiry (as provided by the present law) is a proposal open to the gravest objection

14. Controlling power as should be.—In my opinion, to make the Government control effectual and wholesome, it should be limited only to certain cases, as was forcibly pointed out by one of the members of the Commission appointed by the Local Government some time ago. I cannot do better than quote his own language:—"It is one of the most important duties of the Executive Government to see that the experiment of Local Self-Government shall not fail through the pertinacious neglect, through the sloth, or through the continued incompetency of any local representative body. Not to do so would be to betray the policy which we are advocating, and to abandon those interests that we have most nearly at heart We wish to use the local body to the utmost in the management of local affairs; we desire to secure them from hasty or needless interference; we desire to deal with them with utmost patience; but on the other hand, we do not intend that they should be permitted to obstruct the solid good of their fellow-citizen in any case in which they may show themselves permanently unwilling to discharge the duties entrusted to them."

15 Nomination of Chairman—I unsuccessfully moved in the Select Committee that the Commissioners should have power by law of nominating a proper and fit person for being appointed as their Chairman. I have not been able to understand the reason for precluding the Commissioners from having any voice in the appointment of their Chairman. Most of the mofussil municipalities have been allowed the privilege, and yet it is to be denied to the metropolis. As the law at present stands, the Chairman has the uncontrolled power of filling up all appointments, the emolument of which is below Rs. 200, and he has the power of nomination in respect of all appointments, with certain exceptions, the salary of which is above that sum, subject to the confirmation of the Commissioners; and all superior appointments are left entirely to the Commissioners, subject to the sanction of the Local Government. It seems to me that it will be only confirming the policy already recognized in the law if in the appointment of their Chairman the Commissioners are allowed the privilege of nomination.

16. Fixing minimum pay of the Chairman.—I object to the innovation introduced in section 36 of the Bill, as it might be considered as an unjustifiable slur on the Commissioners. I am not aware of any reason why it has become necessary to modify the existing law.

17. Number of General Committee—I think my hon'ble colleagues have committed a grievous mistake in fixing the number of the General Committee at 18. They have adopted the recommendation of the Amalgamation Committee in respect of the reduction of the number of the Town Council, while they have by a large majority rejected the other recommendation of pecuniary remuneration to its members. I have no hesitation in saying that so long as the members of the General Committee are not to be paid, the objection on the ground of the excessive number of its members is of no validity. At present the number of the Town Council, which is changed in the present Bill into a General Committee, is 30. It is said that the number is too large for business purposes, but I do not believe that the average attendance of its members exceeds 14, and if so, where is the inconvenience on the ground of number? There is no doubt that on some occasion there is a full attendance of its members, but on such rare and special occasions there is a decided gain by having a full discussion, and thus avoiding a warm debate by the Commissioners in meeting I will not dilate on this subject further, for I have fully discussed it in the following extract from my note of dissent to the report of the Amalgamation Committee:—"It is a matter of regret to me that I am unable to concur with the majority of the Committee on the proposal to reduce the numerical strength of the Town Council The objection to the present number is that it is unusually large, and that when all the members attend it is impossible to preserve order or secure a fair hearing to each member in turn. The inconvenience complained of is not such as is impossible to overcome. So long as there is no chance of pecuniary gain, a larger attendance than half the number can only be expected on rare and special occasions, and the inconvenience therefore will be felt only now and again. Under such circumstances, I really think it will be a mistake to reduce the number, which, in my opinion, is likely to impair the utility, efficiency, and representative character of the Town Council Even admitting that the present number is inconveniently large for a town of six miles, it does not follow that the same objection will hold good when an area extending over 12 square miles is added to it. There can be no doubt that the members of the Town Council, by virtue of the services which they are called upon to render to the Corporation, from week to week gain such valuable experience as to render them peculiarly well fitted for representing the town, and it seems to me to be essential to ensure the success of the scheme of Local Self-Government in Calcutta that a large number of the Commissioners should be allowed to have a thorough insight into the affairs of the Corporation, which they are only likely to have by becoming members of the Town Council. Again by the scheme proposed, one Commissioner is supposed to represent two wards: the question is whether he is likely to represent them adequately. So far as his election to the Corporation is concerned, he will be a stranger to the ward which has not returned him, and it is not unnatural to suppose that he will not take the same interest on its behalf as he would do on behalf of his own ward, for the simple reason that his election by the rate-payers of his ward will impose upon him the obligation to look after their interests, and thereby secure his future election to the Corporation, whereas the same reason will not hold good in respect of those who have never elected him. Besides, the rate payers of one ward will not have the same facility as those of the other in having their grievances attended to by a Commissioner who has not been elected by them, and it will frequently happen that three or four contiguous wards will elect some of the most well-qualified Commissioners, only one or two of whom, as must frequently happen, will be elected to serve in the Town Council, which, in my opinion, will impair the efficiency of that body. The majority of the Committee has felt this difficulty and suggested a mode to meet it in the concluding portion of paragraph 29 of the report, but the number to be elected by the general body of the Commissioners is so small that it is not likely to remedy the evil complained of, but on the contrary is more likely to cause heart-burning and dissatisfaction on the part of those well-qualified Commissioners who are excluded from the Town Council. There is another serious objection to the reduction of the number, namely that it will facilitate the formation of small parties, the stronger of whom will carry everything before them, not always to the benefit of the town The ground suggested for the reduction of the number has already been adverted to, but the real ground, as I am inclined to think, is that the commercial members of the Corporation will not give their time and attention to municipal affairs unless they are remunerated by fees; and as it will be excessively expensive to remunerate 30, the number has necessarily to be reduced. I would sooner recommend the non-payment of fees than the reduction of the number of the members of the Town Council. I certainly think that, while payment of fees might ensure the attendance of the commercial members, it will afford an inducemnt to several Commissioners to return those who, by virtue of relationship or position, may influence the largest number of voters to the prejudice of those who are really efficient, and who would certainly have been elected but for this money consideration."

18. Extraordinary power of seizing carriages and horses.—I object to the latter part of section 75 and to section 76 The power intended to be given is not expedient, inasmuch as it is likely to offer a premium for negligence to the inspectors, and will in many cases prove a successful engine of oppression.

19. Other objectionable measures.—My dissent has already become a much larger document than I anticipated, and I will therefore not refer to the other objectionable proposals in detail. I will deal with them when the Bill comes on for discussion before the Council. These proposals are chiefly those embodied in the Bill by the Select Committee in the Chapter of sanitary measures and the proposal contained in section 277 authorizing the Commissioners to take forcible possession of filled-up tanks and to retain them till the costs of filling up are paid.

(a) which are the property of the Government;

(b) which are the property of the Commissioners of Calcutta or Howrah, or of any adjacent Municipalities; or

(c) which are kept at any place more than eight miles distant from Government House and are only temporarily and casually used within the Municipality of Calcutta or Howrah.

On failure to register, the Commissioners may seize and sell cart and animals.

89. If any person owns or keeps any cart hereinbefore required to be registered, without having caused the same to be registered, the Commissioners, or any officer authorized by them in that behalf, may seize such cart (provided the same be not employed at the time of the seizure in the conveyance of passengers or goods), together with the animals or cattle drawing the same, and may detain them.

And all Police Officers shall, on the application of the Commissioners or their officers, as aforesaid, seize and detain any such cart, animals or cattle.

If the cart, animals, or cattle so seized be not claimed within ten days, they may be sold by auction by order of a Magistrate, and the proceeds of such sale may be applied to the expenses incurred on account of the seizure, detention, and sale; and the surplus (if any), if not claimed within a further period of twenty days, shall be paid to the General Fund of the Municipality of Calcutta.

PART IV.—Of the Tax on Petroleum.

Levy of tax on petroleum.

90. The Commissioners may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, levy a tax not exceeding four annas a case on all petroleum brought for storage or consumption within the limits of Calcutta.

CHAPTER IV.

OF RATES.

PART I.—Of imposing the Rates.

Rates.

91. The Commissioners may, as provided in section 67, impose the following rates upon all houses and lands within the town—

(a) A general rate not exceeding 13 per cent. on the annual valuation.

(b) A water-rate not exceeding 6 per cent. on the annual valuation:

Provided that houses and lands, no part of which is within 150 yards of the nearest stand-pipe or other supply of filtered water available to the public, shall pay 3 per cent. less than houses otherwise situated.

(c) A lighting-rate not exceeding 2 per cent. on the annual valuation.

The water-rate shall be annually fixed by the Commissioners with reference to the expenditure estimated to be necessary to pay the interest on, and charges for the repayment of, the sums borrowed for the construction and extension of the water-works, and to maintain the efficiency of the supply of filtered and unfiltered water during the ensuing year.

The lighting-rate shall be annually fixed by the Commissioners with reference to the expenditure estimated to be necessary to maintain the efficient lighting of Calcutta during the ensuing year.

The general rate shall be determined with reference to all the other requirements of the Corporation, and grants may be made from it to supplement the insufficiency of the water-rate or lighting rate if those rates are levied at the maximum, but not otherwise; but no contribution may be made from the proceeds of the water-rate or lighting-rate in aid of the general funds of the Corporation.

These three rates, after having been determined annually as above in accordance with the procedure laid down in Chapter II, Part V, shall be levied as one consolidated rate, and the collections made on account of this rate divided between the general fund, the water-supply fund, and the lighting fund in the proportions at which the rates are being levied for the time being, without reference to the year on account of which each payment is made.

Rate by whom and when payable.

92. The consolidated rate shall be payable half by the owners of the houses and lands, and half by the occupiers thereof. It shall be payable on the 1st April, 1st July, 1st October and 1st January for the quarters respectively commencing on those dates.

PART II.—Of the Owner's share of the Consolidated Rate.

If assessment be made at a higher annual value than the amount paid by the occupier, owner may recover difference from him.

93. If the annual value of any house or land as determined under Chapter V shall in any case exceed the amount of rent payable by the occupier to the owner, the owner may in such case recover from the occupier the difference between the sum assessed upon him as the owner's share of the consolidated rate and the sum at which he would have been assessed had the house been valued only at the amount of rent actually payable to him, and such difference shall be added to the rent payable by the occupier, and shall be recoverable by the owner from him.

Remission of house-rate when house vacant.

94. When any house or land whereon the consolidated rate is assessed under Chapter V has been vacant for sixty consecutive days during any year, the person liable to pay the owner's share of the consolidated rate shall, if notice in writing be given to the Commissioners of such house or land being vacant, be liable to pay only one-fourth of the consolidated rate due on account of the period of vacancy—the period of vacancy being calculated from the date on which the notice is delivered; if more than one-fourth of the consolidated rate has been paid in advance, the surplus shall, on demand, be refunded.

No remission unless application be made within six months from vacancy.

95. No refund shall be made under the last preceding section unless the same shall be applied for within six months from the date of vacancy of the house or land on account of which the remission is applied for.

PART III.—Of the Occupier's share of the Consolidated Rate.

Refund of water-rate when house ceases to be occupied.

96. When any house or land whereon the consolidated rate is assessed under Chapter V is vacant, the person liable to pay the occupier's share of the rate up to the period of such vacancy shall, if he has paid for the whole quarter, be entitled to a refund of all the rate paid by him for the period during which the house is vacant, or for the period during which it may have been occupied by a new occupier, if notice shall have been given in writing to the Commissioners of such house or land being vacant; and the date of vacancy shall be calculated from the date of delivery of such notice at the office of the Commissioners.

No refund of rates unless application made within six months from vacancy.

97. No refund of rates shall be made under the last preceding section unless the same is applied for within six months from the date of cessation of occupation of the house or land on account of which the refund is applied for.

Rate payable on house or land becoming occupied.

98. Whenever any house or land which shall have been unoccupied shall be occupied during any quarter, there shall be forthwith payable in respect of such house or land the full occupier's share of the consolidated rate for the period between the date of occupation and the last day of the quarter.

Person sub-letting to different persons to be deemed occupier.

99. Whenever any person holding any house or land at a rent from the person liable to pay the house-rate has or may sublet the same to different persons holding in severalty, the person so holding shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the occupier of such house or land.

Power to assess owners in certain cases.

100. If any house is occupied by more than one person holding in severalty, or is valued at less than two hundred rupees, or if the owner of the house is not the owner of the land on which it stands, the Commissioners may impose the entire consolidated rate upon the owner of such house, or upon the owner of the land on which such house is situated, making a deduction not exceeding one-sixteenth of the entire rate payable by such owner to cover the cost of collection.

Owner to recover from occupier water-rate paid by owner.

101. If the entire rate is paid by the owner of any house under the last preceding section, such owner may, if there be but one occupier of the house, recover from such occupier half of the rate so paid by such owner; and if there be more than one occupier, he may recover from each occupier half of such sum as shall bear to the entire amount of rate so paid by him the same proportion as the value of the portion of the house in the occupation of such person bears to the entire value of such house.

Owner to recover from occupier police and lighting-rates paid by owner.

102. When the owner of the house is not the owner of the land on which it stands, the Commissioners shall value the land and the house standing on it separately and the owner of the land, if he has been required to pay the entire consolidated rate under section 100, may recover from the owner of the house half the consolidated rate paid by him for the land on which the house stands, and the entire consolidated rate payable on account of the house.

Owner to have same power for recovering rates as for recovering rent.

103. Every owner who, under the provisions of the two last preceding sections, may be entitled to recover any sum from the occupier of any house or of any portion thereof, shall have for the recovery of such sum all such and the same remedies, powers, rights, and authorities as if such sum were rent payable to him by the occupier in respect of such portion of the house as may be in his occupation.

Occupier of house or land may be required to furnish name of owner.

104. The Commissioners may require the occupier of any house or land to furnish them, within one month, with the name and address of the owner of such house or land, and such name and address, when so received shall be duly entered in the 'assessment book' kept under section 117.

On failure occupier liable to owner's rates.

105. If the occupier of any house or land shall refuse or neglect to furnish the information so required of him under the last preceding section, he shall be liable to pay the rates payable by the owner on account of such house or land, and on non-payment thereof, the Commissioners may recover the same by distress and sale of any moveable property found in the house or on the land:

Provided that no arrear of rate which has remained due from the owner of any house or land, for more than one year, shall be so recovered from the occupier thereof.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE ASSESSMENT OF HOUSES AND LAND.

Annual value of house or land how to be ascertained.

106. For the purpose of assessment under this Act, the annual value of land and the annual value of any house built for letting purposes or ordinarily let shall be the gross annual rent at which such land or house might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, and the annual value of any house not built for letting purposes and not ordinarily let shall be six per centum on the sum obtained by adding the estimated cost of building, less a reasonable amount to be deducted on account of depreciation, if any, to the estimated value of the land on which the house stands:

Provided that all the unoccupied land, roads, and slopes of the Port Commissioners shall be rated at the rent for which the said land, roads, or slopes might be reasonably expected to let in the same manner as if the said land, roads, and slopes were used for other than public purposes, and belonged to persons other than a public body, save and except the road extending from the northern boundary of the premises occupied by the East Indian Railway Company at Armenian Ghât to the Chitpore Canal, and the road extending from the Chitpore Road to the river Hooghly at Comartollah Ghât, for a width not exceeding seventy feet and sixty feet respectively, which shall be exempted from assessment of any rate under this Act.

Annual value to be assessed by the Commissioners, valuation to remain in force for six years.

107. All valuations made by the Commissioners prior to the commencement of this Act shall remain in force during the period for which they were so made, and on the expiration of such period, the annual value at which any house or land is to be assessed shall be fixed by the Commissioners, for a period of six years and thereafter for successive periods of six years.

Intermediate valuation in certain cases.

108. Any house or land the valuation of which may have been cancelled on the ground of irregularity, or which for any other reason may have no annual value legally assigned to it, may be valued at any time under section 106 for such period as remains unexpired in the district in which it is included under section 112.

When substantial improvement made, Commissioners may re-assess.

109. If during the currency of any period mentioned in section 107 any substantial alteration and improvement is made to any such house or land, the Commissioners may cause such house or land to be again valued, even though such period has not expired, and such last-mentioned valuation shall be in force, and the rate shall be imposed according to it until the expiration of the said period of valuation.

When substantial injury done Commissioners may re-assess.

110. If during the currency of any period mentioned in section 107 the value of such house or land shall suffer depreciation from any cause proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners to have been beyond the control of the owner or occupier thereof, the Commissioners shall as soon as practicable, on application being made to them in writing by the owner or occupier of such house or land, cause such house or land to be again valued, even though the current period of valuation has not expired, and such last mentioned valuation shall be in force, and the rate shall be imposed according to it, until the expiration of the said period of valuation:

Provided that if any substantial alteration and improvement shall be made, prior to the expiration of the said period of assessment, to the house or land which shall have been again assessed as aforesaid, the Commissioners may cause such house or land to be again assessed as under section 109.

Annual value fixed to be entered in a book.

(e) amount of rate payable quarterly.

This information may be contained in as many books as the Commissioners may, from time to time, determine which shall together constitute a book to be called the "assessment book."

When the name of the owner or occupier is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him in the assessment book as the "owner" or "occupier":

Provided that any owner or occupier may at any time apply to the Commissioners to have his name entered as owner or occupier in the assessment book and the Commissioners shall, unless they see reason to refuse such application, (which refusal shall be in writing) cause such name to be entered in the assessment book.

No owner or occupier whose name is not entered in the assessment book shall be entitled to object that any bill, notice of demand, warrant or other notice of any kind required by this Act to be served on the owner or occupier of any house or land, has not been made out in his own name

New valuation or measurement to be made.

112. For the purpose of valuing the houses and lands for a period of six years the Commissioners shall divide Calcutta into such and so many districts as they may think fit, and proceed to make a separate valuation district by district, and shall enter the same in the assessment book.

Returns may be required for purpose of valuation.

113. The Commissioners may require the owner or occupier of any house or land to furnish them with returns of the measurements and of the rent or annual value thereof; and the Commissioners, or any person authorized by them in that behalf, may at any time between the hour of seven in the forenoon and sunset enter on, and inspect, survey, and measure such house or land after giving a notice in writing of not less than twenty-four hours.

Penalty.

114. Whoever refuses or fails to furnish any such return for the space of one week from the day on which he shall have been required so to do, or knowingly makes a false or incorrect return, and whoever hinders, obstructs, or prevents any Commissioner, or any person appointed by the Commissioners as aforesaid, from entering or inspecting or measuring any such house or land shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees for every such offence.

Public notice of valuation to be given.

115. When the valuation of any of the districts into which Calcutta may have been divided by the Commissioners in accordance with the provisions of section 112 shall have been completed, the Commissioners shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the statement of valuations of all the houses and lands included in such district may be inspected. Such notice shall be by advertisement in at least two English newspapers, and in two Vernacular newspapers, published in Calcutta, and also by placards posted up in conspicuous places throughout such district;

And the person in whose custody the statement of valuations may be shall permit any person being the owner or occupier of any house or land included in the district or the agent of such owner or occupier, to inspect the records and to make extracts therefrom without payment of any fee, and any person, not being such owner or occupier to inspect and make extracts, in like manner, on payment of a fee of one rupee in respect of each entry extracted.

Appeals.

117. Appeals against any valuation made by the Commissioners under this Chapter shall lie—

(a) to a bench consisting of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman and not less than three Commissioners; or Notice to be given by person appealing.

118. Any person desiring to appeal against any valuation made under this Chapter, shall, within fifteen days after the publication of the notice referred to in section 115 or after receipt of the notice referred to in section 116 when such notice is received after the publication of the notice referred to in section 115, deliver at the office of the Commissioners a notice in writing stating the grounds of appeal, and also informing the Commissioners whether he intends to appeal under clause (a) or (b) of the last preceding section.

No appeal shall lie as hereinbefore provided unless the amount of the house-rate for one quarter, at the former valuation has been deposited with the Commissioners, and unless the appeal is preferred by the person who at the time the appeal is made shall be recorded in the said book as the owner of the house or land to which the appeal refers, or by the occupier thereof, or by the agent of either of them.

Alteration or amendment of assessment

122 The Chairman or Vice-Chairman may at any time amend the assessment book by inserting therein the name of any person whose name ought to be so inserted, or by inserting any house or land liable to the rate, or by inserting a valuation when the house or land liable to be valued has not been valued, after giving notice to any person interested in the making of the amendment of a day, not being less than fifteen days from the date of the service of such notice when such amendment is to be made; they may also strike out the name of any person, or any house or land not liable to the rate or reduce the amount of the valuation without notice:

123. When any rate is due, the Commissioners shall cause to be presented to the person liable to the payment thereof a bill for the sum due, which shall also contain a statement of the period and a description of the property for which the rate is charged:

Provided that, whenever any rate is payable by the owner of the land, and the said owner is not the owner of the house situated thereon, the assessment on the land and on the house shall be separately entered in the said bill.

Notice of demand

124. If the bill is not paid by the person liable to pay the same within seven days from the presentation thereof, the Commissioners may cause to be served upon such person a notice of demand in the form contained in the fourth Schedule, or to the like effect; and, if he shall not within seven days from the service of such notice of demand, pay the sum due, or show sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Commissioners for non-payment of the same, such sum, with all costs, may be levied by distress and sale of the moveable property of the defaulter, or if the defaulter be the occupier of any house or land in respect of which a rate is due, by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, whether actually belonging to the defaulter or not, under a warrant in the form contained in the Fifth Schedule, or to the like effect, to be issued for that purpose by the Commissioners:

Distress.

Provided that when the premises in respect of which the default is committed are a place of business, and the moveable property distrained is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioners to have been left there for repairs or safe custody in the ordinary course of business it shall be released.

For every notice of demand under this section which the Commissioners shall cause to be served upon any person, a fee, not exceeding one rupee, shall be payable.

Such fee shall be added to the amount of the rate in respect of which the notice is given, and, if not duly paid, may be levied in the same manner as such rate may be levied.

Inventory—notice of distress.

125. The officer charged with the execution of a warrant of distress under the last preceding section shall forthwith make an inventory of the moveable property seized under such warrant, and shall at the time give a notice in writing in the form contained in the Sixth Schedule, or to the like effect, to the person in possession thereof at the time of the seizure, that the said moveable property will be sold as therein mentioned.

Sale.

126. If the warrant is not in the meantime discharged or suspended by the Commissioners, the moveable property seized shall be sold and the proceeds, or such part thereof as may be necessary, shall be applied in discharge of the said arrears and costs; and the surplus, if any, shall be returned on demand to the person in possession of the moveable property at the time of the seizure.

All distresses under this Chapter shall be reasonable and the amount of property seized shall be proportionate to the arrears due, and all sales of property under this section shall, so far as may be practicable, be regulated by the procedure now in force, or hereafter to be in force in the Courts of Small Causes with respect to sale after distress.

Fees shall be payable upon warrants issued under this Act according to the rates set forth in the table of fees in the Sixth Schedule.

All officers and servants of the Corporation are prohibited from purchasing any property at any such sale.

127. The moveable property of any person from whom any rate is due may be distrained, wherever the same may be found, for default in payment of the money due from him.

Rate due from owner may be recovered from occupier and deducted by him from his rent.

128. If the sum due on account of any rate from the owner of any house or land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the Commissioners may demand the amount from the occupier or any of his sub-tenants for the time being of the house or land, and on non-payment thereof, may recover the same by distress and sale of any moveable property found on the house or land, as provided in section 124 and, in such case, the occupier or his sub-tenant may deduct, from the next and following payments of his rent, the amount which may be so paid by, or recovered from, him:

Rates due from vendor may be recovered from purchaser.

129. The purchaser of any house or land for which any sum is due on account of the rate payable by the owner at the time of such purchase shall be liable for the amount due on account of such rates for any period not exceeding one year prior to the purchase.

Distress not unlawful for want of form.

130. No distress levied under this Act shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the notice, schedule, summons, notice of demand, warrant of distress, inventory, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser on account of any irregularity committed by him; but all persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover, in any court of competent jurisdiction, full satisfaction for any special damage sustained by them.

Commissioners may sue, instead of proceeding by distress.

131. Instead of proceeding by distress and sale, or in case of failure to realize by distress and sale the whole or any part of the sum due in respect of any rate, the Commissioners may sue, in any court of competent jurisdiction, the person liable to pay the same.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE WATER-SUPPLY.

The Commissioners to provide water-supply.

132. The Commissioners shall provide a supply of water within all parts of Calcutta and shall for that purpose cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such tanks, reservoirs, or other works to be made and constructed, as shall be necessary for the supply of filtered water in the principal public streets, and shall also erect, sufficient and convenient stand pipes or pumps for the gratuitous use of the inhabitants for domestic purposes.

What are not domestic purposes.

133. Pressure at which water must be kept

134. The Commissioners shall, between the hours of six in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon, so far as may be reasonably practicable, keep and maintain throughout their pipes and mains a sufficient supply of filtered water under a pressure of not less than ten feet for the domestic use of the rate-payers, and shall every day, for not less than two hours in the forenoon and one hour in the afternoon, maintain a pressure of water in the service pipes and mains sufficient to raise the water in all houses and places in which the same may be introduced within the area at present supplied to a height of not less than thirty feet.

Supply for business.

135. The Commissioners may supply water through a meter, for other than domestic purposes, if the person requiring such supply make application to the Commissioners in writing, specifying the purpose for which such supply is required, and the quantity likely to be consumed.

The Commissioners may thereupon, subject to such charges or rates as may have been fixed by the Commissioners in meeting, lay down, or allow to be laid down, the necessary communication-pipes and works, of such dimensions and character as may be fixed by the Commissioners.

No meter shall be necessary in any case in which the applicant agrees to pay such sum per mensem for the use of the water as may be fixed by the Commissioners.

If the Commissioners have reason to believe that the occupier of any house consumes more filtered water than he is entitled to as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners to provide a water-meter at their own expense, and attach the same to the water-pipes of the said house; and any water which may be used over and above the quantity to which the occupier is entitled as aforesaid shall be paid for by him, at the rate of one rupee for every fifteen hundred gallons;

Provided that no charge shall be made by the Commissioners for unfiltered water supplied under the next succeeding section.

Commissioners may provide filtered or unfiltered water for latrines.

137. It shall be at the option of the Commissioners to provide filtered or unfiltered water for all latrines and water closets; and wherever filtered water has been already supplied to such latrines or water-closets, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners, at their own expense, and not otherwise, to stop the supply of filtered water, and in lieu thereof to provide unfiltered water for such latrines and water-closets.

All latrines to be provided with cisterns.

138. All latrines and water-closets now supplied, or hereafter to be supplied, with water filtered or unfiltered, shall be provided with a cistern of such size and description and in such position as the Commissioners shall direct; and all such cisterns shall be put up at the cost of the owner of the house or land so supplied with water.

Communication-pipes, &c., to be made of required dimensions and at expense of house-holder.

139. Whenever the Commissioners shall deem it practicable and consistent with the maintenance of an efficient water-supply they shall allow any person living in a masonry house and paying the water-rate hereinbefore mentioned to lay down communication-pipes from the service pipes of the Commissioners for bringing into his house or land a reasonable supply of water for domestic use; provided that the Commissioners shall be at liberty to cut off the supply of water to any house or land during the time the said house or land is unoccupied.

The communication-pipes leading the water from the service-pipes of the Commissioners into the house of any rate-payer, and the pipes and works within the house connected therewith, shall be of such character, dimensions, and material as the Commissioners shall fix and approve; and shall be made and constructed at the expense of the person requiring the same.

140. The communication-pipes and all fittings thereon leading water from the service pipes of the Commissioners into any house or land, and the pipes, works, and fittings inside the house or land, must in all cases be executed subject to the inspection and to the satisfaction of the Commissioners.

Such communication-pipes, works, and fittings may be made by the servants and workmen of the Commissioners upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the Commissioners and the person requiring the supply, or subject to such charges as may be fixed by the Commissioners; and the Commissioners may require the amount necessary for the execution of such works to be paid or deposited before such works are executed; and such charges and expenses shall be recoverable in the same manner as the water-rate.

Power to enter premises.

141. The officer authorized in that behalf by the Commissioners may, between the hours of seven in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, enter into or on any house or land supplied with water as aforesaid in order to examine all pipes works, and fittings connected with the supply of water, and to ascertain if there be any waste or misuse of such water; and if such officer at any such time be refused admittance into such house or land for the purposes aforesaid, or be prevented from making such examination as aforesaid, the Commissioners may forthwith turn off or cut off the water from such house or land:

Provided that nothing hereinbefore contained shall authorize an entry into any room appropriated for the zenana or residence of women, which by the custom of the country is considered private, unless a notice in writing of not less than four hours be given.

When pipes are out of repair, Commissioners may turn off water.

142. In the event of any pipes, works, or fittings connected with the supply of water to any house or land being at any time found on examination by any officer of the Commissioners authorized in that behalf to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause any waste of water, the Commissioners may cause the water to be turned off or cut off from such house or land, after giving notice in writing of not less than twenty-four hours to the person in occupation thereof, and may recover the expense incurred for turning off the water from the occupier of such house or land.

Water may be turned off or cut off on neglect to pay the rate.

143. If any person supplied with water shall neglect to pay the water-rate herein before mentioned at any of the times of payment thereof, or the charge made for the said water when supplied for other than domestic purposes, the Commissioners may turn off or cut off the water from the house or land in respect of which such rate or charge is payable and may recover the expense from such person:

Person causing waste of water liable to penalty

145. Any person causing waste of water supplied by the Commissioners shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees.

Houses may be set forward for improving lines of public street.

210. The Commissioners may, upon such terms as they shall think fit, allow any house to be set forward for improving the line of any public street in which such house is situated.

Houses projecting beyond line of street when taken down to be set back.

211. The Commissioners may prescribe a line on each side of any public street within which, without the permission of the Commissioners in writing, no portion of any building abutting on the said street shall, after such line has been prescribed, be constructed.

A line so prescribed shall be called 'the regular line of a public street.'

When any house, any part of which projects beyond the regular line of a public street, or beyond the front of the house on either side thereof, has been burnt down or taken down in order to be rebuilt or altered, or such portion thereof as projects beyond the regular line of the street has been burnt down or taken down in order to be rebuilt or altered, the Commissioners may require the same to be set back to, or towards, the regular line of the street or the line of the adjoining houses:

Provided that the Commissioners shall make full compensation to the owner of any such house for any direct damage he may thereby sustain, and if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for the settlement of disputes respecting damages and expenses.

House in a ruinous and dangerous state.

212. If any building, or anything affixed thereon, be deemed by the Commissioners to be in a ruinous state, or likely to fall, or in any way dangerous, they shall immediately, if it appears to them to be necessary, cause a proper hoard or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers, and shall cause notice in writing to be given to the owner, if he be known and resident in Calcutta, and shall also cause such notice to be put on some conspicuous part of such building, or otherwise to be given to the occupier thereof (if any), requiring such owner or occupier forthwith to take down, repair, or secure, such building, or thing affixed thereon, as the case shall require.

If owner does not take house down, Commissioners may do so.

If such owner or occupier does not commence to take down, repair, or secure the same within three days after such notice, or fails to complete such work with due diligence, the Commissioners shall cause all or so much of such building, or thing as they shall think necessary, to be taken down, repaired, or otherwise secured and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

The provisions of section 211 shall apply to houses taken down or repaired under this section.

Sale of materials of ruinous houses.

213. If any building, or any part of the same, be taken down under the provisions of the last preceding section, the Commissioners may sell the materials thereof, or so much of the same as shall be taken down, and apply the proceeds of such sale in payment of the expenses incurred, and shall, on demand, restore to the owner any surplus arising from such sale.

The Commissioners shall have the same remedies for compelling the payment of so much of the said expenses as may remain due after the application of the proceeds of such sale as by this Act are given to them for compelling the payment of the whole of the said expenses.

Notice of new buildings to be given to the Commissioners.

214. Before beginning to build, rebuild or materially alter the structure of any house, the person intending so to do shall give to the Commissioners notice thereof in writing, and shall accompany such notice with a plan of the site and the proposed buildings drawn to the scale of ten feet to the inch, showing the levels and width at which the foundation and lowest floor of such house or portion of a house are proposed to be laid, by reference to some level ascertained under the direction of the Commissioners the plan shall also show the height of the proposed building and the situation of the privy, if any.

Commissioners to signify disapproval within thirty days.

215. Within thirty days after receiving such notice as is mentioned in the last preceding section, the Commissioners shall see whether the proposed buildings are in accordance with such bye-laws as may be prescribed in this behalf, and if they are shall signify their approval of the proposed levels and width of foundation and of the site of the privy, and if they are not they shall fix other levels and width of foundation in lieu thereof within a like period.

If the proposed work after approval be not commenced within one year it shall not be commenced without a fresh notice under the last preceding section.

Houses built without notice, or contrary to provisions of this Act, may be altered by the Commissioners.

216. If such building as is mentioned in section 214 be begun or made without sending such notice and plan as are mentioned in the said section or before the expiry of the period of thirty days, or at any levels different from those fixed by the Commissioners within the said thirty days, or in any other respect contrary to the provisions of this Act, the Commissioners may, if necessary, cause such building to be altered or demolished as the case may require; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person failing to comply with the provisions aforesaid.

If Commissioners fail to signify approval, &c., within thirty days parties may proceed without.

217. If the Commissioners fail to signify in writing their approval or disapproval within thirty days after receiving such notice and plan as aforesaid, the person giving such notice may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, proceed to build or rebuild the house therein referred to according to such plan:

Provided that such building or rebuilding be otherwise in accordance with this Act.

The word "house" in this and the three last preceding sections does not include a hut.

Hoards to be set up during repairs.

218. Every person intending to build or take down any house, or to alter or repair the outward part of any house, where any public street will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work shall, before beginning the same, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up, in order to separate the house where such works are being carried on from the street, and shall keep such hoard or fence standing and in good condition, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall cause the same to be sufficiently lighted:

Provided that no person shall put up a hoard or fence without the written permission of the Commissioners, and shall not keep up such hoard or fence for a time longer than that specified in such written permission.

Penalty.

219. Every person who begins to build, or to take down, or alter, or repair any house contrary to the provisions of the last preceding section, or who, without license, erects or sets up any hoard, scaffolding, or fence whatsoever, or who, having obtained permission, fails to put up such fence or hoard, or to maintain the same standing and in good condition, or who does not, while such hoard or fence is standing, keep the same sufficiently lighted, or who does not remove the same when the time specified in the permission has elapsed, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every such offence, and a further fine, not exceeding twenty rupees, for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

House over sewers, &c., not to be erected without consent of the Commissioners.

220. No house shall be newly erected over any sewer or drain belonging to the Commissioners without their written consent; and if any house be so erected, the Commissioners may cause such house to be pulled down or otherwise dealt with as they may think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person so erecting the house.

Level of houses hereafter built within the town.

221. No house shall be built in Calcutta upon a lower level than will allow of the drainage of such house or building being led into some public sewer then existing or projected, or into some tidal river or other place into which the Commissioners are empowered to empty their sewers.

PART III.—Of the erection of Huts and of sanitary measures connected therewith.

Erection of new huts to be under the control of the Commissioners.

222. It shall not be lawful for any person to erect a hut or shed, or any range or block of huts or sheds, or to add to any hut or shed or to any range or block already existing at the commencement of this Act, without thirty days previous notice to the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may within thirty days of the receipt of such notice by them require in the case of a single hut or shed that it be built in the manner approved of by them, and in the case if a range or block of huts or sheds that they be built so that they may stand in regular lines with a free passage or way in front of and behind each line, of such width as they may think proper for ventilation and to facilitate scavenging, and with such number of privies and with such means of drainage as to them may seem necessary, and at such a level as will admit of such drainage, and with a plinth at least two feet above the level of the nearest public street.

No hut or shed shall be built within thirty feet of a tank without the leave of the Commissioners. The Commissioners may require the owner of any land suitable for huts or sheds to furnish them with a plan of such land showing where it is proposed to construct additional huts or sheds before sanctioning the construction of any hut or shed.

Power to direct removal of huts built without notice.

223. If any hut or shed be built without giving to the Commissioners such notice as is required by the last preceding section, or otherwise than as required by the Commissioners, the Commissioners may give notice to the owner or occupier thereof, by affixing a notice to some conspicuous part of such hut or shed, to take down and remove the same within one month, or to effect such alterations as they may deem necessary; and it shall be lawful for the Commissioners, if they shall think fit so to do, to cause the same to be taken down and removed; and the expense incurred thereby shall be paid by the said owner or occupier thereof, and shall be recoverable as hereinafter provided.

Penalty.

224. Whoever erects a hut or shed, or any range or block of huts or sheds, or adds to any hut or shed, or any range or block already existing contrary to the provisions of section 222, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees for every such offence, and to a further fine, not exceeding twenty rupees for each day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

Commissioners may prevent huts being built on filled up tanks.

225. It shall be lawful for the Commissioners to refuse their sanction to the construction of any hut or shed upon the site of any filled up tank, if satisfied that it would be prejudicial to the public health.

Power of Commissioners as to inspection of huts.

226. Whenever the Commissioners in meeting are satisfied by the report of any competent person, that any existing bustee in the municipality is, by reason of the manner in which the huts are constructed or crowded together, or of the want of drainage and the impracticability of scavenging, attended with risk of disease to the inhabitants or the neighbourhood, they may cause the locality to be inspected by two medical officers, who shall make a report in writing on the sanitary condition of the said bustee and shall specify, if necessary, in the said report the huts which should be wholly, or in part, removed, the roads, drains, and sewers which should be constructed, and the low lands which should be filled up, with a view to the removal of the risk of disease.

The huts which together form a bustee under this part may belong to several owners. The existence of a masonry wall, privy, shed or house in a bustee shall not preclude the Commissioners from dealing with such bustee in any way authorized by this Act:

Provided that if the Commissioners think fit to acquire any masonry structure, or any land held together with a masonry house on a lease, or any land belonging to a person who has no huts forming part of a bustee on such land, in order to make a road or otherwise for the sanitary improvement of a bustee, such building or land shall be acquired in the manner provided by Chapter XIII, Part II. And if a road so made be retained as private property, the sum spent in acquiring the same or any land under section 230, shall be recovered from the owners of the roadway bounding the property so acquired in such proportions as the Commissioners may determine.

The Commissioners in meeting may define the external limits of any bustee and for the purposes of this act the land comprised within such limits shall, subject to the foregoing proviso, be treated as a bustee.

On receipt of report Commissioners may cause notice to be served.

227. On receipt of the report of the Medical Officers the Commissioners in meeting may cause a notice to be served upon the owners or occupiers of the huts, or, at the option of the Commissioners, the owner of the land on which such huts are built, requiring them to carry out and execute within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the Commissioners for such purpose, all or any of the works specified in the aforesaid report, or any portion thereof respectively.

Commissioners may carry out works if owners or occupiers refuse.

228. If, after the service of the notice referred to in the last preceding section, such owners or occupiers, or the owners of the land, shall refuse or neglect to carry out and execute the said works within the time appointed, the Commissioners may cause all or any of the said works, or any portion thereof respectively, to be executed; and the expenses thereby incurred, including such reasonable compensation as the Commissioners think fit to pay to the owners or occupiers of huts destroyed or removed, shall be paid by the owners of the land:

Expenses may be recovered by instalments or remitted in case of poverty.

Provided that the Commissioners in meeting may order the expenses so incurred to be recovered by instalments from the said owners, or, if it should appear to them that any owner is unable by reason of poverty to pay the same, may order the same or any portion thereof to be paid out of the General Fund.

Sale of huts.

229. If any of the said huts be pulled down, the Commissioners shall cause the materials of each hut to be given to the owner of the hut; or if the owner be unknown, or the title disputed, the materials shall be sold and the proceeds shall be held in deposit by the Commissioners until the person interested therein shall obtain an order from a competent court for the payment of the same.

A Court of Small Causes shall be deemed a competent court for the purpose.

Notice to Commissioners to convert bustee land to other uses.

230. The owner of any land in a bustee, which has been improved in accordance with the provisions of the Act, who desires to build houses thereon or to put the whole or any part of such land to some other use, shall give three months notice in writing to the Commissioners, and the Commissioners may, so soon as such land ceases to retain the character of bustee land, release such land from all the incidents attaching to bustee land under this Act, subject to such conditions, when it is desired to convert part of a bustee only to some other use, as they may think necessary, in order to protect the remainder.

Proportion of land to be converted into roads.

231. No owner of bustee land shall, except when erecting new huts under the provisions of section 222, be required to convert more than one-fifth of such land into a road, or roads, ordered to be made under this part, without compensation from the Commissioners. Compensation for such excess amount shall be made in accordance with the provisions of section 373:

Provided that, if after such compensation has been paid, the land, in respect of which it has been paid, is released from the incidents attaching to bustee land, the sum paid by way of compensation shall be refunded to the Commissioners without interest.

Power to purchase, improve, and re-sell or lease unhealthy areas.

232. Notwithstanding anything in the sections immediately preceding contained, the Commissioners in meeting may, upon receipt of the report prescribed under section 226, pass a resolution to the effect that the land upon which the block of huts mentioned in such report is situate, is an unhealthy area, and that, in the opinion of the Commissioners, the acquisition of the bustee, or any part thereof, either by purchase or lease, is necessary for the purpose of making the requisite improvements thereon and shall proceed to make a scheme for the improvement of such land, and shall forward such scheme, accompanied by such plans and estimates as shall be necessary for a due understanding of the same, together with a copy of such resolution, for the consideration and sanction of the Local Government.

On receipt of such sanction the Commissioners in meeting may acquire such land or any part thereof by purchase or lease, in the manner provided by Chapter XIII, Part II.

When the sanction of the Local Government has been accorded to any scheme for the improvement of any land acquired by the Commissioners as above provided, the Commissioners in meeting may sell or let any part of the acquired land to any person for the purpose and under the condition that he will, as respects the land so purchased by, or leased to, him, carry out such scheme.

The Commissioners may, instead of selling or letting the land acquired by them as aforesaid, themselves carry out such scheme.

The Commissioners shall be bound to sell or lease such land in the manner aforesaid, or themselves to carry out such sanctioned scheme of improvement as is above described within the term of four years from the date of their purchase or lease of such land, unless the Local Government shall specially extend such term.

Commissioners may levy a rate for cleansing bustees.

233. Whenever the Commissioners in meeting have sanctioned the employment of a special establishment for the cleansing of bustees they may impose a rate to defray the cost of such establishment on the owners of such bustees.

PART IV.—Of drainage.

Commissioners to drain Calcutta.

234. The Commissioners may carry out such a complete system or systems of sewerage and drainage as they may think fit, subject to the approval of the Local Government, and such alterations as may from time to time be ordered by it.

Public sewers, drains, &c., vested in the Commissioners.

235. All public sewers and drains, and all sewers, drains, tunnels, and culverts in, alongside, or under any public street, whether made at the cost of the Commissioners or otherwise, and all works, materials, and things appertaining thereto, shall vest in and belong to the Commissioners.

Powers of Commissioners in making public sewers.

236. The Commissioners shall have power to construct within Calcutta, and when necessary for the purposes of outfall or distribution of sewage without Calcutta, such sewers as they may think necessary for keeping the town properly cleansed and drained and may carry such sewers through, across or under any road, street or place and after reasonable notice in writing (if upon the report of the Engineer it should appear to be necessary) into, through or under any premises or lands whatsoever, and from time to time to enlarge, lessen, alter, arch over or otherwise improve, modify or change, or to close up or destroy all sewers, vested in them, provided no nuisance is created by such operations; and if any person is thereby deprived of the lawful use of any drain or sewer the Commissioners shall provide another sufficiently effectual for his use within one hundred feet from some part of his premises. The Commissioners shall cause their sewers to be so constructed, kept and cleansed as not to be a nuisance, and for the purpose of cleansing and emptying them may construct and place either above or under ground, such reservoirs, sluices, engines or other works as may be necessary, and may cause such sewers to communicate with, and be emptied into, such places as may be fit and necessary within Calcutta, and if necessary for the purpose of outfall or distribution of sewage without Calcutta, and to cause the sewage and refuse therefrom and from the town to be collected for sale, or for the improvement of land, or for incineration, or for any purpose whatsoever, but not so as to create a nuisance.

Bed of stream receiving sewerage to be cleared.

237. When the contents of any sewer or drain, or any other flow of filth or refuse, are discharged into any river or stream in the bed or channel of which the quantity of water at any season of the year is so much diminished, by natural or artificial causes, as to be insufficient to keep such channel clean or clear, the Commissioners, with the sanction of the Local Government, so far as the General Fund permits, shall make such alteration in the bed of such river or stream as may prevent such sewer and drain-water from spreading over the surface of such bed, or from accumulating and stagnating in parts thereof to the injury of health or the annoyance of the surrounding population.

Unauthorized drains leading into public sewers may be demolished.

238. If any person, without the written consent of the Commissioners first obtained, makes or alters any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Commissioners, or makes such drain, or carried out such alterations, with materials not approved of by the Commissioners, the Commissioners may cause such branch drain to be demolished, altered, re-made, or otherwise dealt with as they shall think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person making or altering such branch drain.

Penalty for altering or making unauthorized drains leading into public sewers.

239. Whoever, without the written consent of the Commissioners first obtained, makes or alters any drain leading into any of the sewers or drains vested in the Commissioners by this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees.

Commissioners empowered to make drains from houses which are not properly drained.

240. If any house or land within one hundred feet of a public sewer or surface drain fit for use, or of some tidal river or other place at which the Commissioners are empowered to empty their sewers, be at any time not drained to the satisfaction of the Commissioners by sufficient surface drains or pipes communicating with some sewer, surface drain, tidal river, or other place as aforesaid, the Commissioners may, if the owner neglects to do so within fifteen days after notice, construct or lay through or from such house or land, suitable drains, or pipes of such materials, of such size, at such level, and with such fall, as they shall think necessary for the complete draining of such house or land; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

Commissioners may construct certain portions of drains under public drains and streets.

241. The Commissioners themselves may construct and lay down such portions of the drains mentioned in sections 240, 244 and 245, as may be 242 It shall not be lawful for any person to make any underground drains in connection with the public sewers unless he shall hold a license from the Commissioners under such rules and regulations as the Commissioners may, from time to time, lay down and which shall be printed on the back of the license.

Penalty.

Any person holding such license who shall infringe or break any such rule or regulation shall be liable to have his license cancelled and he or any person making any underground drain in connection with the public sewers without a license shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Supervision of certain works.

243. The Commissioners may cause the work of laying underground drains to be supervised while in progress, and from time to time during their execution order such reasonable alterations therein, additions thereto, and abandonment of part or parts thereof, as may to the Commissioners appear, on the fuller knowledge afforded by the opening of the ground, requisite to secure the complete and satisfactory execution of such works as aforesaid.

Group or block of houses, &c., may be drained by a combined operation.

244. If it appear to the Commissioners that a group or block of houses may be drained more economically or advantageously in combination than separately, and a sewer of sufficient size already exists, or is about to be constructed, within one hundred feet of any part of such group or block of houses, the Commissioners may cause such group or block of houses to be drained by a combined operation; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owners of such houses or, if the owners of such houses are not the owners of the land upon which such houses are built, then by the owners of the land in such proportions as shall to the Commissioners seem fit.

Not less than fifteen days before any work under this section is commenced the Commissioners shall give notice to the owners of all the land or houses to be drained of the nature of the proposed work and an estimate of the expenses about to be incurred in respect thereof and the proportion payable by each owner.

Commissioners may require the owner of a drain to allow another to use it.

245. Whenever a drain belonging to one or more persons has been laid in any street or passage common to more than one house, and it is deemed desirable to drain any other premises into such drain, the Commissioners may require the owners of such drain to allow a connection therewith to be made on such terms as may seem to them equitable, and the owner or owners of the drain shall be entitled to refuse to allow the connection to be made until the terms prescribed have been fulfilled.

Sewers in streets to be covered with traps, &c.

246. All underground drains in streets (public or otherwise) shall be provided by the Commissioners or by the persons to whom they severally belong with proper traps or other coverings and means of ventilation, so as to prevent stench.

If the owner of any private sewer or underground drain shall, for ten days after notice given to him by the Commissioners, neglect or delay to provide proper traps or coverings and means of ventilation as aforesaid, the Commissioners may forthwith provide and apply the same;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

247. The Commissioners may erect on, or fix to, any house or wall such properly jointed pipes as they may deem necessary for the proper ventilation of the sewers belonging to them, and such pipes shall be carried to a height of not less than six feet above the highest part of the highest adjacent house, and erected so as not to occasion any nuisance or inconvenience to any house in the neighbourhood.

Branch drains, privies, &c., to be under the control of the Commissioners, and to be kept in good order by owners.

248. All branch drains, as well within as without the house or land to which they belong, and all privies, cess-pools, stables and cow-sheds in Calcutta, shall be under the survey and control of the Commissioners as regards their site, material, dimensions and construction, and shall be altered, supplied with water, connected with a sewer, paved, repaired, kept in proper order, stopped up, or demolished, at the costs and charges of the owner of the house or land to which the same belong, or for the use of which they are constructed or continued; and if the owner of any house or land to which any such drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed belongs, neglect, during eight days after notice in writing, to execute the work in the manner required by the Commissioners, the Commissioners may cause the work to be executed in respect of such drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed;

and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the owner.

249. If any private drain is obstructed the owner thereof shall within six hours after receiving notice to do so from the Commissioners, cause the obstruction to be removed and if he make default the Commissioners may cause the necessary work to be done and the expenses thereby incurred shall be recoverable from the owner.

Commissioners may alter any drain, &c., made contrary to their order.

250. If any branch drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed be constructed contrary to the directions and regulations of the Commissioners, or contrary to the provisions of this Act, or if any person, without the consent of the Commissioners, constructs, rebuilds or unstops any branch drain, privy, or cess-pool which has been ordered by them to be demolished or stopped up, or not to be made, or constructs or rebuilds any stable or cow-shed which has been ordered by them to be demolished or not to be built, the Commissioners may cause such amendment or alteration to be made in any such drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed as they think fit; and the expenses thereby incurred shall be paid by the person by whom such drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed was improperly constructed, rebuilt, or otherwise dealt with.

Penalty for persons making or altering drains contrary to the orders of the Commissioners.

251. Whoever constructs any drain, privy, cess-pool, stable or cow-shed after the commencement of this Act contrary to the directions and regulations of the Commissioners, or contrary to the provisions of this Act, or, whoever without the consent of the Commissioners, constructs, rebuilds or unstops any drain, privy, or cess-pool which has been ordered by them not to be made or to be demolished or to be stopped up shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

Inspection of drains, privies, and cess-pools.

252. The Commissioners, or any officer authorized by them in that behalf, may inspect any branch drain, privy, or cess-pool, and for that purpose, at any time between sunrise and sunset, after one hour's notice in writing to the occupier of the house or land to which such drain, privy, or cess-pool is attached may enter upon such house or land with such assistants and workmen as are necessary, and cause the ground to be opened where they or he may think fit, doing as little damage as may be;

and if, upon such inspection, it appears that such drain, privy, or cess-pool is not in good order and condition, or that it has been constructed contrary to the provisions of this Act, the expenses of such inspection shall be paid by the person to whom such drain, privy, or cess-pool may belong;

but if the drain, privy, or cess-pool be found to be in proper order and condition, and not to have been constructed in violation of the provisions of this Act, the Commissioners or officer as aforesaid shall cause the ground to be closed and made good as soon as may be, and the expenses of opening, closing, and making good such drain, privy, or cess-pool, shall be paid by the Commissioners.

Penalty for throwing rubbish into sewers.

253. Whoever throws or puts, or permits his servants to throw or put, any earth, dirt, ashes, garden—kitchen—cow-shed—or stable—refuse, or any broken glass or earthenware, or other rubbish, or any offensive matter or, until suitable sewers shall be provided, any night-soil into any sewer or drain belonging to the Commissioners, or into any drain communicating therewith, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every such offence.

Any person upon whose land any latrine, privy, urinal, cess-pool, house-drain, or other receptacle so situated shall be now existing or hereafter constructed, shall remove the same within forty-eight hours of the receipt of a written notice from the Commissioners.

Penalty.

255. Any person failing to comply with the notice mentioned in the last preceding section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees, and to a further fine, not exceeding three rupees, for every day that the latrine, privy, urinal, cess-pool, house-drain, or other receptacle remains within the limits aforesaid.

(c) the route by which such cart or other receptacle shall proceed.

Penalty.

257. When the Commissioners have fixed such hours and given public notice thereof, whoever removes or causes to be removed along any street (public or otherwise) any such offensive matter at any time, except within the hours so fixed, and also, whoever at any time, whether such hours have been fixed by the Commissioners or not, uses for any such purpose any cart, carriage, or other receptacle or vessel other than that approved and sanctioned by the Commissioners, or spills any such offensive matter in the removal thereof and does not carefully sweep and clean every place in which any such offensive matter has been so spilled, or places or sets down in any public place any vessel containing such offensive matter, or drives or takes, or causes to be driven or taken, any cart, carriage, receptacle, or vessel used for any such purpose as aforesaid, through any street (public or otherwise), or by any route other than that, from time to time, by public notice, appointed for that purpose by the Commissioners, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every such offence.

If the occupier fail to obey such notice within the time specified, the Commissioners may cause the premises to be cleansed and purified, and the expenses thereby incurred shall be recoverable from the occupier.

349. The Commissioners in meeting may at any time, with the sanction of the Local Government, raise, by the issue of new debentures, any money that may be required to pay any moneys for the time being due on any debentures issued under the authority of this Act, or of any enactment hereby expressly repealed.

(g) Any fireplace or furnace which does not, as far as practicable, consume the smoke arising from the combustible used therein, and which is used for working engines by steam, or in any mill, factory, dye-house, brewery, bake-house, or gas-work, or in any manufacturing or trade process whatsoever, and any chimney (not being the chimney of a private dwelling-house) sending forth black smoke in such quantity as to be a nuisance: Provided—

1*st*.—That a penalty shall not be imposed on any person in respect of any accumulation or deposit necessary for the effectual carrying on any business or manufacture, if it be proved to the satisfaction of the court that the accumulation or deposit has not been kept longer than is necessary for the purposes of the business or manufacture, and that the best available means have been taken for preventing injury thereby to the public health.

2*nd*.—That when a person is summoned before any court in respect of a nuisance arising from a fireplace or furnace which does not consume the smoke arising from the combustible used in such fireplace or furnace, the court shall hold that no nuisance is created within the meaning of this Act, and dismiss the complaint, if it is satisfied that such fireplace or furnace was constructed before the passing of this Act, and in such manner as to consume as far as practicable, having regard to the nature of the manufacture or trade, all smoke arising therefrom, and that such fireplace or furnace has been carefully attended to by the person having the charge thereof.

Information of nuisances.

362. Information of any nuisance under this Act in Calcutta may be given to the Commissioners by any person aggrieved thereby, or by any two inhabitant householders, or by any officer of the Commissioners.

Where notice insufficient, Commissioners may prefer a complaint.

364. If the person on whom a notice to abate a nuisance has been served makes default in complying with any of the requisitions thereof within the time specified, or if the nuisance, although abated since the service of the notice is, in the opinion of the Commissioners, likely to recur on the same premises, the Commissioners may cause a complaint relating to such nuisance to be made before a Magistrate, and such Magistrate shall thereupon issue a summons requiring the person on whom the notice was served to appear before him.

366. Where the nuisance proved to exist is such as to render a house or building, in the judgment of the Magistrate, unfit for human habitation, the Magistrate may prohibit the using thereof for that purpose, until, in his judgment, the house or building is rendered fit for that purpose; and, on the Magistrate being satisfied that it has been rendered fit for that purpose, the Magistrate may determine his previous order by another declaring the house or building habitable, and from the date thereof such house or building may be let or inhabited.

Penalties for disobedience of orders.

367. Any person not obeying an order to comply with the requisition of the Commissioners or otherwise to abate the nuisance, shall, if he fails to satisfy the Magistrate that he has used all due diligence to carry out such order, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five rupees per day during his default; and any person knowingly and wilfully acting contrary to an order of prohibition, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten rupees per day during such contrary action; moreover, the Commissioners may enter the premises to which any order relates, and abate the nuisance, and do whatever may be necessary in execution of such order, and recover in a summary manner the expenses incurred by them from the person on whom the order is made.

This act, as regards nuisances, not to affect rights under other acts.

368. The provisions of this Act relating to nuisances shall be deemed to be in addition to, and not to abridge or affect any right, remedy or proceeding under any other provisions of this Act, or under any other Act or at law or in equity:

371. If, through any act, neglect, or default on account whereof any person shall have been fined under this Act, any damage to the property of the Commissioners shall have been committed by such person, he shall be liable to make good such damage, as well as to pay such fine; and the amount of such damage shall, in case of dispute, be determined by the Magistrate by whom such person has been fined; and on default of payment of the amount of such damage on demand, the same may be levied in the same manner as a fine.

Magistrate may award compensation for groundless prosecution.

372. In any case in which a Magistrate is satisfied that the Commissioners had no reasonable ground for instituting a prosecution, it shall be lawful for such Magistrate to direct the Commissioners to pay to the accused such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as he thinks fit, and the sum so awarded shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.

CHAPTER XVIII.

REVIEW OF THE REPORT OF THE SALARIES COMMISSION.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—FINANCE.

Calcutta, the 1st April 1887.

RESOLUTION.

THE reasons which led to the appointment of the Commission whose report is now reviewed, and the questions which it was directed to consider, were set forth in a Resolution of the Government of Bengal, in the Financial Department, dated 21st March 1885.

"The attention of the Lieutenant-Governor," it was said, "has for a long time been directed to the desirability of taking some measures to reorganize the system of correspondence, reports, and returns between the various offices under this Government. The complaints of the pressure of clerical work, and of the waste of time and power entailed on responsible officers by the necessity of referring backwards and forwards through several channels many petty details of administration, and of preparing formal reports and returns on a multiplicity of subjects of very different degrees of importance, are every day becoming more and more common. It is not too much to say that no Commissioner of a division and no Collector of a heavy district in Bengal is at present able to devote to any one of the larger questions connected with his charge the care and attention which it deserves, and which a due regard for the interests of Government and his own reputation would induce him to bestow upon it. The growth of correspondence, while it thus weakens the directing power of superior officers, leads at the same time to a constant demand for increase of ministerial establishments. These demands have very often to be conceded in the form of temporary additional establishments to clear off arrears; and serious questions, both administrative and financial, must inevitably present themselves if some means cannot be devised for dispensing with a great deal of what is now necessarily infructuous labour."

2. The above quotation indicates the principal points to which the attention of the Commission was called; but the succeeding paragraph directed that the question of salaries should also be considered.

"This question," it was said, "was considered in 1866 and 1867 by a Committee, of which Mr. V. H. Schalch was President, and a new scale of salaries was brought into effect in 1868. Since that time, although there have been numerous alterations and improvements of a more or less restricted character, and although the pay of very many individual officers has been increased, there has been no general or systematic revision of salaries. Meanwhile the rise in prices and in the cost of living, which was anticipated by Mr. Strachey in 1865, has continued at constantly accelerating speed, and for some time past signs have been apparent that the effects of the reforms introduced in 1868 have been exhausted, and that a further advance must be made if the ministerial service is to be maintained in a condition of efficiency. Applications are constantly received by the Lieutenant-Governor from all classes of ministerial officers praying for an increase of emoluments; and these are in the majority of cases based on the ground that their salaries were fixed many years ago, when the cost of living was much less than it is now, and that they are inadequate under the altered circumstances of the present day. It is impossible to deny that this contention is in a great measure sound; and in a large number of individual instances the Government has had no alternative but to sanction an increase. But the Lieutenant-Governor feels that these concessions are too frequently given, less to those whose claims are the strongest than to those who can make their voices most effectively heard. In the case of the superior branches of the public service, the necessity of granting some increase of emoluments, and of making that increase general and not individual in its distribution, has been fully recognized and acted upon. The salaries of the Subordinate Executive and Judicial Services have been raised. The pay and position of the Sub-Deputy Collectors have similarly been improved; and within the last three years the Opium Department has been reorganized with the result of a material increase of pay and enhanced promotion. In the case of those classes of officers, therefore, who come immediately above ministerial officers in the official scale, Government has admitted an increase of emoluments to be necessary. These officers are (in the case of natives of this country) drawn from much the same social classes as their immediate superiors, the differences between them being due to accidents of education, wealth, and personal ability, rather than to accidents of birth. The social habits of both classes are, so far as the smaller means of the poorer members admit, similar; and causes which tend to increase the cost of living for the one class will operate with at least equal force for the other. These facts, coupled with the numerous representations—from treasury accountants, from district and divisional sheristadars, and many others—which have with increasing frequency been pressed upon the Lieutenant-Governor, raise a strong presumption that the time has come for a general enquiry into, and revision of, the rates of pay drawn by the ministerial officers of Government in this Province."

3. In subsequent paragraphs it was directed that the enquiries of the Commission should be confined to Executive offices under the Local Government, and the Lieutenant-Governor, without binding himself to any positive opinion, expressed the hope that by enlarging the responsibilities of local officers, and so reducing the amount of clerical labour involved in the submission of reports, returns, and applications for sanction, it might be found possible to effect such a revision of establishments, especially in the vernacular department, as to provide the means for placing ministerial establishments whose work was carried on in the English language on a satisfactory footing.

4. Under orders of Government, in the Judicial Department, No. 2100P, dated 19th December 1885, the enquiries of the Commission were extended to the establishments of District and Sub-divisional Registrars; and they were further instructed by separate orders to report on several questions of minor importance which need not be here separately noticed.

The gentlemen appointed to this Commission were Mr. John Beams, Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, as President, Mr. W. H Grimley, C.S., and Baboo Doorgagutty Banerjee of the Subordinate Executive Service. Their Report which is dated 2nd August 1886 was received on the 6th idem.

5. Part I of the Report, including Chapters I and II, briefly narrates the proceedings of the Commission, and gives some interesting information regarding the history of the administration in various departments. The succeeding chapters set forth the various reforms proposed by the Commission, and must be separately considered in detail.

6. In Chapter III the Commission recommend the substitution of a system of control by means of inspection for that which is at present exercised by means of returns. Returns, they think, are ineffective as a means of control because it is difficult to test their accuracy, because they are drawn up, explained, and scrutinized not by the heads of offices, but by clerks; and, above all, because while they may correctly show what amount of work has been done, they cannot show how it has been done. On the other hand, their preparation and examination involve a large expenditure of time and trouble, and consequently of money. Their views are thus summarised:

"When a new department is first organized, or a fresh undertaking commenced, it may perhaps be advisable that the several items of work should be recorded in strict detail, and the action taken in particular cases be precisely noted, not only for the sake of affording information to the central office of control but as precedents and guides to future work in the department or undertaking concerned; but as soon as the work has been established on a sound and satisfactory basis, the necessity for minutely recording and reporting every detail may be said to exist no longer. This principle seems to have been for a long time lost sight of in our Government offices, for there are many instances of returns having been fed and kept alive years after even this justification for their existence, such as it is, has ceased to have any weight. It is in, our opinion, very questionable whether it ever had any weight. Whenever a new branch of work is instituted, throwing additional labour on a district officer, a further demand is made for tabular statements showing how the new work progresses It may be fairly doubted whether more harm than good is not done by burdening Collectors and their establishments with the preparation and submission of special returns at a time when they are hard at work engaged on extra duties. The idea of course is that, having to submit this periodical exposure of the outturn of their work, makes them work faster than they would otherwise We doubt this very much. It is so very easy, as we have shown, to concoct some sort of an explanation, and explanations of the most flimsy kind, frequently inaccurate and misleading, are so readily accepted, that virtually the progress return has no effect at all in expediting work, while the preparation of it takes up a deal of time which would be far better spent in doing the work itself. This, at least, is the opinion we have formed after much experience.

"In attempting to differentiate in general terms the English and Indian systems of administration, we should say from observation of the methods of control employed in the Inland Revenue Department of Somerset House that the most striking point of difference between the two systems is the absence from the former of rules prescribing the submission of numerous returns, explanations, and reports, which are characteristic of the latter system. While in India every official act must be registered, analysed, explained, and reported in excessively minute detail, the controlling officers in the Revenue Branch of Somerset House are, as a rule, satisfied with a few simple returns exhibiting the main results, and, as regards explanations, the rule appears to be that an officer need not submit explanations of matters that seem to call for comment in the returns, as, for example, fluctuations in income-tax receipts from a particular class of individuals, increases or decreases in the revenue raised from spirituous liquors, until he is specially called upon to furnish them. The control of the local officials in the Inland Revenue Department is exercised by means of inspecting officers, who are constantly moving about and examining the work done in the various offices in their respective circles. Under the Indian system a very large amount of time is spent in almost every office in compiling returns and furnishing explanations of fluctuations and differences. The number and complexity of these periodical statements is something astounding, and the evil is constantly increasing.

In England excellent results are obtained without this elaborate system, and we see no reason why it should not be so in India also. We have indeed been told by some officers of experience that, in their opinion, no argument drawn from the practice in England will apply to this country, because work here is on so much larger a scale, the offices to be inspected are so much more numerous, the work done so much heavier and more intricate, and the distances to be travelled so much greater, as to alter entirely the conditions of the problem. To this we reply that, if work in India is on a larger scale, the inspecting officers are more numerous, and, as a rule, more highly educated and intelligent than the corresponding class in Europe. If there is more to do, there are more men and better men to do it."

The character of the inspections which they would substitute as a means of control is thus indicated in paragraph 42:—

"The Commissioner should first enquire into the Collector's arrangements for the transaction of business as regards the way in which the work is divided both among the Deputy and Assistant Collectors, and among the ministerial officers. The amount of work to be done, and the adequacy or inadequacy of the executive and ministerial staff to cope with it, should next be considered. Then would come an enquiry into the way in which the work, both judicial and executive, is done. For the first it would be necessary to call for and examine a fairly large number of cases selected from the files of each officer in the station, with a view to ascertaining that they were conducted with due attention to law and rules of procedure, with sound judgment and freedom from unnecessary delays. Any errors of either kind that might be noticed should be pointed out then and there to the officer trying, or who had tried, the case. Errors committed by the amla should also be pointed out to them. Thus the officers and amla would obtain instructions valuable for their future guidance, and the Commissioner would obtain a much deeper insight into the character of the officers subordinate to him than he does at present.

For the second class of work the proceedings both in English and vernacular of the principal heads of work, such as Wards, Khas Mehals, Settlements, Partitions, Land Acquisition, Land Improvement, and Agricultural Loans, Certificates, Excise, Road Cess valuations, Land Registration, Irrigation, Embankment, Stamps, Income-tax, and the like, should be scrutinised. It would be impossible and unnecessary to examine the papers of every executive case, but an intelligent examination of the registers would show which had been the leading cases in each department since the last inspection, and the Commissioner's own recollection of the matters that had been referred to him during the year, or, if he preferred it, a note prepared for him in his own office, would show him what matters required most looking into, and these he should follow step by step both in English and vernacular. An examination of a judiciously made and fairly numerous selection of these cases would show him whether the larger powers henceforth to be entrusted to Collectors and their deputies had been judiciously exercised, and whether the proceedings of those officers had been careful, legal, and prompt. In each Ward's and Government estate the accounts and the system of management should be enquired into, and the condition of the ryots on the estate, their requirements and attitude towards the managing staff, the financial position of the property, the measures on foot or proposed for its improvement, the conduct of litigation, the collection of rents and other matters of importance scrutinised and discussed with the Collector, and with the manager if his attendance could be arranged for. There would then be the treasury, record-room, English and vernacular offices to be inspected in the same way. The Accounts Department might possibly also be inspected; but as this is a technical matter, which would be far better done by experts, we should prefer its being left to an Inspector from the Accountant-General's office, in the same manner as road cess and other local funds are inspected."

7. If, as paragraph 38 of the Report might be understood as implying periodical returns were entirely in the hands of clerks, no use being made of them by responsible officers, it would no doubt be somewhat difficult to justify the expense involved in their preparation; but Sir Rivers Thompson can scarcely admit that such is the case. Arithmetical details and formal explanations of apparent discrepancies are doubtless left and must be left to clerks. But in most returns there are entries of real importance from an administrative point of view to which the attention of the responsible officer, at all events, ought to be directed. Indeed, a Collector who was not in the habit of noticing such entries could have but little knowledge of the broad facts regarding the administration of his district. If any existing return contains no such important entries, and is not required for statistical purposes, the primâ facie conclusion must be that it is useless, and should be abolished. Sir Rivers Thompson fully recognises the fact that inspection may bring to light many mistakes which could never appear in any figured statement, and it is for this reason that he has often called the attention of Commissioners and District Officers to this important part of their duties. But it does not, therefore, follow that even the most careful and conscientious inspections would efficiently take the place and serve the purpose of periodical returns. In fact, without a figured statement of general results to go upon, it is in many cases difficult, if not impossible, to make an efficient inspection of the work of any large department. It is no doubt right that an inspecting officer should examine the papers of individual cases—indeed his inspection must, to a great extent, consist of such an examination—but if this were done at random there would be an enormous waste of time, and the discovery of anything which was going wrong would be more or less a matter of chance. If, on the other hand, he begins his inspection by examining a figured statement of the results of the past month or quarter or year, his attention is thereby directed to the points where he may expect to discover mistakes, and where instruction or advice will probably be needed. It is only in departments dealing with a comparatively small number of separate cases that he could, as a general rule, derive much assistance from the registers in ascertaining the points at which the work was failing to secure satisfactory results and therefore called for special scrutiny. Statements, then, must in many cases be prepared, if only because without them effective inspection is impossible, and the question whether they shall be submitted to the controlling office is therefore comparatively unimportant. On full consideration of all that the Commission have urged, Sir Rivers Thompson finds it impossible to accept in broad general terms their proposal that inspection should take the place of returns as a means of control. Each return must, in his opinion, be considered on its own merits This the Commission have done with much care and completeness in paragraphs 46 to 65 and Appendices IV and V; and Sir Rivers Thompson is disposed to accept generally the results at which they have arrived. Before passing final orders, however, he thinks it advisable to ascertain whether there are difficulties in the way of any of their specific proposals. Further orders will therefore be passed in the several departments concerned at a later date. In the meantime the Board and Commissioners will be requested to examine the Commission's proposals and to address Government with reference to any particular return which they think should be dealt with otherwise than as the Commission propose, following the general principle that when any return is not required for statistical purposes, and has no practical administrative value, or deals with comparatively unimportant matters, which may properly be left to the control of the inspecting officer, it should be abolished, and that when any return is retained because some of its entries serve a useful purpose, it should be, as far as possible, simplified by the omission of details which serve no definite practical end. As regards the unauthorised returns enumerated in Appendix VI, the Lieutenant-Governor desires that all returns prescribed by Commissioners or District Officers shall cease to be submitted from 1st May unless in any particular instances the Commissioner of the Division directs their continuance, in which case his orders with an explanation of the reasons necessitating them, should be submitted for the information of Government. Sir Rivers Thompson is quite at one with the Commission with respect to the inexpediency of unnecessarily multiplying work by calling for returns; and though he does not think it expedient absolutely to prohibit Commissioners and District Officers from calling for statements of the progress made in various departments, he desires it to be understood that this should only be done under exceptional circumstances and with some definite purpose in view; and that when the necessity for it has passed away, the return should be discontinued. In order to secure this end, in future no return should be prescribed by a Commissioner or District Officer for more than one year or continued after the expiry of that term without fresh orders.

8. As a preliminary to the change of system discussed above, the Commission considers that a change should be made in the practice of distributing the Civil Service between the Executive and Judicial Branches at the option, for the most part, of the individual members. More uniform efficiency, it is urged, would be secured on the part of District Officers if more discrimination were habitually exercised by Government in appointing them. The details of the system proposed as a substitute for that which at present prevails are not very fully stated, but paragraph 33 recommends that when either in charge of a sub division or as a Joint Magistrate an officer has shown that he does not possess the qualities necessary for an efficient Collector, he should be transferred to judicial work if he has shown any aptitude for it. If he has shown no such aptitude, he should be refused all further promotion and allowed to retire on a pension proportionate to the length of his service. This proposal evidently assumes the continuance of the present system of parallel promotion in the Executive and Judicial lines, because if a return were made to the old system under which an officer passed from the post of Magistrate and Collector to that of Judge, a judicial career would not be open to a man who had been adjudged unfit for the former post. Paragraph 35, however, suggests a return to the old system, and the mature opinion of the Commission is therefore, to some extent, doubtful. In any case the important issues here raised are only indirectly connected with the more immediate objects of the Commission's enquiries; and Sir Rivers Thompson does not think this is the place to discuss questions affecting the constitution of the Civil Service, which could only be settled by the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

9. In Chapter IV, it is proposed to diminish work by relaxing to a certain extent the rules which at present require local officers to obtain sanction for the disbursement of money and for the performance of various official acts. As regards the disbursement of money, a good deal has been done in Bengal since the year 1880 in diminishing the strict control formerly exercised by Government over the miscellaneous expenditure which is classed under the head of Contingencies. This change has, on the whole, been in many ways beneficial; but the Commission, in their paragraphs 69 to 73, discuss certain points in which even the present rules appear to them to be productive of friction or otherwise open to objection. Independently of the Commission's Report, the expediency of modifying the present rules has recently come under the Lieutenant-Governor's consideration, and he has arrived at the conclusion that certain changes are desirable in order to remove the difficulties which experience has shown to exist in working the rules as they stand. This conclusion has been reached after comparing the Bengal system with that which prevails in Bombay, and it is hoped that the modifications now proposed in the former will meet at all events most of the difficulties to which the Commission call attention. Of the three classes into which contingencies are at present divided, it is proposed to abolish the second (countersigned), as the control at present secured over expenditure falling under this class is of doubtful efficiency, while its exercise is troublesome and attended with considerable inconvenience. At the same time a new class (regular contingencies) will be introduced, including payments which have to be made at fixed rates, and over which the disbursing officer can exercise no control. Detailed instructions regarding the items to be included in this class will be issued hereafter in communication with the Accountant-General, but the diet and travelling allowance of witnesses, the cost of sending treasure from one district to another, escort charges, the remuneration of copyists, and boarding charges may be mentioned as illustrating the kind of expenditure which it is proposed to bring under the new heading. In respect of this class, the charges will be budgeted for in the usual way, but the expenditure will be incurred by disbursing officers as occasion arises, in accordance with rates sanctioned by Government or other competent authority, irrespective of the provision made in the budget. There will (as far as this class is concerned) be no contract, but the procedure for drawing and paying the money and submitting accounts to the Accountant-General will be the same as in the case of contract contingencies. The local officers' contract will then only include items over which he can exercise real control. For these special contingencies, which do not require the sanction of Government, it is proposed to make a contract grant to the controlling officer, who will distribute it at his discretion amongst the several disbursing officers. As the existing contracts have still some time to run, the changes indicated above cannot be conveniently effected at once. In the meantime the necessary steps have been taken for securing full criticism of the scheme; and here, the Lieutenant-Governor would observe, with reference to paragraph 20 of the Report, that neither the proposed system, nor any other which could be devised, would relieve controlling and disbursing officers from the necessity of watching expenditure in order to keep it within the limit of the funds at their disposal. Indeed, every relaxation of control from without must increase the necessity for care on the part of the officers by whom expenditure is incurred.

A—Special
B—Countersigned

10. As regards sanction for the performance of official acts, the Commission first discuss in their 74th and 75th paragraphs those cases in which the sanction of higher authority to the acts of District Officers is required by law. Formerly, they represent, when Collectors were empowered to take certain action, it was for the most part considered that a discreet use of their powers was sufficiently secured by the general control exercised over them by Government and the Board of Revenue; but of late years it has become customary to insert in the Acts, which are from time to time passed, provisions requiring the sanction of superior authority to the proceedings of District Officers. Within the last six or seven years, it is said, provisions of this kind have become so frequent as to constitute a serious impediment to prompt executive action; and in some cases all mention of the subordinate officers is omitted, and it is the Lieutenant-Governor who is burdened with the duty of discharging functions which do not rise above the level of the most ordinary executive details. As instances of this, the Cess Act, the Embankment Act, and the Municipal Act are cited. In order to remedy this state of things, the Commission propose that a short Act should be passed enabling the Lieutenant-Governor to delegate to certain officers subordinate to him the powers reserved to him by Acts of the Imperial and Local Legislative Councils, and enabling the Board of Revenue and Commissioners with or without the permission of Government, to delegate their powers to subordinate officers. One of the members of the Commission, Baboo Durgagatee Banerjee, dissents from this proposal.

11. As the Commission rightly point out, the change above proposed would necessitate legislation, and the Lieutenant-Governor does not think it probable that a Bill couched in the general terms suggested would commend itself either to the Government of India and the Secretary of State or to the Legislature. Sir Rivers Thompson himself would have found it easier to form an opinion on the necessity for action, more or less in the direction proposed, if specific instances had been adduced in which the law unnecessarily hampers the action of District Officers. Appendix VII, Parts I to III, enumerate certain provisions of law requiring in various cases the sanction of Government, the Board, or the Commissioner before action can be taken, but the Commission have not distinguished those cases in which such sanction might in their judgment safely be dispensed with, and Sir Rivers Thompson has found, on examining these statements in detail, that though there may in some instances be room for doubt, yet in a large majority of cases the reservation of authority made by the law is undoubtedly necessary. On the whole, then, on the evidence presented by the Commission, he can only say that he is unable to approve of the Commission's sweeping proposal, which, if carried into effect, would enable the Lieutenant-Governor to transfer to subordinate officials all or any of the powers at present reserved to him by law. If in individual cases the authority of District Officers is unnecessarily hampered, Sir Rivers Thompson is willing to consider the expediency of amending the law; but no such cases have been specifically mentioned, and he is therefore precluded from taking action, and must leave the matter to be dealt with in different departments as the Acts which regulate their proceedings from time to time come up for revision.

12. The latter part of Chapter IV treats chiefly of those cases in which sanction to the proceedings of District Officers is required by Executive authority, and three general principles are laid down, in accordance with which, it is urged, many of the sanctions now required might safely be abolished. Those general principles do not seem to the Lieutenant-Governor to be all of equal value. He is prepared to admit that as a general rule there can be no need of sanction to the performance of an act which must be done, such as the satisfaction of a decree of a civil court which has become final, and he also accepts the view that there can in most cases be no need of previous sanction to an order against which there is a right of subsequent appeal; but the third of the general principles propounded by the Commission does not seem to him to be equally sound, because, though all the facts in any particular case may be as well known to a subordinate officer as to the superior authority by whom his proceedings are controlled, yet it may be desirable that an opinion should be formed upon them and a decision arrived at by the riper judgment of the latter, and with reference, it may be, to questions of general policy which seldom fall within the province of local officers to consider. Paragraphs 78 to 96 propose certain specific alterations in the Board's Rules with the object, for the most part, of relaxing the control now exercised over Collectors in matters of detail. Before passing orders upon these proposals, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it necessary to consult the Board and the remarks above will serve to show how far he desires that the Commission's three principles should be accepted in those cases to which they are applicable. The proposals regarding ferries and pounds, contained in the Commission's 96th paragraph, will be referred for the consideration and orders of the Judicial Department of this Government.

13. Chapter V discusses in some detail the periodical and other reports which at present enable Government to watch and control the work done throughout the province in different departments. Correspondence bearing on this subject is at present going on between this Government and the Government of India, and though some of the questions raised in this chapter will not be affected by the decision which may be thus arrived at, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it better to defer considering the subject as a whole till the views of the Government of India are known. The views expressed by the Commission regarding the present form of various reports will be considered in detail in the several departments concerned. At present it is only necessary to observe that the Commission seem to have misunderstood the opinion expressed by the Government of the North-Western Provinces that officers educate themselves by means of reports. As Sir Rivers Thompson understands this remark, its meaning is not that officers gain information by reading old reports, but that they are made acquainted with the facts with which they have to deal by the enquiries and comparisons which are necessary in the preparation of the reports which they have themselves to write. Chapter VI proposes certain changes in the revenue registers kept up in district offices. These proposals involve no general principle calling for an expression of the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion and before considering them in detail, the Board of Revenue will be consulted.

14. Paragraphs 112 to 118 in Chapter VII of the Report discuss the method in which English correspondence is dealt with in district offices, and paragraphs 149 and 150 propose certain changes in the existing rules and practice. As circumstances not unfrequently arise which render it necessary to ascertain whether an apparently unimportant communication has or has not been received or issued, the Lieutenant-Governor cannot approve of the exclusion of any class of correspondence from the registers of letters received and despatched; but he agrees with the Commission in thinking that in some other points the Board's excellent system might, with advantage, be simplified. Thus, letters of transient interest falling under the Board's Rule 12 in section 1 of Chapter XI on page 238 of Volume I) need not, he thinks, be docketed; and if it be found convenient to keep letters of this class unfolded in a box or between two pieces of mill-board, instead of folding and tying them up in the usual way, there would seem to be no objection to this course. Each such miscellaneous collection should contain, like an ordinary file, a list showing in chronological order the letters included in it; but if it were found convenient to pin together two or more letters on the same subject, this could be done. Again, if any difficulty be found in putting a stop to the practice of wasting time over lengthy abstracts on the docket covers of letters, abstracts might probably be altogether omitted without much inconvenience, if due attention be paid to the Board's Rule 2 in section 1 of Chapter X, above cited, which directs that each file shall consist of the letters received and sent in the course of a consecutive correspondence on one subject. It is only when correspondence bearing more or less on one subject, but not belonging to a single consecutive series, is wrongly placed in a single file that abstracts on the docket covers become really necessary. Similarly, the registers of letters received and issued would probably not lose much of their utility if the column headed "Subject" were omitted, as the reference given to the collection and file is in itself sufficient to enable a clerk to trace any entry. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the opinion expressed by the Board in Rule 2 of section IVB of their Chapter XI, above cited, that letters could not always be classified under the headings A. B. until the correspondence is complete, and he attaches no particular importance to exact uniformity in the arrangement of files under the head of Collections so long as the essential difference between a file and a collection is uniformly observed. It is, he thinks, on this point that the efficacy of the Board's system in preventing confusion and saving labour mainly turns.

15. Much space which is now wasted in record-rooms would no doubt be saved if all such useless old records as those mentioned in paragraph 151 of the Report were destroyed; but it seems to Sir Rivers Thompson necessary that they should be dealt with, if possible, in accordance with some definite rule, so as to obviate the necessity of employing an officer of sufficient experience to distinguish independently between valuable and useless papers. The clearing out of record-rooms as here suggested can only be undertaken as the funds at the Board's disposal permit, and it will in each case be necessary to consider whether the space likely to be gained is worth the cost of weeding out and re-binding the old records; but when this is held to be the case, the rule should apparently be that papers which if now received would fall under class A should be preserved, all others being destroyed; and with a definite rule of this kind to guide him, an intelligent clerk, working under the supervision of the record-keeper and the Deputy Collector in charge of the record-room, should have no difficulty in discriminating between what should be destroyed and what must be preserved. This would necessitate a modification of the Board's rule requiring that all old correspondence already bound up in books should be preserved for ever. The expense of re-binding might perhaps be avoided by tying up the remaining papers of one or more years between pieces of mill-board instead of re-binding them.

16. The Lieutenant-Governor recognizes the inconvenience and expense arising, as represented in paragraph 152 of the Report, from the accumulation in mofussil offices of old Gazette volumes, and approves of the new rules proposed by the Commission. This will at once set free a large amount of space in all mofussil offices, and should relieve the Board's record grant from all expenditure on almirahs for a considerable time to come. Possibly it may be thought advisable to spend the money thus set free on the weeding out of old records in the manner suggested in the last preceding paragraph, but this is a matter which must be left to the Board's decision. It is suggested in paragraph 153 that notifications, &c., which only concern Calcutta and its Suburbs should be excluded from the copies of the Gazette sent to the mofussil, being only published in a Calcutta edition. The publisher reports that there will be no difficulty in carrying out this suggestion, and as the arrangement proposed will be both economical and convenient, Sir Rivers Thompson has decided to adopt it.

17. Paragraphs 154 and 155 of the Report contain suggestions to which the Lieutenant-Governor attaches considerable importance, for the utilization of the Postal Department and its offices in the publication and issue of notices.

"Notices," it is said, "play a very important part in the administration of the country, and much of the routine work in a district office consists in preparing them and making proper arrangements for their service. A notice may be said to be the voice of Government,—the official channel through which the public are instructed and informed regarding sanctions and prohibitions, the things which they may do, or are enjoined to do, or are forbidden to do. It is the motive power or lever by which the machinery of administration is set in motion. It is therefore necessary that it should be certain in its action; and as an exponent of the intention of the Government official entrusted with the duty of giving effect to the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, its result will be infructuous unless the information contained in a notice is made to reach the persons for whom it is intended. It is with this object that specific modes of publication are usually enjoined in the various Regulations and Acts which prescribe the issue of notices. In the earlier Regulations, when the notices had principally reference to some interest in land paying revenue to Government, the usual mode of publication prescribed is by affixing them on the land referred to, or at the zemindar's cutcherry, and sometimes at the Collector's cutcherry. With the advance of administration and the increase of courts and offices, the zillah or Judge's court, the Munsif's court, and the thana or police-station, were added as places for publication. The latter, however, does not appear to have come into general use as a place of publication of notices until 1856 and succeeding years. In more recent Acts this mode of publication has become very general, and the police-station is now a depository of all official notices of any importance. In reviewing the subject generally, we may say that the ordinary mode of publishing notices prescribed by revenue Regulations and Acts is by affixing them at the Collector's office, in the Judge's and Munsif's and sub-divisional cutcherries, at the police-station, at the zemindar's cutcherry, and at some conspicuous place in the village, or on the land or estate referred to in the notice, and sometimes in addition to the above forms by proclamation made by beat of drum. The first three modes of publication are unobjectionable, though it can be only said for them that the notices may possibly attract the attention of persons who frequent the court and are in the habit of studying notice-boards; but the outside public rarely visit courts and offices for the purpose of observing notices, and as to police-stations, they studiously avoid and invariably give them a wide berth. The thana officer usually fixes up the notice in the verandah of the office or in the office itself, which is shunned by all save those whom hard fate compels to enter the police-station either as complainants or accused, and the notices therefore can be rarely of use to the general public. In fact, there are obvious reasons why the police should have nothing to do with revenue notices. In regard to notices affixed to the zemindar's cutcherry and in the village, there are two difficulties to be overcome—(1) of getting a proper receipt, and (2) of ensuring that the notice shall remain where it has been placed; while as regards all these forms of publication there is the expense and trouble to be considered. Publication, to be effective, must be what its name implies, and we proposed to consider how this can be best accomplished. A great defect in the administration of the Lower Provinces has always been the absence of official centres in the interior of districts, at which information affecting the interests of the public generally or particular classes of individuals can be readily communicated to them. The North-Western Provinces have their tehsildars, Bombay the mamlutdars, Madras the village munsifs, while in Bengal there is no office corresponding with any of these centres of communication except sub-divisional offices, and they are too few and far between to suffice for the same purposes as the official centres in other provinces. The rapid extension of the postal system to outlying villages in every district of Bengal seems, however, to offer a simple and practical solution of the difficulty, and we propose to extend the usefulness of the village post-office by making it a medium of communication with the people in official matters. On the principle that all branches of the administration ought to work readily and heartily together, the Postal Department may fairly be asked to allow its numerous post-offices to be utilised as places of publication of notices, seeing how numerous they are, and how conveniently they are dotted about all over the country. In England the post-office has long been regarded as a most suitable place for affixing revenue notices, and we have no doubt that if a proper beginning be made, it will come to be similarly recognised in India. In fact, the rules of some of the revenue departments enjoin that 'officers must furnish post-masters, stamp-distributors and sub-distributors with copies of the notices, and request that they may be kept exhibited for at least six weeks for the information of the public.' The publication of the notices at the post-office possesses several advantages over many of the prescribed modes of publication; it is simple, self working, cheap, and effective. The Collector will merely have to send the notices in duplicate in a registered cover addressed to the village post-master, with a request that he will affix one to the notice board at the post-office and return the other with an endorsement stating the date of publication. There will be no need to send out peons with duplicate notices to be signed by unwilling witnesses to the publication. The post-office is so much frequented that the notice is not likely to be destroyed or torn down. Should it be necessary to have recourse to legislation in order to give effect to this proposal, the use of duplicate notices might be avoided by enacting that if a notice is sent to the post-master in a registered cover, it shall be presumed to have been published at the time when the cover would be delivered in the ordinary course of post, and proof that the cover was properly addressed and put into the post shall be sufficient to raise the presumption that the notice was duly published at the time. It would then be unnecessary for the post-master to make any return to the Collector of the date of publication. The co-operation of the Post Office Department will be necessary, and this might be obtained by offering to pay one anna per notice, which the Collector could affix to each notice, the stamp to be used having the word 'notice' printed across it. In Appendix XII is given a compendium of all general revenue notices, as distinct from notices which have to be served on individuals, mentioned in the Regulations and Acts in force in the Lower Provinces, and the last column shows the changes in the existing law which the Commission propose in order to legalise the use of post-offices as the recognised places for the publication of general revenue notices."

This proposal entirely meets with Sir Rivers Thompson's approval. He considers it to be very desirable that the administration of the revenue laws should be relieved from even so much connection with the police administration as is involved in the publication at thanas of revenue notices; and he believes that if the practice of publishing all such notices at post-offices be generally adopted, it will, within a very short time, remove the difficulties which District Officers now find in giving to them real as distinguished from merely formal publicity. But before action can be taken in this matter, a reference must be made to the Postal Department to ascertain their views and secure their co-operation. In paragraph 155 it is further suggested that letters registered or unregistered, delivered through the post-office, should be made the usual means of serving notices which, under the revenue laws, have to be delivered to individuals. The modes of service at present in use, it is said,

"make it necessary to maintain a large army of process-servers whose notorious untrustworthiness prevents notices from being promptly served or strictly enforced, and is one of the chief hindrances to the speedy despatch of business in a Collector's office."

In some recent Acts the service of notices by post is allowed, and the Income-tax Act contains the provision that,

"if a notice is served by registered letter, it shall be presumed to have been served at the time when the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post, and proof that the letter was properly addressed and put into the post shall be sufficient to raise the presumption that the notice was duly served at that time."

The extension of a similar provision to all revenue notices required to be served on individuals would seem to be all that is here necessary. The Commission are of opinion that in every case of service of notice on individuals, an option should be given to the Collector of sending it (1) by the ordinary post, or (2) by registered letter.

"The provision in the Income-tax Act," they say "is defective, in that it fails to distinguish between cases in which compliance with the notice is optional, and no consequences ensue from non-compliance, and those in which a penalty or other injury to interests attaches to non-compliance. It is patent that, when it is optional to a person to comply with a notice, and when no consequences attach to non-compliance, no necessity can arise for proving the service, and therefore it is mere waste of time and money to go through the form of registration."

In the absence of any mention of specific instances, the Lieutenant-Governor does not clearly understand to what class of notices the Commission refer as those the service of which can never require to be proved because no consequences attach to non-compliance; nor does he think that it would be always easy to distinguish beforehand between the cases in which service is, and those in which it is not, likely to be disputed. His view is that, when the law requires the service of a notice upon any person, the Collector should satisfy himself, or have the means of satisfying himself, that the law has been complied with, and consequently in all such cases a registered letter should be employed.

18. The views expressed in paragraph 156 of the Report will be communicated to the Board for consideration in connection with correspondence at present going on between that body and Government on the subject of supposed illicit sales of hide (or puckwa) salt. In paragraph 157 the suggestion is made that a digest should be prepared of important orders of Government on a similar plan to the Board's rules. It is urged that such a digest would promote the despatch of business and secure a proper continuity of procedure in the Secretariat offices, thus preventing the possibility of orders issued during the régime of one Lieutenant-Governor being lost sight of by his successor. The preservation of such a digest in a complete form would be a work of some difficulty; and though recognising the value of the Commission's suggestion, the Lieutenant-Governor cannot at present depute an officer to undertake it. But arrangements will be made for keeping in each department of Government a separate file of the general orders which may in future from time to time be issued. The several Registrars will also be instructed to make as complete a collection as possible of the general orders now in force; and in this way the materials for a complete digest will be gradually collected. Arrangements will be made, as recommended in paragraph 158 of the Report, for supplying District Officers with spare copies of all printed letters addressed to them, and a circular will in due course be issued directing that these spare copies shall be treated in the manner there proposed.

19. Paragraphs 159 to 161 of the Report call attention to the great delay which arises in disposing of petitions partly at all events in consequence of the cumbrous and awkward procedure followed in collecting the necessary information for the officer who has to pass orders upon them. In order to remedy this evil, the Commission propose to introduce the use of forms suited to the various classes of petitions most commonly received containing spaces in which the required information can be briefly entered in English. The idea seems a happy one, and the Board will be requested to introduce the use of such forms experimentally in half a dozen selected districts. If the system succeeds when tried on a small scale, there will be no difficulty in extending it. As a further check on delay, the Board will be asked to direct that their register No. 27 shall in future be kept in English. The proposal made in paragraph 162 of the report, to introduce the use of rubber seals, will be commended to the Board's consideration. The Registrar of the Calcutta University states that the chromograph does not work satisfactorily in damp weather. Its suitability for use in Bengal must therefore be very doubtful. Had the Commission been aware of these facts, they would probably have reconsidered the proposal made in their paragraph 163. With reference to paragraph 164, the Board will be asked to consider the expediency of introducing in Calcutta the use of the stamping machine there described.

20. Before considering in detail the several matters discussed in Chapter VIII of the Report, Sir Rivers Thompson deems it right to record that it is not in his judgment necessary or advisable to lay down strict unbending rules restricting the discretion of a district officer regarding the manner in which he shall employ the services of his staff. A procedure which works well in a small district, or in the hands of an exceptionally quick officer, might break down, or, at all events, produce very unsatisfactory results in a large district, or in the hands of an officer who works with more deliberation. What may safely be done by an experienced officer who knows his district and his staff well may be highly dangerous if attempted by a young man who is for the first time in charge of a district. The successful Collector, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, is not the man who sits aloof and endeavours to do everything for himself, but the man who utilizes to the utmost the knowledge and intelligence, as well as the energy and industry, of his staff. He is quite certain that nothing is gained, but much is lost, by throwing upon highly paid gazetted officers any work which can be equally well done by officers on the subordinate establishment on comparatively small pay. With respect to the relations which should exist between a district officer and his subordinates, Sir Rivers Thompson agrees in the opinion of Mr. Thomason, a former Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, as cited by Mr. Grimley, on page 308 of the Report. He cannot accept the view that every ministerial officer must be regarded as necessarily corrupt and restricted to the performance of purely mechanical work. If some of them, as occasionally happens, are corrupt, the necessity for using the knowledge and intelligence of such men without blindly trusting them is one of the difficulties which a district officer has to meet and overcome: but this difficulty is one from which no formal rules can relieve him. Turning now to the several irregular practices which the Commission notice in Chapter VIII, Sir Rivers Thompson concurs with them in condemning the practice of requiring a précis to be put up with every bundle of correspondence. Indeed, a note consisting of a mere reproduction of the last letter, or the last few letters in a bundle, is so obviously useless that it can hardly be necessary to condemn as a pure waste of time the practice of making or requiring such notes. But brief notes of another kind, referring to relevant rules or orders, citing previous correspondence bearing on some point at issue, or pointing out omissions, are often very useful, especially when the Collector is new to the district or to the work; and though the three classes specified in paragraph 166 probably include most of the cases in which long notes are necessary, the Lieutenant-Governor does not think it necessary to pass definite orders restricting the use of notes to such cases. With the opinions expressed in paragraph 167 also the Lieutenant-Governor finds himself unable to concur. The young officer who invariably passed orders at once on hearing the vernacular papers of settlement or partition cases read out to him, would be likely to make a good many mistakes. The officer, old or young, who passed orders in the same way regarding claims to money in deposit would place himself at the mercy of a mohurir, who might or might not read correctly either the original petition or the kaifiyats given by the office. Claims to money in deposit should, as a rule, be in the hands of a Deputy Collector, on whose report, with such further information, if any, as may seem necessary, the Collector's order should be based; but if for any reason the services of a Deputy Collector are not available for this purpose, it is, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, very unsafe for the Collector to pass his order without either reading the papers himself or having before him an English note signed by an officer responsible for its correctness. Such a note need not, and in important cases should not, be regarded as removing the necessity for hearing the papers read, but only as an additional precaution against possible mistake or fraud. Again, in stamp cases Sir Rivers Thompson sees no objection to the practice of requiring a note from the peshkar or other officer in charge of them. His view of the case need not be accepted; but nevertheless it may save the Collector several minutes of valuable time. In the case instanced by the Commission as a reckless waste of time in which an officer ordered his sheristadar to compare a kabuliyat with its corresponding pottah, instead of making the comparison himself, it appears to Sir Rivers Thompson that the officer was presumably right, because it could be no more difficult for the sheristadar to do the work than for the officer himself, and his own time was the more valuable. It may of course be the case that this particular order was passed from mere indolence, and not in order to save time required for other work; but this does not appear on the face of the report. Again, taking the case referred to at the end of paragraph 167, it does not appear to the Lieutenant-Governor to be at all a matter of course that the Collector would have been justified in spending ten minutes in questioning the peshkar, and some further time in examining the registers instead of calling upon the peshkar to explain in writing. In all cases of importance it is desirable that any explanation taken from a ministerial officer should be reduced at the earliest possible stage to the form of a written statement from which he cannot recede. Time would no doubt have been saved if the peshkar had been able to write his explanation in English, or if the Collector had been content with having it in Bengali; but whether the latter course was a possible one depended on circumstances which are not mentioned, such as the purpose for which the explanation was required. If it was required for embodiment in an English report or note, it was presumably better that the translation which had in any case to be made should be made by the sheristadar than by his more highly paid superior officer.

These cases have been noticed somewhat at length because what has been said regarding them in their report seems to show that the Commission insufficiently realize the fact that in many of the heavier districts the Collector could not get through his work at all, if he did not consistently avoid taking upon himself any work which can properly be done for him; and that in such districts the object in view should be, not to see how much of the details of work can be thrown upon the Collector, but how far he can be relieved of such details

It will be understood from what has been said above that the Lieutenant-Governor is unable to concur in much of what is said in paragraph 168. An officer who allows the decision of cases for which he is responsible to rest with his sheristadar or other subordinates is of course altogether without excuse; but, on the other hand, it does not seem to be justifiable to assume that an officer who requires his subordinates to put up notes, abstracts, and translations, or even in matters of routine to draft orders necessarily exercises his own judgment in all these matters less fully than one who retains more of the details of work in his own hands. This matter, again, is one with respect to which, in Sir Rivers Thompson's opinion, no rigid rule can properly be laid down. The office staff should not, of course, be so much employed in one kind of work as unduly to delay the disposal of work of another kind, nor should a Collector blindly accept the suggestions of his subordinates, or employ them to such an extent as to leave himself without full employment; but so long as these conditions are fulfilled, and the quality of the work turned out is good, Sir Rivers Thompson sees no necessity for imposing upon district officers minute rules prescribing the manner in which they shall employ their staff.

21. In discussing the questions raised in paragraph 169 of the Report, it is necessary to distinguish between the receiving of petitions and the hearing of them. There would seem to be no reason why the Collector or a Deputy Collector, acting under the Collector's instructions, should not receive petitions in open court at any time throughout the day, but it is obvious that he could not stop in the midst of other work to hear them read. In many cases, too, he could not take action upon them without calling for papers or otherwise referring to the office. It is also desirable, as the Commission observe, that the time of district officers should not be wasted over routine petitions, and consequently the necessity arises for sorting petitions before sending the important ones to the Collector for orders. When a petition has been received it is a simple matter to initial and date it, and send it into the office, where it should be at once entered in register No. 27. When on examination a petition is found not to be a pure matter of routine, it should be submitted to the Collector or to the Deputy Collector concerned for orders. The question which the Commission's remarks seem to raise, and with respect to which there may be room for doubt, is whether, in the case of purely routine petitions, they should in all cases be read to the Collector or Deputy Collector, or whether it is allowable to continue what is now the very common practice of writing the necessary order upon them in the office and taking the Collector's or Deputy Collector's signature as a mere matter of form. It is easy to see that objections may be raised to the existing practice; but, on the other hand, it is necessary to consider how many routine petitions have to be dealt with in the Collectorate of a large district, how much time a Deputy Collector would daily have to spend in hearing and passing orders upon them, whether it often happens that the routine orders submitted for signature are not correct, and whether sufficient control over the disposal of routine petitions might not be secured by keeping up register No. 27 in English. In all such cases as the present, it must be borne in mind that whatever time and energy is devoted to supererogatory work is taken from really important work, of which there is in almost every district more than enough to occupy its staff of gazetted officers; but before expressing a decided opinion, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it best to consult the Board and some experienced mofussil officers.

22. The Lieutenant Governor agrees with the Commission in thinking it desirable that District Officers should, when at head-quarters, open their letters themselves or have them opened in their presence. In a large district the latter practice saves a good deal of trouble, especially if the officer employed stamps the date on each letter instead of leaving the Collector to enter it by hand. When the letters are laid before him in a pile, the Collector can readily look through them, passing immediate orders where necessary, and sending the rest to the office to be put up with connected papers for orders. He is also disposed to agree with the Commission's view that District Officers would generally do well to draft all important letters themselves; and even when an officer does not write the draft himself, it is a great economy of labour to pass his orders in such a way that they can be embodied in, and form the substance of, the draft without altering the language.

23. The practice noticed in paragraph 172, of allowing amlas to issue certificates at their discretion, is one which does not admit of approval. In those cases in which certificates are issued in hundreds for the realization of road cess and the like, it is of course impossible that the Collector himself or one of his Deputy Collectors should look into the circumstances of each individual defaulter; but in such cases certificates should be issued in accordance with some general rule laid down by the Collector, as, for instance, against all who are in default to a certain amount or who have been in default for a certain time. In isolated cases certificates should not be drawn up for issue without orders from a responsible officer. The Lieutenant-Governor thinks it very desirable that Collectors should, as far as possible, avoid the issue of certificates for trivial sums, and he proposes to call the Board's attention to what is said on this subject in the final clause of paragraph 172; but the question is not free from difficulty especially in the Irrigation Department, which often has to deal with demands large in the aggregate but made up of numerous small claims which must be either enforced or relinquished. If in the Land Acquisition cases referred to in this paragraph the Collector and Deputy Collector actually left to their subordinates the determination of the compensation to be offered, they acted in direct opposition to the first of the Board's general rules bearing on the subject; but without having all the facts before him and hearing the explanation of the officers concerned, the Lieutenant-Governor is reluctant to suppose that this was the case.

24. At present, as explained in paragraph 173 of the Report, besides the fixed establishment of each District Officer, an additional establishment according to a fixed scale is allowed for each Deputy Collector and Deputy Magistrate. In many cases the temporary clerks thus entertained are not employed under the Deputy Magistrate or Deputy Collector to whose staff they properly belong, but in some other part of the office, the Deputy Collector's establishment being regarded as an elastic portion of the general Collectorate staff available for employment wherever there is pressure of work. In the Patna Division, it is said, no special establishments are told off for Deputy Collectors, but each has charge of some branch of work, and mohurirs or clerks are deputed from the Collector's establishment to attend on them The Commission take exception to the anomaly of employing on other work clerks properly belonging to a Deputy Collector's establishment. But there would be manifest inconvenience in the rule that a Deputy Collector, in whatever work he may be employed, shall only have the assistance of presumably inexperienced or otherwise inferior men belonging to the temporary staff; and it may be presumed that the present practice would not have grown up and become general unless it were found to be practically advantageous. In the absence then, so far as appears from the report, of any practical evil results, Sir Rivers Thompson is of opinion that so long as the present rules remain unchanged, the practice of employing on other work temporary clerks and mohurirs properly belonging to a Deputy Collector's staff may be allowed to continue. But the advisability of maintaining the present system without modification seems to His Honour to be open to question. He can hold out no hope of absolutely fixing, as the Commission recommend, the number of gazetted officers employed at each station; nor can he accept without reservation the opinion that work does not increase because a Deputy Collector is appointed, or diminish when he is removed The former point will be considered in connection with Chapter IX of the Report; and as regards the latter, Sir Rivers Thompson's view is that the work which has to be done in the office in connection with a given number of cases remains the same, whatever may be the number of Deputy Collectors employed in deciding them, while, as the number of Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors increases, an increased number of mohurirs is required to attend upon them in Court. In the purely administrative work of the Excise, Income-tax, Road Cess, and other similar departments, it is no doubt the case that an increase in the number of gazetted officers in no way increases the work of the office. Indeed, any change which it makes should be in the other direction, as with a full staff of gazetted officers less need be left in the hands of the subordinate staff. But, however this may be, a certain number of Deputy Collectors must be employed in every district, and the chief objection to the present system lies in the fact that a considerable number of clerks and mohurirs, whose services are in fact permanently required, are precluded from counting their service as qualifying them for pension. They doubtless generally look forward to getting appointments on the permanent staff, but many years may elapse before they succeed. To a man placed in this position the temptation to provide for his old age, not by living more economically than his neighbours, but by improper means, is considerable, and it is very desirable that the number of temporary appointments should be greatly reduced, if such appointments cannot be got rid of altogether. The matter is one on which further enquiry is necessary and the Board of Revenue will be consulted; but what occurs to the Lieutenant-Governor as possible is to bring upon the permanent establishment the smallest temporary staff which has in each district been employed at any time during the years 1884-85 to 1886-87, to determine what is to be regarded as the normal staff of gazetted officers for each district, and to lay down the rule that when there is a staff of Deputy Collectors in excess of the normal scale, the employment of two extra clerks only shall be allowed for each additional Deputy Collector

25. With reference to paragraph 174 of the Report, the Board will be asked to consider the expediency of abolishing the use of rubakaris in such cases as those there noticed. The Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the Commission in condemning the practice of wasting time over formal correspondence between District Officers and their subordinates at head-quarters. When a written communication is necessary it can be made either by means of a memorandum which may form part of an English file or vernacular "nathi," or by means of an entry in an order-book. He also agrees with the Commission in thinking that when a revenue petition is on the face of it obviously groundless, it might with advantage be rejected without a reference to the officer whose proceedings are appealed against; but the degree of relief which this change of practice—if it be a change—would afford to executive officers and their establishments must depend upon the number of cases in which obviously groundless appeals are preferred; and this is a point on which no definite opinion can be formed. In many instances, however, really groundless appeals include allegations which, if substantiated, would justify the reversal or modification of the order appealed against, and in all such cases it is necessary that a report, meeting in detail each separate allegation, should continue to be called for.

26. In paragraph 176 the Commission begin by remarking that the great reductions in routine work which their proposals will help to bring about cannot be fully carried out unless certain changes are made in the system at present followed in allotting gazetted officers to districts, and they express the opinion forced upon them by long experience that Government is not fully acquainted with the requirements of various districts. They point out (what is perfectly well known to Government) that, during the unhealthiest part of the year, districts are sometimes undermanned, and are apparently of opinion that the strength of the staff attached to each district should be absolutely fixed; or, in other words, that no officer should ever be removed from a district without another being sent to take his place. As the Government is in constant communication with Commissioners and District Officers throughout the Province on the subject of their requirements, Sir Rivers Thompson is unable to concur with the Commission in attributing to insufficient information on the part of Government the fact that the staff at the disposal of District Officers is often reduced to an embarassing extent during the hot weather and rains. The cause lies in another direction. It would no doubt be a great advantage from an administrative point of view if the numerical strength of the staff of gazetted officers attached to each district could be absolutely fixed; but as the number of officers absent on leave, through sickness and other causes, is much larger between April and October than during the rest of the year, this result could only be attained by keeping up a reserve of unemployed officers during the cold weather months. The fact simply is that the Province is under-officered, that is to say, it has not such a staff of covenanted and uncovenanted officers as is necessary to ensure that each district shall at all seasons be fully manned. Hence it frequently happens between the months of April and October that an officer has to be moved from one district to another, not because he was not wanted where he was, but because he is still more wanted somewhere else. The District Officer, whose staff is thus depleted naturally complains, and the Commissioner supports his representations; but the Government has not a man at its disposal and can do nothing, not because it fails to recognize the reasonableness of the complaint, and deplores it, but because the district from which the officer has been moved could only be relieved by causing still greater inconvenience to some other district.

27. In paragraphs 178 and 179, the Commission propose that one of the Deputy Collectors, attached to the Sudder station of each large district, should be nominated and officially recognized as Personal Assistant to the Magistrate and Collector. His duties would be—

I.—To supervise the preparation of all returns, statements, explanations, and regular periodical reports, and submit them to the proper authority under his own signature The periodical reports would of course be laid before the Collector in draft, and revised, curtailed, or added to by him as he might desire.

II.—To see that all explanations and "kaifiyats" are punctually given by the record-keeper, nazir, or other amla from whom they are due to the officers who have called for them, not merely to the Collector, but also to the Deputy Collectors in charge of the departments to which the kaifiyat refers.

III.—To receive all petitions on the revenue side of the office (unless the District Officer should prefer to do this himself, as he perhaps usually would in the lighter districts), submitting the important ones to the Collector for orders, making over those referring to any particular department to the Deputy Collector in charge of that department, and passing orders himself on all petitions in the General Department which he is competent to deal with.

IV.—To see that all cases are promptly brought up for orders before the officer on whose file they are pending.

V.—To issue reminders to sub-divisional officers and others subordinate to the Collector-Magistrate; to issue routine orders to Sub-Deputies, canoongoes, ameens, and other officers in charge of field-work and local enquiries; and to see that they submit their reports without undue delay, bringing to the Collector's notice all instances of persistent negligence or procrastination.

VI.—To submit under his own signature replies to all routine letters and communications.

VII.—To supervise the distribution of current work among the amla, and to see that each man does a proper amount of work, thus guarding against the tendency to ask for special establishments and temporary clerks whenever any extra work has to be done.

VIII.—To see that all registers and records are properly kept up and entries punctually made, and specially to guard against delays on the part of the record-room amla in furnishing copies or returning documents to the public, and in producing records for the inspection of the courts.

IX.—To sign all contingent, travelling allowance and other bills.

X.—To submit to the Collector notes when required on stamp cases, claims to money in deposit, opening of separate accounts, and similar matters.

The Personal Assistant, it is said, would be the recognized head of the office, responsible for the proper working of all its parts, and the medium of communication between the District Officer and his ministerial staff, current duties being thus centralised in the hands of an officer whose standing and authority would command the respect of his subordinates and the confidence of his superiors, and who might fairly be expected to be above the dishonorable practices which, it is said, are too common under the sway of sheristadars, peshkars, and men of that stamp. The Personal Assistant should, wherever this is practicable, be a Deputy Collector of one of the higher grades, and his duties might, as a general rule, be combined with those of the treasury officer. In at all events ten of the smaller districts the appointment of a Personal Assistant is not considered necessary. The administration of separate departments would be distributed as at present amongst the whole staff of Deputy Collectors, the Collector retaining the general supervision of the whole, and in small districts the direct management of certain branches of work.

28. At present the treasury officer, against the original intention of the arrangement, is obliged by the necessities of the case to take his share of criminal work, and is placed in direct charge of one or more branches of the revenue administration. If he were relieved of these duties, it would become necessary that some one else should do them, and this would involve the necessity for increasing the strength of the Subordinate Executive Service, which even at present is insufficient for the work which it has to do. The proposed arrangement would therefore be an expensive one; and apart from the expense, Sir Rivers Thompson is of opinion that, from an administrative point of view, it is not desirable to diminish the responsibility and weaken the influence of District Officers by adding another link to the official chain through which their control over actual work must be exercised He cannot coincide in the Commission's view that the District Officer should be relieved of responsibility for the submission of returns and explanations, and it seems to him very doubtful whether a Personal Assistant would be as competent to prepare for the Collector's approval periodical statements and the materials for periodical reports as the Deputy Collector in charge of the practical administration of each department On the whole Sir Rivers Thompson is unable to accept the Commission's proposal.

It is urged in paragraph 180 that unnecessary applications for additional establishments would become less frequent if there were an officer in the position of a Personal Assistant, part of whose duty it would be to exercise a close supervision over the distribution of work in all departments. But, on the other hand, it may be reasonably pressed that the Personal Assistant would be a native of Bengal, with whom the tendency would be to make things pleasant for the permanent establishment and to take opportunities of providing for some deserving candidate for office by making him a temporary clerk. If no check is at present exercised over applications for extra establishment, and if such establishments, when appointed, are not required to do a full tale of work, Sir Rivers Thompson cannot admit that either District Officers or Commissioners are free from blame. A Collector or Magistrate should not at once believe whatever he is told, or accept the theory that officers on his permanent staff are only required to perform the ordinary current duties of his office, but should himself, as far as possible, make arrangements in consultation with the sheristadar or other head of the office for the discharge of such extraordinary duties as may from time to time be thrown upon it. The art of administration consists to a great extent in knowing how to get good work out of subordinates; and there are, in Sir Rivers Thompson's opinion, few surer signs of lax and inefficient administration in any office than excessive readiness to apply for additional establishments

29. Paragraph 181 proposes the establishment in each Collectorate of an Enquiry Office, in which should sit daily at certain fixed hours a gazetted officer, whose duty it would be to answer enquiries, direct persons where to go and what steps to take to get their business done, send for and enquire into complaints of delay, extortion, or neglect of duty on the part of any employé, and see that copies were promptly given, documents returned, searches made, and the business of the public disposed of without delay. The Commission do not suppose that the establishment of such an office would at once have the effect of protecting ignorant people from extortion and unnecessary delay, but they express the opinion that if the Collectors took some little trouble about the matter on the outset, and had the nature and advantages of the Enquiry Office made thoroughly well known, it would not be long before the people would flock to it for information; and the knowledge that any delay or attempt at taking bribes might at any moment be brought to the notice of the Enquiry Officer would, they think, have a powerful tendency to put a stop to abuses.

30. Sir Rivers Thompson is disposed to fear that the unwillingness of injured parties to complain, which at present is the principal obstacle to the suppression of abuses, would not disappear even if an officer were specially set apart for the receipt of complaints. In many cases, too, it would probably be difficult to spare a gazetted officer during a fixed period each day for the hearing of complaints which might or might not be presented. However, before expressing a decided opinion on these points, the Board of Revenue will be requested to consult some mofussil officers of experience upon the proposal.

31. The concluding paragraphs of Chapter IX– Nos. 182 to 188—deal with the Commission's important proposal to amalgamate, as far as possible, the several separate establishments at present kept up in the office of Collectors, Magistrates, and Commissioners. At present there are in all such offices two separate departments—the English and the vernacular—working independently of each other.

"This state of things," they observe in paragraph 182, "like so many other details of our present administrative system, has grown up by degrees during the lapse of years without its real character having been perceived. At first nearly all the work of Collectors was carried on in the vernacular; even returns and reports to higher authority being submitted in that form. The natives were almost entirely ignorant of English, and it seems to have been the custom to employ Eurasians to perform such small portions of the work as required to be done in that language. These men, though able to speak the native languages, were not, as a general rule, able to read Persian and Bengali documents or accounts with the necessary fluency There thus arose a sort of tacit understanding that it was necessary to keep up two sets of officials—one for the English work, the other for the vernacular; and among the men themselves it got to be a fixed idea that those entertained for the one class of work were not expected, or in fact authorised, to know anything about the other. As the years went on and the number of natives acquainted with English increased rapidly, the old type of Eurasian clerk got by degrees elbowed out, and there are not now many men of this class employed in mofussil offices in these provinces. When the English-speaking Bengalis took their place, the theory that the clerks in the English office were not expected to know anything about the vernacular became practically untenable. It is nevertheless clung to by many of them, as well as by the amla of the vernacular establishment, and the President of this Commission remembers more than one instance during his service of Bengali clerks objecting to take up and translate papers in their own vernacular, on the ground that it was not the work for which they had been engaged. There is also some but not much weight in the argument which has been urged on us from certain quarters that educated Bengalis in the present day devote themselves chiefly to the acquisition of English and neglect their own language. However true this may be—and we admit that there is some truth in it—we do not suppose that any of them would find any practical difficulty in reading Bengali documents, or that, if they had to choose between working in the vernacular and losing their appointments, they would hesitate to accept the former alternative."

The practical advantages to be anticipated from the proposed amalgamation of establishments are thus stated in paragraph 184:—

"There are strong reasons for abolishing all distinctions between employés working in English and those working in vernacular, as well as between those who perform magisterial and those who perform revenue duties, and for having in the sudder office of each district only one staff of ministerial officers.

"One of the strongest of these reasons is the double work that goes on under the present system. All the numerous returns now submitted by District Officers to Government, the High Court, and the Board are in many districts first prepared in the vernacular by extracting the necessary facts and figures from registers and the records of cases. When the return, together with the necessary explanations, has been thus prepared, it is read out to one of the clerks in the English office by the mohurir, and he writes it down in English. The same process is followed in many districts in respect of kaifiyats or reports, which are first drawn up in vernacular from the original materials by the record-keeper, taujih navis, or their assistants, and then taken into the English office to be translated. The reverse process also takes place. When an order comes from higher authority in English, or when the Collector himself writes an order in that language, it is often taken into the English office to be translated into vernacular theoretically for the information of amla, who, though they in many instances understand English, still keep up the old fiction of being expected officially to understand only their own vernacular. In making these remarks we would not be understood to say that translations are never required to be made; on the contrary, all orders intended to be understood and acted upon by the general public will of course still require to be translated. What we object to is merely translations from one branch of the office to another, which result in everything having to be done twice over at great waste of time and money, much of which might be avoided by the introduction of a simpler and more economical system. Numerous examples have come under our notice of the evil effects of the dual system, all tending to show how it multiplies work, causes delay, and enhances the difficulty, at all times great in a district office, of fixing responsibility for mistakes."

In the Magistrate's office, it is said, the post of the sheristadar was amalgamated with that of the head clerk in 1862, but the rest of the establishment continued to be divided into two separate branches, and the result has been that the head clerk and sheristadar practically confines his attention to the English office, all vernacular work being left to the peshkar or head mohurir—an officer on comparatively low pay.

32. If the Commission's proposal be adopted, the whole of the Collector's establishment, with the exception of certain special departments, which are separately considered, will be amalgamated with the whole of the Magistrate's establishment in a single graded staff, each member of which will be available for employment in any department of the amalgamated office. Some of the highest grades would no doubt have to be reserved for picked men; but, except in cases of special merit or demerit, promotion from one grade to another would, up to a certain point, amongst fully qualified officers, be regulated by seniority, and each member of the staff would be required to work as occasion arose, either in English or in the vernacular of the district. The Commission express the hope that if their proposals in this matter be accepted, Collectors will not find it difficult to select from their present staff an establishment every member of which will be capable of working both in English and in the vernacular. This view may at the moment be too sanguine, and in any case its realisation must be contingent on the reduction of work by the simplification of procedure as proposed; but even if it should, in some districts, be found impossible at once to form a staff, every member of which should be capable of working either in English or in the vernacular, there would seem to be no reason why this qualification should not be regarded as a sine quâ non for all future appointments, and, if this be done, the desired result must gradually be attained. Meantime, those members of the graded staff, who do not know English or cannot work in the vernacular, may be kept in the lower grades and employed to the best advantage on such work as they are capable of doing. In Commissioners' offices the amalgamation of the two departments would apparently be a very simple matter. The rates of pay to be fixed for the several grades and the financial aspect of the scheme generally will be considered hereafter in connection with the Commission's eleventh chapter. The previous administrative question, as to the possibility and expediency of amalgamation with a view to the simplification of work and the improvement of the position of the ministerial staff, must first be decided, and the Lieutenant-Governor, subject to an expression of the Board's opinion, need only say at present that the views of the Commission have his approval.

33. Chapter X discusses the economic and social changes which, in the Commission's opinion, necessitate a general and systematic revision of the salaries at present paid to ministerial officers. Paragraph 190, with which must be read Appendix XVI, considers the rise which is said to have occurred in the price of provisions since the last general revision of salaries in the year 1865, and in the following ten paragraphs an endeavour is made to measure the increased expenditure said to be necessitated by social changes in respect of such matters as marriage, religious ceremonies, the employment of servants, dress, the use of conveyances, house-rent, medicine and education. The general conclusion arrived at is that, the cost of living has risen 75 per cent. since the year 1865; that there are unmistakable indications on all sides of an upward tendency; and that though an increase of salaries to the extent of 75 per cent. may be impracticable, the scale should be raised as much in reference to the present and prospective rise in the cost of living as the state of the finances may permit.

The Bengali gentleman who sat as one of the members of the Commission dissents from the view expressed in the report on the subject of social changes:—

"It should be borne in mind," he writes, "that the amla class includes persons of very different grades of society Their earnings vary from Rs 8 to Rs 200, and their social and domestic requirements cannot be fairly represented by a few extracts from the replies of a few officers of the highest grade, or of officers in the Subordinate, Executive or Judicial Service. Details about clothing, domestic servants, marriage expenses of a sheristadar on Rs. 200, or of a Deputy Collector or Subordinate Judge have little or no relation to the requirements of a mohurir on Rs. 12 or Rs. 20; so that the statements of such officers, as extracted in this chapter, are of little value If they do anything they serve only to mislead. In this country domestic requirements vary, not according to official rank or pay, but according to caste. A Satgope mohurir on Rs. 16 is much better off in his circumstances because his requirements are less than those of a Brahman or a Kayast on twice that pay. The former, generally speaking, maintains no relatives; the latter is bound by the rules of his community to support many. So that returns of domestic establishment obtained from different grades of officers irrespective of their caste cannot but be delusive * * * * I demur to the marshalling of figures which are primâ facie not correct, and can serve no good purpose in arriving at a correct conclusion."

34. Sir Rivers Thompson entertains the belief that in the classes from which amla are taken, as in most other classes of the community, the standard of comfort has in recent years risen, and will continue to rise in the future; but the question whether this is so or not is not, in his judgment, one which it is necessary for Government in the present connection to consider. From the innumerable applications which come before the Government for employment in the public service in all its grades and departments, there can be little doubt that the supply of well qualified and educated men far exceeds the appointments which are at the disposed of Government. So long as the salaries offered suffice to secure the services of competent men, and do not fall conspicuously below the emoluments which similarly qualified persons can secure elsewhere, the presumption must, he thinks, be that the present scale of pay is sufficiently high. It is not of course necessary that the salaries of Government servants should be equal in amount to the incomes which may be secured by successful private enterprise, because the certainty of the former and the prospect offered of a pension on retirement materially affect the question.

35. The report does not state how the prices given in Appendix XVI were obtained, but it has been ascertained demi-officially that those of the year 1868 were mainly taken from the statement of prices given in the Jail Administration Report. Those of the year 1884, it is said, were taken from returns received from a large number of persons consulted by the Commission; but the statistics so obtained were supplemented, and, where necessary, modified in accordance with the result of enquiries addressed to respectable dealers and others. It is apparent therefore that the figures cannot be accepted as unquestionably correct. Moreover, the prices of individual years depend so much on good or bad harvest and other temporary causes that it would, in any case, be necessary, in order to establish a permanent rise of prices, to compare not two single years but two series of years. The following table, compiled from the Jail Administration Reports for the years 1868 to 1885, exhibits results differing widely from those shown in the report.

36. A complete series of figures for each division separately is not readily obtainable in respect of most of the articles shown in Appendix XVI. In respect of food-grains the general course of prices has from time to time been fully considered, and from Chapter II of Mr. O'Conor's latest review of prices and wages in India, it appears that the average number of seers of rice selling for a rupee in Bengal has been as follows during the several periods indicated:—

Number of seers per rupee ...	18·66	22 87	18·9	16·05	21·61

The year 1885 was a very bad one for rice in Bengal, and the number of seers fell to 15·18, but during the current year prices have again fallen. The opinion was at one time general amongst economists that the depreciation in the value of silver as measured in gold must result in or be accompanied by a corresponding rise in the silver prices of commodities in India. But Mr. Barbour and others have shown that statistics do not support this view; and while, on the whole, Sir Rivers Thompson does not doubt that the cost of living has risen, he cannot accept the Commission's estimate of the extent to which this has been the case.

37. Chapter XI, with the corresponding appendices, exhibits and discusses in detail the revised scale of establishments recommended for Commissioners, Collectors (including Deputy Commissioners), and Sub-divisional Officers. Complete and final orders cannot be passed upon these proposals till it has been ascertained how far effect can be given to the changes of procedure proposed in the preceding chapters of the Report; but in the meantime certain questions, incidentally arising, seem to the Lieutenant-Governor to call for notice. He is also pleased to direct that, pending the issue of final orders, the numerical strength fixed by the Commission shall be provisionally regarded as the normal strength of the establishment in each department or group of departments. As vacancies occur promotion may be given within the office, but the vacancy at the bottom of the chain should, if possible, not be filled up. Where this is found to be impracticable, a man may, under the Commissioner's orders or with his previous sanction, be appointed to fill the vacancy but all such appointments must be treated as merely temporary ones.

38. If the English and vernacular establishments of District Officers are to be amalgamated as proposed, so as to form a single graded staff, it will be necessary to decide whether the salaries allotted to each grade shall be fixed as they are at present in the English Department, or shall rise by periodical increments as they do in the Vernacular Department. The majority of the Commission are in favour of fixed salaries, while one of the members, Baboo Durgagatee Banerjee, takes the opposite view. The reasons for the two conflicting opinions are stated, but as the same question is at present under the Lieutenant-Governor's consideration in connection with a reference made by the Finance Committee, it would not, he thinks, be convenient to discuss it here. Paragraphs 219 to 230 contain the Commission's proposals relating to the Account and Towji Departments. The first of these relates to the Board's quarterly revenue return No. X, the preparation of which forms a very considerable part of the work of the towji navis and his subordinates. In appendix XXVIII a simplified form is proposed, the adoption of which would apparently save a great deal of labour; and as at present informed, Sir Rivers Thompson is disposed to think that the process of simplification might be carried somewhat further by the omission of the separate columns showing receipts under the head of malikana. These views will be communicated to the Board of Revenue.

39. In the proposals which they make for the simplification of the procedure for recording and bringing to account land revenue collections, the Commission go a step further than the Committee which considered this question in the year 1878. Before that time the Towji Department confined its attention to the entry of receipts in the estates ledger, which is generally kept up in the vernacular, and had nothing to do with the general register of land revenue receipts, which is kept in English as one of the books of the Account Department. In accordance with the recommendations of the Committee an arrangement has since been introduced in some districts under which, at kist time, when the pressure of work is great, the mohurirs of the Towji Department, as well as the staff of the Account Department, are employed in making the necessary entries in the register of land revenue receipts, which is of course broken up into the requisite number of detached parts. This register thus takes the place of the shumar or rough list of payments which was formerly kept in the Towji Department, and the estates ledger is subsequently brought up from the chalans after the agreement of the accounts of the treasurer and accountant has been completed. This arrangement is found to work well, but it has not been introduced in all districts, partly perhaps because the towji mohurirs do not know English, and partly, the Commission think, because the separation of the Towji and Account Departments encourages a tacit understanding among the clerks that they shall not be expected to assist each other. It is not clear, however, that distinct orders directing its general adoption have ever been issued. The Commission now propose that the Towji and Accounts Departments should be permanently amalgamated and placed under the control of the accountant. The towji navis would then become an assistant accountant in charge of the estates ledger, and his subordinates could be employed when land revenue collections were slack, in whatever work was from time to time most pressing. The ledger could be separately prepared, as at present, from the chalans after the reconcilement of the Treasury and Account Department books, and with a simplified return No. X the relief afforded by the amalgamation of the two departments would probably be considerable. That there is nothing essentially impracticable in the proposal is proved by the fact that it corresponds with the practice at present followed in the 24-Pergunnahs district. As the Towji Department has comparatively little to do during a considerable part of each quarter, the immediate relief to the Account Department should be considerable in those districts where the towji mohurirs, or a considerable number of them, know English, or where an English-knowing staff can be brought together without changes greater than can prudently be made at once. In those districts where a staff acquainted with English cannot at once be employed in the towji branch of the amalgamated office, the relief afforded by amalgamation will at first be comparatively slight; but some of the old hands can probably in all districts be replaced by men knowing English; and if the rule be laid down that a knowledge of English shall in future be required of all candidates for appointment, a fully qualified staff will gradually everywhere be formed. The Board will therefore be requested to issue the necessary instructions for the observance of this rule in future. They will also be asked to favour the Lieutenant-Governor with a statement showing how many of the mohurirs on the towji establishment of each district are acquainted with English, and on the receipt of this information final orders will issue. At present Sir Rivers Thompson can only express his general approval of the Commission's proposal.

40. In paragraph 230 a revised scale of salaries is proposed for the amalgamated Account and Towji Departments. The salaries there proposed are considerably higher than those at present paid in accordance with the orders passed on the report of the Committee which was appointed to revise the treasury and account establishments in the year 1879. A fresh revision of salaries so recently fixed would at first sight seem to be uncalled for, but the correspondence summarised in the Commission's 229th paragraph furnishes reasonable ground for the opinion that accountants are still under-paid in comparison with other clerks whose duties are less laborious and demand less constant care and accuracy. The Commission's proposals, as shown in detail in Appendix XXXIII, involve an additional cost of Rs. 54 a month only; but they assume a reduction of numerical strength, with respect to the possibility of which the Board will be requested to report.

41. Treasury establishments were not, like those of the Account Department, revised in 1879. The Committee which sat in that year recommended that an allowance of 7 per mille should be made to treasurers to cover the losses which they frequently suffer in connection with remittances of treasure. This proposal was accepted by the Local Government, but did not meet with the approval of the Government of India, and consequently the position of treasurers remained unchanged. With respect to the salaries of poddars, enquiries made in the year 1883 elicited the unanimous opinion that (except in the districts of the Presidency Division, which have been exceptionally treated), the present salaries, averaging about Rs 7, are inadequate The cost of the revised establishments now proposed by the Commission is stated in Appendix XXXVI at Rs. 5,980 a month, or Rs. 380 in excess of the existing scale. The Lieutenant-Governor takes no exception to this; but the numerical strength is cut down from 199 to 162; and here too an expression of the views of the Board on the possibility of this reduction is requisite.

42. The suggestion made at the end of paragraph 232, with respect to the rate levied on local and trust funds, seems to Sir Rivers Thompson to indicate some little misapprehension of the facts. It is true that this rate has proved to be more productive than was anticipated, and more than meets the cost of the improvements effected in 1879 and since that time; but it cannot be said that the rate was merely intended to cover the cost of these changes. It was sanctioned because some such charge appeared to be equitable and proper; and though it was intended to cover, and did in fact more than cover, the increased expenditure which necessitated its imposition, it cannot be separated from other items of revenue, and regarded as if it were a fund set apart for a specific purpose.

43. Paragraphs 233 and 234 propose the amalgamation of the Collectorate Vernacular Record Department with that of the Magistrate. It is not clear to the Lieutenant-Governor how this would diminish work or promote public convenience, so long as the two sets of records are kept in different rooms, as the only substantial change from the existing state of things would apparently be the subordination of the Magistrate's record-keeper to the officer in charge of the Collectorate records. It may be possible, however, in many districts without much inconvenience or heavy expenditure, to make such a change in the local distribution of courts and offices as to bring the two record-rooms together, and in all such cases this amalgamation might be substantially advantageous. On this point all Commissioners will be asked to report.

44. The proposal made in paragraph 213 to dispense with the services of the six clerks employed in Howrah for the registration of inland traffic and the emigration clerk at Chittagong will be considered in the General Department of Government, and the Board will be asked to report on the suggestion made in the same paragraph regarding the establishment employed in writing out notices, &c, in certain districts in which the number of certificates for the realization of cesses is large. A reference will also be made to the Board regarding the proposal made in paragraph 211 to abolish the separate Nizamat establishment at Moorshedabad. It has always appeared to the Lieutenant-Governor that a reduction of expenditure is possible here.

45. In Chapter XIII the Commission discuss the existing rules regarding the supply of tents to Divisional, District, and Sub-divisional Officers. With respect to the general principle which should be followed in fixing the scale on which provision should be made for officers of various grades, they write as follows:—

"The scale of tents at present in force was fixed in 1868 at a time when the rules about official tours were far less stringent than at present That scale is based on the principle that 'Government does not profess to do more than provide office accommodation for an officer while marching in the interior of the districts. This, it has been ascertained, is the practice in the North-Western Provinces, where officers furnish themselves with such tents as they may require for their personal accommodation, in addition to the office tents.'

"This principle, we need hardly say, has never at any time been practically observed in Bengal, and the President of this Commission having frequently paid visits to brother officers in the North-Western Provinces has strong grounds for thinking that it has never been enforced even there. It would be a great hardship if it were enforced. Government provides circuit-houses for inspecting officers of all kinds, and there are numerous inspection bungalows along every road, canal, and embankment for the use of officers of the Public Works Department. It would be strange, indeed, if Collectors and their subordinates, who are expected to spend many months every year in places far remote from any suitable habitation, were not to be provided with tents to shelter them. In the case of officers on small salaries (such as Sub-divisional Officers), it would be a great hardship to compel them to purchase tents at a cost exceeding one or even two months' salary. As, therefore, this provision has for many years past been virtually ignored, and as it would be harsh to insist upon it, and practically impossible to enforce it, we propose to consider it as obsolete, and in the following remarks to assume that the scale of tents is intended to provide for an officer's personal accommodation as well as that of his office."

46. From the views here expressed, Sir Rivers Thompson does not feel called upon to dissent. The specific conclusions at which the Commission have arrived are embodied in the revised rules proposed for adoption in paragraph 277. The Lieutenant-Governor does not concur with the Commission in thinking it necessary that tents should be provided for amla. Except in the case of Sub-divisional Officers, only a very small part of an officer's establishment should, he thinks, as a general rule, accompany him on tour, two being probably a sufficient number for a Collector, and half a dozen at the outside for a Commissioner; and accommodation more suited to their requirements than that of a tent can, he believes, always be found in the vicinity of the camp to which they are attached. If the travelling allowance which they now draw is not sufficient to cover the cost of such quarters, Sir Rivers Thompson would prefer to meet the difficulty by raising the rate of allowance rather than by undertaking to provide tents. With respect to the proposed reserve camp equipage also, he is unable to accept, without reservation, the Commission's view. The occasions on which Deputy Collectors at the Sudder station are employed in field work are not frequent. The Joint-Magistrate too is very seldom absent from head-quarters at the same time as the Collector, and it must still seldomer happen that both require to use tents When there is an Assistant Collector at head-quarters, in addition to the Joint-Magistrate a tent, with its appurtenances, is allowed under the present rules, but this would seem to be an inconvenient arrangement because the districts to which Assistants are attached vary from time to time. On the whole, the Lieutenant-Governor is disposed to accept the Commission's proposal to sanction a reserve of tents to meet occasional requirements; but he thinks that, instead of a fixed district reserve, it will suffice to place a few tents at the disposal of each Commissioner for use in any district of his division where they may be required. In some districts in which inspection bungalows are numerous, tents are comparatively little needed, and a reserve of four or five tents, with their appurtenances, will probably be the largest number required in any division. Before passing orders on this point, it will be necessary to ascertain in detail the requirements of different Commissioners. Again, in the case of Sub-divisional Officers, while recognizing the fact that to a married European officer travelling, as he often must do, with his family a second tent is a necessity, the Lieutenant-Governor is not prepared to admit that a Sub-divisional Officer in all cases requires a second tent. Officers of this class do not usually make rapid or continuous journey, but remain for a considerable time at each camping place. The move from one camping ground to another can often be made while the officer himself returns, as in most cases he periodically must do, to head-quarters; and apart from this, though continuous marching with a single tent no doubt involves hardship, the discomfort of a move made only about once a week is not so serious a matter. In the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion Sub-divisional Officers should not be married; but if that is unavoidable occasionally, the case of married European Sub-divisional Officers should be met by a loan from the Commissioner's reserve; and if owing to the character of the country, or for any other reason, a second tent is in any particular sub-division absolutely necessary even for an officer who does not travel with his family, the addition of a sleeping pal to the present sanctioned scale should suffice.

47. Another point on which the Commission's views appear to be open to question is the proposal to fix six years as the time for which a Buxar-made tent is expected to last. The industry at that place being a new one, it may have been the case that the tents at first turned out were of inferior quality, and consequently they may require replacing before they have been in use for the usual period of eight years. There is recent information to show that Buxar tents are not inferior to those made elsewhere.

The present rules regarding the supply of tents having been issued under the Board's authority, Sir Rivers Thompson thinks it well to ascertain how far that body concurs in the views indicated above.

48. In Chapter XIV the Commission discuss the possibility of simplifying the procedure of the Registration Department, and consider the expediency of modifying the scale of establishments employed in the several offices. It is unquestionably true that there would be an immense saving of labour if, instead of requiring that all documents shall be copied in the office where they are registered, the law allowed the presenting party himself to provide the necessary copy or copies on paper of a prescribed kind and size suitable for subsequent binding in volumes; nor can it be doubted that such a system would often be much more convenient to the public than the present one But, on the other hand, there would be less security than at present for the correctness of the copies kept in the registers because a lazy mohurir, who merely had to compare a copy with its original, might often be tempted to assume, instead of testing, its correctness, while under the present system, being required to make a copy, he may as well make it correctly as incorrectly. Moreover a presenting party, who desired to secure the registration of an incorrect copy, would only have to purchase the concurrence of a single man—the comparer. There would thus be an important loss to counterbalance the undoubted gain. As regard the indexes, which, under the existing law, are kept up generally in duplicate, and in some cases in triplicate, Sir Rivers Thompson concurs in the Commission's view that, except in the case of rural offices, it would suffice for all practical purposes if a single copy of each index were maintained. An index volume is no doubt more frequently used, and therefore more quickly destroyed, than any particular volume of the registers themselves; but so long as the registers themselves exist, an index can always be reproduced; while, as pointed out by the Commission, if the registers had ceased to exist, the index would be of little use. The amalgamation of indexes III and IV with index No. I would also seem to be advisable if it would result in any considerable saving of labour. The Inspector-General's proposals regarding the use of printed forms, the abolition of rough drafts, the use of stamps for impressing the formal part of endorsements, and the introduction of registration fee-stamps, to which the Commission refer in their 286th and 287th paragraphs, need not be discussed here, as they have been, or will be, dealt with in due course in the Judicial Department of this Government in connection with any change in the law which in some cases would be necessary before the new procedure could be adopted

49. Paragraph 280 of the Report notices the fact that of late years rural sub-registry offices throughout the province have to some extent changed their character. It was the intention of Sir George Campbell, by whom the system was initiated, that these offices should be essentially local in character, the post of Rural Sub-Registrar being reserved as a general rule for retired native officers and resident non-official gentlemen of known respectability, who should work at or near their own homes; but the Lieutenant-Governor has more than once had occasion to call attention to the fact, which is now also noticed by the Commission, that candidates of altogether another class, with no local claims, have very frequently been appointed Circumstances have no doubt changed since Sir George Campbell's time, and it may not in all cases be possible to find suitable local candidates to fill vacancies amongst the now numerous body of Rural Sub-Registrars; but it is Sir Rivers Thompson's wish that in accordance with what has uniformly been the policy of Government, every effort should be made to preserve the original character of these appointments, and to prevent them from becoming a mere branch of the public service on behalf of which a claim for pension would then inevitably arise. The post of Rural Sub-Registrar may in some cases be a substitute for rather than an addition to a pension; but this need not affect its essentially local character. In order to secure the maintenance of this character it is necessary that when a vacancy occurs it should be left to the District Officer to nominate a candidate; and this procedure, which is understood to be in accordance with the present practice, should be uniformly followed. If for any reason the District Officer cannot find a suitable local candidate, the Inspector-General can select a man from some other district; but this should only be done when no suitable local candidate is forthcoming. With respect to the salaries of the clerks employed by Rural Sub-Registrars, it is not necessary or desirable that Government should interfere more than it at present does. The original intention that Rural Sub-Registrars should belong to such a class that they may fairly be expected to do most or a fair share of the clerical work themselves should be maintained.

50. The question of establishments is considered in paragraphs 283 to 285, and the Commission arrives at the conclusion that the present scale of salaries is insufficient. The sanctioned numerical strength in different districts, as shown on page 290, also seems to them to demand reconsideration. For some years past the Inspector-General of Registration has called attention to the small pay and indifferent prospects of the ministerial officers of his department; and, in a letter addressed to the Commission on 28th April 1886, he urges that in this department an increase in salaries should not be dependent on the possibility of simplifying procedure, and so rendering possible a reduction of numerical strength. In support of his contention, he points out that the Registration Department is a remunerative one, yearly bringing in, as it does, a considerable surplus, and that the establishment is practically what it was 20 years ago, though both the work and the amount of surplus receipts have been steadily increasing; the result being that the ministerial officers of this department are harder worked and worse paid than those of any other department. In 1865-66, it is said, 155 offices, of which none were rural, with a total establishment of 472 clerks and mohurirs registered only 76,330 deeds while in 1885-86, 95 non-rural offices, with a total establishment of 302 clerks and mohurirs, registered 211,462 deeds; thus each clerk and mohurir disposed on an average of 140 deeds in 1865-66 and of 700 in 1885-86. The Commission have rightly omitted from consideration the fact that the receipts of the Registration Department exceed its expenditure; as this fact cannot in any way affect the adequacy or inadequacy of the salaries paid to the clerks and mohurirs for the services which they render, or the amount of work which each man may fairly be expected to do. In respect of numerical strength, they recommend a revision of district office establishments with reference to the amount of permanent work in each. The first conclusion which Sir Rivers Thompson draws from the comparison made between the figures of the years 1865-66 and 1885-86 is that in the former year, when the system was still in its infancy, the establishments employed were unnecessarily large, and had not nearly sufficient work to keep them fully occupied. On looking into the figures of the year 1885-86, he finds that for temporary establishments in districts, the Accountant-General's revised estimate of expenditure is Rs. 6,000. For section-writing in 1885-86 there is no separate estimate, but the figures of previous years seem to show that Rs. 5,000 would not be too high a figure to take. There is thus a total of Rs. 11,000, which may be taken as equivalent to 45 clerks and mohurirs employed throughout the year on Rs. 20 a month. If 45 be added to the total establishment of 302 clerks and mohurirs mentioned above, the average number of deeds disposed of by each will be reduced from 700 to under 600. There is, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, nothing in these figures to indicate that the present establishments are numerically insufficient; but, on the other hand, no reduction of the total numerical strength can probably be hoped for unless the changes of procedure discussed in paragraph 48 should be carried out. In respect of numerical strength, therefore, no general order seems to him to be at present necessary or expedient. Attention having been called to existing inequalities, it will rest with the Inspector-General to deal with individual cases in detail, on the general principle that the permanent establishment should only be sufficient to dispose of the number of deeds likely to be presented when work is comparatively slack, busy times being provided for by employing temporary hands.

51. As regards salaries, Sir Rivers Thompson cannot admit in general terms that Rs. 30 is insufficient remuneration for the very simple duties which a clerk in a registry office has to perform; nor does he think it advisable that the distinction between clerks and mohurirs should in this department be abolished, as such a change would involve the necessity of paying numerous men who are only required as copyists of vernacular documents at a rate sufficient to secure the services of persons of superior qualifications. At the same time he recognises the expediency of paying even the most mechanical workers a salary on which they can live honestly in tolerable comfort, and of relieving the officers of a higher grade from the feeling that in the department to which they belong they are worse off and have fewer chances of advancement than they would have had elsewhere. In order to secure these ends, the Lieutenant-Governor will favourably receive a proposal to raise to Rs. 20 the salaries of all those mohurrirs who at present draw less than that sum. As regards clerks, he thinks the existing situation can best be met by including them in the graded establishment proposed for District Officers in paragraph 31 above. Those of them who efficiently do their duty will then gradually rise to the same position as equally qualified clerks in other departments; and to any man of exceptional capacity, the higher grades, in which appointments must always be made by selection, will be open. When clerks in registry offices have thus been placed on an equality with those of other departments, it will no longer be necessary to regard them as having exceptional claims to Rural Sub-Registrarships. The grade in which each clerk should be placed must be a matter for separate consideration. If the introduction of a graded staff in the offices of Magistrates and Collectors should on enquiry prove to be impracticable or inexpedient, the subject of the present paragraph may call for reconsideration. But it must be borne in mind that rural offices are likely to increase in number, and when the duty of selecting persons to fill these appointments is left to local officers, they will have the means of duly recognising from time to time the services of deserving head clerks.

52. Chapter XV discusses the necessity of maintaining the establishments hitherto kept up in district and divisional offices for the disposal of correspondence connected with municipalities. The Lieutenant-Governor does not think that the duties of which a list is given in paragraph 292 are of such a character as to necessitate the permanent employment of a special establishment; but pending final orders on the proposed general reorganization of both work and establishments in the offices of Commissioners and District Officers, he is prepared to sanction temporarily the establishments shown in the margin in accordance with the recommendations of the Commission. With respect to the 24-Pergunnahs district separate orders have been issued. All other municipal establishments and allowances to clerks in divisional and district offices will cease from 15th April 1887, from which date the orders of Government in the Municipal Department of 3rd October 1886 will cease to have effect.

53. Paragraphs 294-95 discuss the proposal to introduce a system of competitive examination for clerkships in the principal provincial offices in Calcutta. This subject will be considered in the Judicial Department, which is already in correspondence regarding it with the Government of India.

54. The Lieutenant-Governor takes this opportunity of thanking Mr. Beames and his colleagues for their thorough investigation of this important subject and for their full and valuable Report. He has no doubt that their labours will result in the introduction of very useful reforms in the work and administration of our public offices, and in the improvement of ministerial establishments.

55. In conclusion, Sir Rivers Thompson desires to express the obligations of Government to the Inland Revenue authorities in England, and especially to the gentlemen named in the margin, through whose courtesy Mr. Grimley, during a brief visit to Somerset House, was enabled to acquire much valuable information regarding the English systems of administration in the Excise, Stamps, and Income-tax Departments.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE JAILS IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1886.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS.

Dated Calcutta, the 17th March 1887.

The Report on the Administration of the Jail Department for the year 1886.

The Reports for the years 1884 and 1885 and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

Dr. Lethbridge was in charge of the Department throughout the year. The promptitude in the submission of the Annual Report is specially worthy of commendation, when it is remembered that an unusual amount of labour has recently been entailed on the Inspector-General and his staff in connection with the Jubilee releases on the 16th February last.

The Report, one of the most interesting that has been submitted for many years, enables Sir Rivers Thompson, at the close of his administration, to record many striking evidences of the efficiency to which the Jail Department of these Provinces has attained The following most satisfactory figures may be noted. The daily average population fell from 15,506 in 1881 to 13,504 in 1886. During the same period the number of punishments fell from 49,740 to 40,504, and the number of whippings from 914 to 396. Escapes, which in 1870, before the warder-guard system was introduced, numbered 192, in 1886, under this system, as gradually organized and improved, numbered only 17, including three Burmans. The death-rate, which during the 20 years previous to 1883 was 61·5 per mille, during the past four years has been only 49 4, and in the last of the four has reached the unprecedently low figure of 37 2. The enormous improvement that has taken place is due, primarily, to the operation of the last financial contract, under which Sir Ashley Eden was enabled to devote large sums of money to the construction of new jails, but largely also to the able and unwearied supervision of Dr. Lethbridge, and the cordial co-operation of the Superintendents subordinate to him. The general results indicate a combination of firmness, humanity, and general efficiency, which reflects the highest credit on all concerned in the administration of this important department.

2. Judicial statistics.—The total jail population at the beginning of the year (15,076) was reduced by the 31st December 1886 to 14,629, the lowest figure on record. The daily average of all classes of prisoners decreased from 15,176·7 in 1885 to 14,805·9 in 1886, a decrease spread over all three classes—convicts, under-trial prisoners, and civil prisoners. The following table shows the figures for convicts only for the last ten years:—

The number of direct admissions (30,675) was smaller than in any previous year except 1883 (29,763); while the balance at the end of the year 13,465) and the daily average number 13,504) show the lowest figures which have yet been presented. This decrease in crime was accompanied by a decrease in the average length of sentences awarded; of the total number admitted, 79·3 per cent were under sentences of six months and less, against 77·89 in the previous year. It is natural, therefore, to find that the proportion confined in Central Jails, reserved for long-term prisoners, was only 53·38 per cent of the whole, against 55·96 in 1885, while the percentage in District Jails rose from 42·05 to 44·60.

3. The total number of prisoners released was 30,696 as compared with 30,791 in 1885. Releases on expiry of sentence numbered 27,379 in 1885 and 27,125 in 1886. The number released on appeal has steadily increased during the last five years, as shown by the following statement—

Released on appeal ...	1,384	1,508	1,670	1,750	1,845

The ratio of releases on appeal to total number of sentences passed exceeded 13 per cent. in Noakholly and Tipperah; in both of these districts, and in Balasore, Backergunge, and Julpigor e, the percentage was above 10 in 1885 as well as in 1886. This question will be further dealt with in the Judicial Department. The number of releases under the mark system rose from 1,565 to 1,673, owing partly to the operation of the more liberal rules introduced in July 1886. Under these rules the minimum remission that can be earned has been reduced from one month to one day, and the principle has been adopted that the absence of punishment on any day includes ipso facto the gain of marks. Twenty-six prisoners were released on medical grounds, 19 for assistance rendered in cholera camps, and 8 for other special reasons.

4. The number of convicts transported beyond seas rose from 468 in 1885 to 668 in the year under report, and the number of rejections fell from 72 to 1. This is entirely due to the recent ruling of the Government of India that transportation convicts, who would be fit for ordinary labour in an Indian jail, may unobjectionably be deported to Port Blair. The number passed in 1886 was further swelled by the inclusion of many prisoners rejected in previous years as being over age and of poor physique. The number of women transported, on the other hand, declined from 34 to 13. The former tests had never been strictly enforced in the case of females, and, therefore, the modifications did not affect them. Executions decreased from 33 in 1885 to 17 in 1886.

5. The number of Burmese prisoners confined in Bengal jails was increased during the year by 148, making with the number previously in the jails a total of 269 In 1881, when the present system of deporting a certain number of Burmese transportation prisoners to Bengal was inaugurated, this Government agreed to receive such prisoners at the rate of 20 per annum. That rate has recently been largely exceeded, and the number now in confinement in prison in Bengal is far in excess of the limits originally contemplated. Dr. Lethbridge writes: "I have been obliged to distribute these prisoners to the various Central and District Jails in proportion to the security of such jails, but I have again drawn attention to the fact that, when the number of guards for minor jails was fixed, it was never intended that they should contain any but short-term men. Each little jail has now three or four life or long-term convicts." Sir Rivers Thompson, fully recognizing the exceptional necessities of the Burmah Administration at the present time, has agreed to the deportation of a large number of Burmese convicts to this Province; but the number of jails in which their safe custody can be assured is limited, while it is still more unsafe to confine them in large numbers together, and the problem thus left to be solved by the Jail authorities of Bengal is one of some difficulty. Dr. Lethbridge has also recently reported the fact, which he notices in the present report, that a large proportion of these prisoners frequently apply for transfer to the Andamans. They seem to have acquired some information about the system in force in the Penal settlement, and realize the great difference between a prisoner closely confined in a Bengal Jail, with no ticket-of-leave system, and a transported prisoner living a free life at Port Blair, with the prospect of returning to his own country before the expiration of his full term of sentence on a ticket-of-leave. The question is one for the decision of the Governor-General in Council with regard to the interests of the Burmah Administration, and the Lieutenant-Governor can only express his hope that, as the existence of a reasonable ground of discontent among this dangerous class of convicts would be a serious addition to the difficulty of managing them, it may be found possible to assimilate their treatment to that of prisoners transported from other provinces of British India. The general average of health among these prisoners is reported to have been fair. Their conduct seems to have been remarkably good. Notwithstanding the large increase in their number, the total number of offences committed by them fell from 191 to 174; and in offences relating to work the decrease was still more marked—from 83 to 42. "Most of them," the Inspector-General says, "have become excellent artisans." Dr. Lethbridge, with reference to the escape of three of these prisoners during the year from the Dinagepore Jail, points out the advisability of the Department being supplied with some account of the antecedents of prisoners received from Burmah. The Chief Commissioner of Burmah will be addressed on this subject.

6. The Inspector-General's classification of the year's convicts according to religion shows a slight decrease in the percentage of Hindus, from 57·01 to 56·70, a small increase, from 38·09 to 38·33, in Mahomedans, and a more marked rise, 1·37 to 1·89 in Christians. A larger number of Europeans were admitted into the Presidency Jail owing, it is said, to the imprisonment of sailors for absence from their ships without leave, sanctioned by a recent ruling of the High Court. The number of juvenile prisoners decreased from 355 to 273, and their proportion to total admissions from 1·13 per cent. to 0·89 per cent. The two Reformatory Schools at Hazaribagh and Alipore continue to do excellent work, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that it will before long be found possible to extend the reformatory system by starting a training-ship on the Hooghly for Mahomedans and Hindus of low caste.

7 Nineteen thousand seven hundred and twenty-nine or 64·3 per cent. of the total number of prisoners were admitted under sentence of imprisonment for three months and less The corresponding figures for 1885 were 19,702 and 62·4. Sentences to simple imprisonment have increased continuously for the last three years from 1,868 in 1884 to 2,0 :8 in the following year, and 2,340 in the year under report. This question will be further investigated in the Judicial Department. The number of juvenile offenders sentenced to whipping rose from 408 to 448, but the total number of judicial whippings decreased from 1,965 in 1885 to 1,652 in 1886.

8. The number of female prisoners admitted decreased from 1,573 in the previous year to 1,391. The recent releases in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, under which all women with sentences of not more than two years were liberated, have left only 78 women in the whole jail population of Bengal, and the measures adopted with success by the Inspector-General to prevent a sentence of imprisonment on a female carrying with it the additional penalty of solitary confinement, viz, the transfer of two long-term females to each district jail, will no longer be possible in all cases.

9. The number of re-convicted prisoners admitted during the year decreased from 3,644 in the previous year to 3,589 in 1886. Of these, 2,490 were received in jail as re-convicted prisoners, and of the rest 328 were identified by jail officials and prisoners as having been imprisoned before, while 771 admitted previous convictions to the Jail authorities, although the fact had not been ascertained either by the police or by the Court by which the prisoners had been sentenced The rules recently prescribed by the Government of India on this subject will, it is hoped, have the effect of securing more attention to its importance. The number of persons imprisoned for failure to give security to be of good behaviour still further increased during the year under report. The following statement shows the fluctuations for the last six years, compared with the total admissions into jail and the admissions of habituals during the same period:—

	Imprisoned in default of security.	Admissions of habituals.	Total direct admissions into Jail.
1881	589	3,785	31,465
1882	689	3,439	31,710
1883	612	3,540	29,763
1884	556	3,915	32,034
1885	659	3,644	31,530
1886	750	3,589	30,075

Of the prisoners admitted, 86·2 per cent. were wholly uninstructed; 10·4 per cent. could read and write a little, and 3·4 per cent. could read and write well. These figures show a slight increase of educated and partially educated persons; but the variations are slight, as they have been for many years past. No deductions could be made from the statistics, even if there were any necessary link between crime and ignorance.

10. The number of under-trial prisoners admitted during the year was 26,508. The largest daily average number was found in Alipore (36 75), and it exceeded 20 in five other jails. The want of sufficient accommodation for these prisoners has caused inconvenience in some jails; but the large reduction in the convict population caused by the Jubilee releases will probably admit of the utilization of unoccupied parts of the convict jails for this purpose during the present year, and the question is therefore no longer one of immediate urgency. The average period of detention of under-trial prisoners was 16·01 days against 17 36 days in 1885.

11. Jail buildings.—Two new subsidiary jails were built—at Rampore Haut and Ghattal. The rest of the expenditure, aggregating Rs. 92,230, was confined to urgent repairs and minor works.

12. Guards and escapes.—The grant of local allowances to warders in unhealthy and unpopular districts, sanctioned in November 1885, is reported to have caused a noticeable improvement in the jail guards. There is no longer any difficulty in recruiting, and Superintendents are able to weed out worthless men. The general health of the guards was fairly good; and there was a great improvement in knowledge of drill, both among the warders themselves and among jailors. That much remains to be done, however, before the state of discipline of the warder guards can be called thoroughly satisfactory, is proved by the fact that 2,715 punishments had to be inflicted during the year on a staff of 1,770 head-warders and warders. In 577 cases the punishment consisted only of a warning or censure, but in the other 2,138 cases a substantial penalty was enforced. The figures show better results than those reported for 1885, and the Lieutenant Governor trusts that the improvement now begun will be steadily progressive. Seventeen convicts escaped during the year from Central and District Jails against 14 in 1885. Of the whole number, 13 escaped from inside jails, and four from gardens and brickfields; and six were recaptured. Three Burmese convicts, being carelessly left to themselves for a few minutes at the time of muster for the evening meal, escaped over the 9½ feet wall of the Dinagepore Jail, led by a notorious leader of dacoits. This was the only instance of an escape of Burmans, although a daily average of 260 of these notorious prison-breakers were confined in Bengal Jails during the year. Two escapes—at Bhagulpur and Rajshahye—were due to the weakness of the roofs of sleeping wards. A female prisoner was helped over the wall of the Noakhally Jail, with her child, by a paid warder. In all cases exemplary departmental punishments were inflicted on the officers in fault: but the judicial prosecutions broke down in three cases. From 37 jails out of 45 no escape took place. Escapes from subsidiary Jails will be noticed later on. Previous to the introduction of the present system of guarding, the number of escapes among convicts was never less than 72. In 1880, when the present system came into full operation, the number dropped to 40, and thenceforward the improvement has been progressive. In 1886 the total number of escapes was only ·12 per cent. of the total daily average number of convicts confined in the jails. These results are most creditable to Dr. Lethbridge.

13. Prison discipline.—The Government of India has issued recent orders on the subject of the classification of habitual prisoners which will, if properly carried out, reduce to a complete system the somewhat haphazard way in which the classification is now made. Under the new orders, it will be the duty of the sentencing Court or the District Magistrate to direct in which class the prisoner shall be placed, and he will be classed as a habitual only if he is re-convicted of a serious offence, is believed to depend on crime as a means of livelihood, or has attained notoriety in crime. In cases of omission by Courts and Magistrates, the Superintendents of Jails may classify, subject to the control of the District Magistrate. The Inspector-General suggests that an experiment might be made in setting apart certain jails for the worst characters. The Lieutenant-Governor does not doubt that his successor will be prepared to consider any scheme Dr. Lethbridge may submit to carry out this object. It is satisfactory to observe that the cubicles introduced into three of the jails for the purpose of securing segregation of prisoners in the sleeping wards have answered admirably.

14. The number of offences reported against prisoners, and punished by Criminal Courts and Jail Officers, decreased from 48,790 to 40,504. The number of punishments in 1884 was 56,558: the decrease in the two years is, therefore, over 16,000. There was an increase under the head of "smoking or having possession of forbidden articles," but offences relating to work and other offences against discipline diminished by 3,993 and 4,718 respectively. The ratio per cent. of total offences and punishments to daily average number of prisoners has fallen from 412·91 in 1884 to 354·65 in 1885, and 299 93 in 1886. This figure is still far above any of those reported from other provinces for 1885, the last year for which statistics are at present available: but the Lieutenant-Governor is not prepared to admit that any other Local Government in India has established a standard in this matter to which it would be desirable to conform. The following figures are instructive in this connection* :—

* The figures for England, Scotland, and Ireland have been extracted from the reports of the Commissioners of Prisons for 1885-86.

Country or Province.	Year	Ratio per cent. of offences to daily average number of prisoners.

As regards the ratios for English convict prisons and Scotch prisons, it must be remembered that they are conducted to a great extent on the separate system, under which convicts see very little of each other, and have therefore, fewer opportunities and temptations to offend against discipline. A fairer comparison can be made between the figures for English local prisons and Irish prisons of both kinds on the one hand and the prisons of India on the other; but, even in this case, the comparison must be made with an important reservation. In England, and, the Lieutenant Governor believes, in Ireland also, all prisoners sleep in separate cells at night, their association during the day, where permitted at all, is subject to strict limitation, and every sentence to a long term of imprisonment in England begins with the discipline of nine months' solitary confinement; whereas in Bengal prisoners are in close association throughout the day and night, and are subjected to no special preliminary discipline during the first months of confinement, when through sheer ignorance they are most likely to transgress rules. Having regard to these facts, and considering further the necessarily inferior material of the Indian warder staff, the Lieutenant-Governor cannot but conclude that, if the Bengal system errs on the side of over-registration of offences, the jail administrations of England and Ireland are st ll more liable to this charge Other Provinces in India have hitherto proceeded on a different method from that followed in the United Kingdom and Bengal, but, under the new mark rules recently sanctioned by the Government of India, it will be necessary in all Provinces to keep up accurate registers of all offences, and it will then, perhaps, become possible to institute some comparison between the statistics of different Provinces of the Empire.

15. Of the various kinds of punishment inflicted by jail officers, the following heads of the severer forms show a decided decrease :—

Year.	Solitary imprisonment.	Reduced diet.	Hand-cuffs.	Fetters
1885	3,333	2,486	15,625	12,927
1886	2,504	1,015	12,466	12,199

Fetters were imposed for safe custody in only 136 cases against 234 in 1885. The Lieutenant-Governor fully agrees with the following remarks of the Inspector-General :—"I do not believe in fettering prisoners for safe custody. It is a barbarous and unjust practice, applied as it is most frequently to prisoners already much depressed by heavy sentences. Under a properly-organized system of jail guarding, fetters are useless, and rather apt to make warders lax by giving them a false idea of their power to prevent escapes." Dr. Lethbridge further points out that in 1870, when fetters were almost universally applied, there were 192 escapes, while in 1885 and 1886 the number was 14 and 17 respectively. The number of corporal punishments shows a slight increase from 347 to 396. This was mainly due to an unusual number of floggings being rendered necessary in the Presidency Jail, during the early part of the year, by organized insubordination among the prisoners. In 12 jails no floggings were administered. In 32·5 per cent. of the cases more than 20 stripes were given, and the number of petty whippings (10 stripes and under) amounted to only 19·6 per cent. of the total number. Floggings formed less than 1 per cent of the whole number of punishments for the year.

16. Of the whole male jail population, 6·89 p r cent. were employed as convict officers against 6·11 in 1885. The Inspector-General remarked in his report for 1885 that the number had exceeded the limit allowed by the Jail Code, but the Lieutenant-Governor regrets to notice that no steps have been taken to remedy the irregularity, and that in 10 jails more than double the prescribed number of convicts have been employed as officers. Sir Rivers Thompson hopes that the action now taken by Dr Lethbridge will have the effect of enforcing conformity with the provisions of the Code. The conduct of convict-overseers was, on the whole, satisfactory. The Lieutenant-Governor fully concurs in Dr Lethbridge's observations on the criticism which some English authorities have made on the system of employing convicts as officers in Indian prisons The question is not one of reducing expense at the cost of good management and the reformation of criminals. The English argument that such a system promotes demoralisation and the spread of knowledge of crime among the prisoners overlooks the primary fact that in most of our jails the convicts are already necessarily in association both by day and by night. Experience has shown that the system has created a strong incentive to good conduct among the prisoners, without affording any opportunity whatever for evil communications that did not already exist.

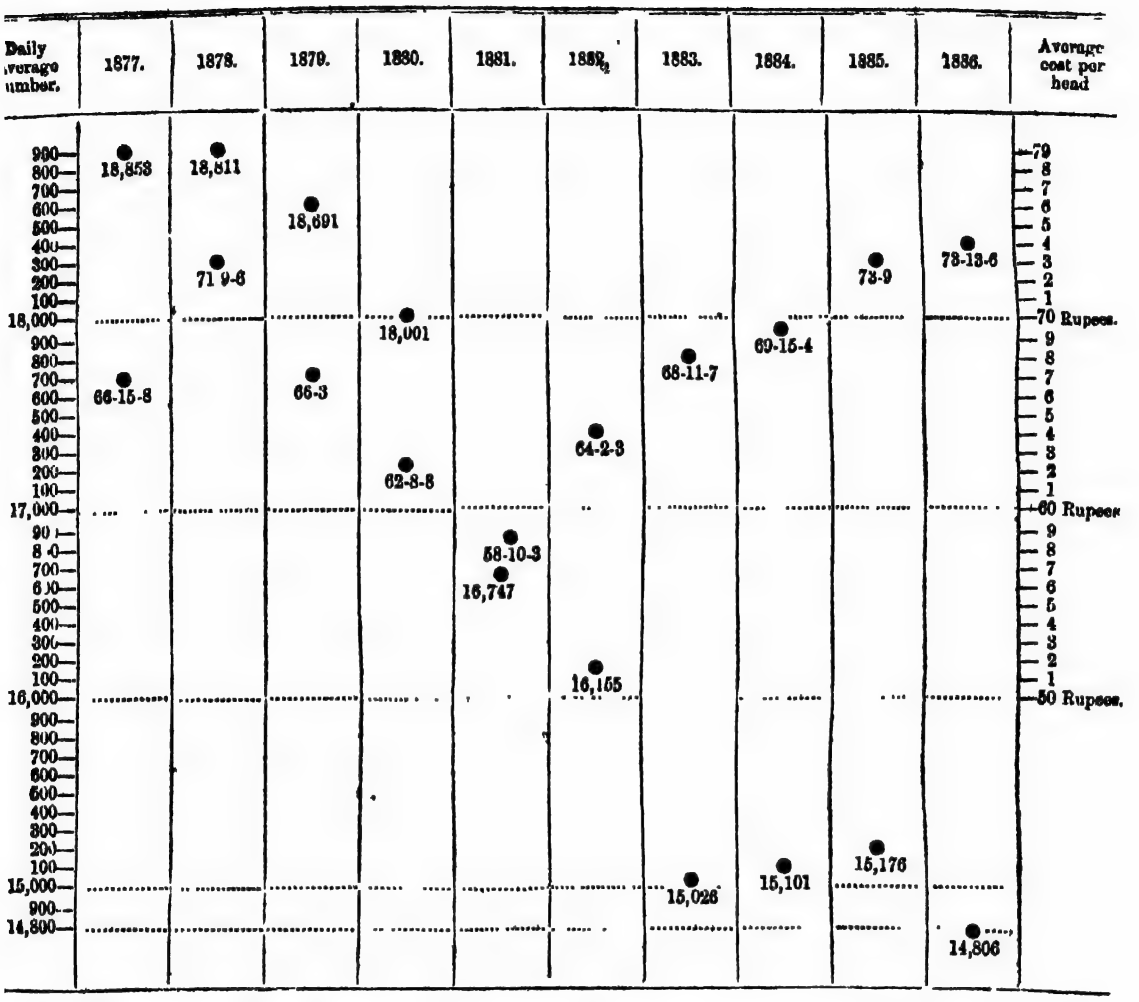
17. Expenditure.—The gross expenditure for all classes of jails during the year was Rs. 10,93,361, against Rs. 11,16,423 in 1885. There was a substantial increase under the head of establishment, due to the increased allowances to warders in unhealthy districts, and, as the daily average number of prisoners fell from 15,176 to 14,806, this increase in a permanent charge raised the average cost per head from Rs. 73-9 to Rs. 73-13-6. The following diagram shows the fluctuations in the daily average number of prisoners and the average cost of each prisoner during the last ten years.



The more liberal scale of diet now in use was introduced in 1880, but a marked decrease in the price of rice reduced the average cost per head in 1881, in spite of a rapid fall in the number of prisoners. From 1882 to 1885, owing to a steady rise in prices, and a great reduction in the average number of prisoners confined, the cost per head has continuously risen. In 1886, prices fell again, but the increase in the pay of establishments counteracted this influence, and added a few annas to the cost of each prisoner. The present scale of establishment was sanctioned on the assumption that the jail population would average 20,000; but the statistics of the last 10 years demonstrate the improbability of this figure ever being reached, and the further reduction of the jail population by the late extensive releases gives emphasis to the necessity for a large reduction in the staff employed for the custody of prisoners. This matter requires the attention of the Inspector-General. The diminution of the jail population, and the general improvement of communications in recent years, have made it possible to reduce many of the smaller District Jails to the status of subsidiary jails, and the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that the proposals which the Inspector-General will shortly submit on this subject will receive full consideration.

18. The expenditure in Central and District Jails shows a decrease under every head but Establishment, and the total is Rs 9,99,472, against Rs. 9,73,147 in 1885 The average cost per head also compares favourably with the figures for the previous year—Rs. 66-9-11 to Rs. 67-5-8½. The cost of diet decreased from Rs. 3,48,051 to Rs. 3,19,203, a saving of Rs. 28,848, of which Rs. 7,415 was due to the smaller number of prisoners, and Rs. 21,433 to lower prices paid for food. The average price of rice, by far the most important item, fell from Rs. 2-8 7 to Rs. 2-1-8 per maund. A comparison of the figures given in the Inspector-General's report with the fortnightly statements of prices-current published in the Calcutta Gazette shows that a similar fall, from Rs. 2-10-1 to Rs. 2-3-5, took place in the open markets, but that the jails on the whole obtained their supplies of rice more cheaply than the general public. In 25 districts the average price paid by the jail was less than the average price paid outside; in eight it was the same or nearly so; while in 9 districts, viz. Burdwan, Bogra, Pubna, Julpigoree, Chittagong, Sarun, Hazaribagh, Lohardugga, and Singbhoom, the average rate was lower in the market than that paid by the jail. The attention of the Superintendents of these jails should be called to the necessity of watching closely the expenditure under this head. The Purneah Jail is also shewn as having paid more than the average market rate for rice, but as Dr. Lethbridge specially notices the fact that in this jail paddy was bought in the cheap season and husked in the jail, there must be some mistake about the figures. In the following jails strict economy appears to have been practised, presumably by storing rice and paddy in the cheap season:—

Jails.	Average price per maund paid for rice.	Average price in the local market.

Hooghly	2 3 3	2 11 4
Darjeeling	2 8 2	3 4 2
Cuttack	1 13 9	4 1 0

The average expenditure on diet alone for each prisoner fell from Rs. 24-8-2 to Rs 22-15-4, owing principally to the general fall in the price of rice and to the economy practised, as already noticed, by the officers in charge of most of the jails. In comparing the figures for the different jails, Dr. Lethbridge proceeds on the only fair system, by grouping them according to Divisions. The following statement shows the most expensive and the most economical jails in this respect in each Division:—

Division.	Jails. Most expensive .. 1 Most economical ... 2	Average cost of diet of each prisoner.	Division.	Jails. Most expensive ... 1 Most economical ... 2	Average cost of diet of each prisoner.

	2. Backergunge ...	21 15 0		2. Singbhoom ...	16 10 1

The prominent differences between Midnapore and Bankoora in the Presidency Division are explained by the admission of an unusual number of unhealthy prisoners into the former jail; but the tables appended to the report show that the proportion of daily average number sick to the total daily average strength in this jail was less in 1886 than in the previous year, when the average cost of diet was less, and the explanation does not seem complete. The difference between Julpigoree and Bogra is satisfactorily explained by the notoriously low standard of health in Julpigoree, and the consequent necessity for unusual additions to the regulation diet. In the Dacca Central Jail the control of the diet has for the present been given to the medical officer; but this involves the disadvantage of dual authority, which, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, is open to objection. No explanations are given of the great differences between Mozufferpore and Chumparun in the Patna Division, and between Hazaribagh and Singbhoom in the Chota Nagpore Division. Purneah had the distinction of being the cheapest jail in the Province. The following jails show an increase in the average cost of diet:—

Bhagulpore—District	19 5 1	18 5 4
Pooree	18 13 2	17 13 10

The case of Midnapore has already been noticed. The increases in Cuttack and Pooree are said to be due to higher prices; but the table given in paragraph 60 of the report shows that, with the exception of salt and dall, the prices of all provisions were lower in these jails than they had been in 1885. The rise in Tipperah is attributed to excessive sickness, involving extra diet. The increases in other jails are unexplained. The most remarkable decreases, indicating better management than in the previous year, occurred in the following jails:—

Jails	1886. Rs. A. P.	1885 Rs. A. P.
Purneah	13 15 4	23 7 6
Lohardugga	21 11 9	29 13 11

Jail gardens were cultivated with success; and the importation of vegetable seeds direct from England was attended with good results.

19. Hospital charges in Central and District jails decreased from Rs. 49,142 to Rs. 42,704, but the average cost per head of sick rose from Rs. 64-11-11 to Rs. 67-5-1 owing, the Inspector-General thinks, to more liberal treatment of sick prisoners. The expenditure on clothing fell from Rs. 69.487 to Rs. 59,826. The most expensive jails in this respect were Dinagepore, Mozufferpore, Singbhoom, Rungpore, Tipperah, Monghyr, and Furreedpore, in the order named. The average per prisoner for the whole Province was Rs. 4-4-10. Under contingencies there was a saving of Rs. 1,350 as compared with the previous year, and, if an item of Rs. 2,716, payment of 11 years' ground rent for the Dinagepore jail, be excluded, the real saving appears to be a little more than Rs. 4,000. On petty construction and repairs Rs. 22,831 were spent against Rs 23 404 in 1885.

20. Employment of prisoners and manufactures.—The total average number of prisoners sentenced to labour was 13,600·25 in 1885 and 13,339·53 in 1886. The daily average sick numbered only 4·8 per cent. of this total; the lowest figure for any of the previous six years was 5·3. There was a general increase in the number employed under all the heads of prison services, from 3,815·98 to 4,078·01. The number employed on manufactures was 5,971 72, or 44·76 per cent. of the whole number sentenced to labour against 46·62 per cent. in 1885. The total profits on the year's working were Rs 3,10,090, and the average profit per head of convicts sentenced to labour Rs. 23 4, a slight improvement on last year's figures, Rs. 3,00,000 or Rs. 22-1. The average earning of each prisoner in Central Jails is shown in the following table :—

	Average earning per prisoner 1886.	Average earning per prisoner 1885.
	Rs.	Rs.
Presidency Jail	72·0	80·7
Alipore „	35·4	29·1
Buxar „	47·6	46·9
Rajshahye „	24·6	14·9
Bhagulpore „	16·6	28 9
Midnapore „	18·4	9·8
Dacca „	2 4	4·6

The average profit on manufactures alone in the Alipore Jail rose from Rs. 30-10 to Rs. 37-4 for each prisoner. The improvement in the Midnapore Jail was due to increased outturn of prison-clothing, and larger demands for cotton goods by the Marine and Telegraph Departments; and Rajshahye was able to dispose of an increased quantity of castor oil. The decrease in the Bhagulpore Central Jail was owing to restricted outturn, caused by the strict economy exercised in indents for woollen goods by the Jail Department. Complaints have recently been made to the Lieutenant-Governor that this jail is competing unduly with private concerns by tendering at rates which are insufficient to cover the cost of production with a margin for profit. These complaints are being investigated. Meanwhile, the Lieutenant Governor trusts that the Inspector-General will see that the prices of goods manufactured at Bhagulpore are carefully calculated on the system prescribed in paragraph 20 of the Home Department Resolution of the 22nd September 1882. The rate of profit in the Dacca Jail is very low; and the explanation that it is without a settled industry can only partially account for so small a figure as Rs. 2-4. Dr. Lethbridge will no doubt give his special attention to this matter. Darjeeling as usual, with its prosperous bakery, heads the list of District Jails, with an average earning of Rs. 79-15. There were large outstandings at the close of the year in the Rajshahye, Bhagulpore, and Buxar Central Jails. These should be promptly recovered.

21. Subsidiary Jails.—There were, as in the previous year, eighty-four Subsidiary Jails under the control of Sub-Divisional Officers as Superintendents, and Assistant Surgeons or Civil Hospital Assistants as Deputy Superintendents. The average number of inspections by Superintendents during the year was 70; and in eight cases the number was below this average. The overcrowding in the Brahmanberia and Palamow Subsidiary Jails, noticed in last year's report, still continues, and the Inspector-General's proposals for remedying this evil are awaited The warder-guards of Subsidiary Jails improve continuously in discipline, owing to the system of transferring them at regular intervals from District to Subsidiary Jails and back again. The average detention of convicts in Subsidiary Jails during the year was 7·05 days At Palamow convicts sentenced to imprisonment for three months and under are still detained in the Subsidiary Jail. The total number of escapes from subsidiary jails was 20; in 1885 the number was 26, and in 1879 it was 70. Of those who escaped, 7 were convicts and 13 under-trial prisoners. The average cost of each prisoner rose from Rs. 117-0-6 to Rs. 137-1-1, owing solely to the inclusion for the first time in the Jail Budget of the pay of Assistant Surgeons in executive charge of these jails. The Inspector-General has not reported the average periods of detention of under-trial prisoners in subsidiary jails, which it would have been interesting to know.

22. Vital Statistics.—In the Central and District Jails there was accommodation for 17,674 convicts, and, as the daily average number was only 13,233, there was ample room for them. In the Alipore, Presidency, and Mymensingh Jails, however, the daily average population was too large for the cubic space available. The Jubilee releases have now temporarily solved the difficulty in the case of Alipore. In the Presidency Jail the excess numbers were accommodated in worksheds, corridors, and passages: an unsatisfactory arrangement, but one that was unavoidable under the circumstances. The question of improving the ventilation of this jail should be taken up as early as possible. The Mymensingh Jail is too small for the most populous district in Bengal. The railway connection between Mymensingh and Dacca should facilitate transfers for the relief of any overcrowding. Attention was paid, as usual, to the important question of water-supply in all jails; the dry-earth system of conservancy was rigidly carried out; medical officers made full use of their authority to improve the diet scale, when necessary, on medical grounds; the weight test was systematically used in all jails; and generally adequate supervision appears to have been exercised over all matters affecting the health of the prisoners. Of a total of 33,754 prisoners discharged, 7,117 had neither lost nor gained weight in jail, 18,831 had gained weight, and only 7,806 had lost weight. Of these 7,806, the weight lost was not more than 5lbs. in 6,036 cases, and 1lb or less in 2,544 cases. In every jail in the province the number that had gained weight exceeded the number that had lost weight: and in eight jails the excess was more than fourfold.

23. The sickness and mortality of convicts and under-trial prisoners in all classes of jails for the last ten years is compared in the following statement:—

The ratio of deaths from cholera, 2·7 per mille, was lower than in any previous year except 1880, and the ratio of total deaths, 37·2 per mille, is the lowest on record. A further statement, given in paragraph 113 of the Inspector-General's report, shows the ratio among convicts as 38·2 and among under-trial prisoners as 25·1; but the total number of deaths of under-trial prisoners on which the calculation is based (27) is too small to warrant any general inference from the figures. The ratio of daily average sick per mille of average strength was above 70 in the following Jails:—Chumparun (109·7), Pubna (82·2), Dinagepore 81·2), Singbhoom (76·5), Darjeeling (72·6), Chittagong (71·7), Khulna (70·7), and Presidency (European) (70·5). Pubna, Monghyr, Chittagong, Moorshedabad, and Tipperah show increases under this head of more than 10 per mille. Tipperah suffered from an epidemic of cholera, and in Pubna, Chittagong, and Moorshedabad, malaria prevailed to an unusual extent. Monghyr suffered, as District Jails often do, by the transfer of the healthiest of its inmates to a Central Jail. The following jails show remarkable decreases of sickness:—

The comparative freedom from cholera during the year accounts for only a part of the general improvement in health; and as the year saw no new departures in the way of sanitary improvement, a subject which has received unremitting attention for several years past, the true explanation of the comparative healthiness of the jails during the year is to be found, as Dr. Lethbridge remarks, in the decrease of diseases of malarious origin. In 1885 the number of deaths from intermittent fever and its sequelæ—dysentery, diarrhœa, and anæmia—was 466; in 1886 it fell to 283; and the ratio per mille of deaths from these diseases to admissions into hospital was 21·3 in 1886 against 30·2 in the previous year. There were 18 cases of cerebro-spinal meningitis in the Alipore Jail during the year. In the early part of the year 12 cases occurred and eight recovered; but among the last six cases there was not a single recovery, and the fatal termination always came with great rapidity. In January 1886 a special Medical Committee was appointed to investigate the causes of this disease; and the conclusions at which they arrived were that overcrowding and imperfect ventilation were the two main factors in its development. The number of prisoners was reduced as far as possible, a new and well ventilated workshed is in process of construction, and other defects in ventilation noticed by the Committee have been remedied. It remains to be seen what effect these measures will have on the extent and virulence of the disease, if it should unfortunately re-appear this year. In March cholera appeared in an epidemic form in the Tipperah Jail: there were 38 cases with 13 deaths; 10 cases occurred in the Bhagulpore jail in November: the disease proved fatal in seven cases. There were sporadic cases in some other jails, and the total mortality from the disease was 37 to 63 admissions.

24. The mortality among convicts only in all classes of jails was 38·2 per mille, or, exclusive of deaths from cholera, 35·5. The figures for Central and District Jails are 38·6 and 35·8 respectively. There were no deaths among the few juveniles imprisoned during the year, and these figures represent the death-rate of the jail population of 16 years of age and upwards. In the absence of accurate statistics of the mortality of the general population, it is impossible to say what proportion this rate bears to the death-rate for the same ages of the province as a whole; but the past year is known to have been unusually healthy, and the Lieutenant-Governor cannot doubt that the convicts in Bengal died at a higher rate than the free population. This is no doubt the most difficult problem to be solved by the Jail Administration of this province. On the analogy of the statistics of Great Britain and Ireland, it would be reasonable to expect that in jails managed so well as those of Bengal, on the whole, undoubtedly are, the death-rate would be less than the rate for the country in general. In English local prisons the rate in 1885-86 was 7·5 per mille, in Scotch prisons it was 6·2, in Ireland convict prisons returned a death-rate of 5·5, and local prisons so low a rate as 3·8. No doubt climatic differences account in a large measure for these striking figures. In the United Kingdom the great causes of death among the very poor, from whom the majority of prisoners are drawn, are exposure to cold, want of sufficient nourishment, and overcrowding in populous cities; and when, as in prisons, these evils are entirely absent, the chances of life are extremely favourable. In Bengal, exposure and overcrowding are almost unknown as factors in increasing mortality, and the wants of the poor are simpler and more easily supplied. Death is not so often due to easily preventible causes, and the progress of the malarious diseases that account for by far the greater part of the mortality cannot readily be arrested by sanitary precautions, when they have once impregnated the constitution. Jails in Bengal, therefore, give relatively fewer sanitary advantages to their inmates than the prisons of the United Kingdom. Still it would at first sight seem that the conditions of life in our prisons, with their spacious accommodation, pure water-supply, wholesome diet, strict system of conservancy, and constantly present medical attendance, should be more favourable than the conditions under which the majority of the free population exist. In investigating this question, the initial and final difficulty is that the calculation of the ratio of deaths per mille, based on the daily average number of prisoners in confinement, though showing fairly the rate of mortality in all jails taken as a whole, is not a fair test of the mortality of each individual jail. The reason of this is that the comparatively strong and healthy prisoners in the jail population of malarious districts are generally drafted to Central Jails, leaving only the old and sickly behind: and the ratio in many District Jails is thus calculated on a population of invalids. The extent to which this influences the returns from the several jails is shown in no returns, and can only be more or less approximately estimated. Statement XV, appended to the report, shows that the group of jails in what are generally considered the most unhealthy districts of Eastern and Northern Bengal returned a death-rate of 65 9—208 deaths on a daily average population of 3,153 56; and this figure, low as it is in comparison with the rates returned in previous years, would undoubtedly have been lower but for the loss from many jails of the healthiest prisoners in the first weeks of their confinement. Turning again to the general statistics, the Lieutenant-Governor observes, from Statement XVIII, that, of the total number of deaths, 41·2 per cent. occurred before six months had been passed in jail, and 24·5 per cent. after from six to twelve months of imprisonment had been undergone, while the percentages for longer terms were—from one to two years, 19; from two to three years, 7·4; from three to seven years, 5·8; above seven years, 1·7. Even after making due allowance for the smaller number of prisoners imprisoned for long periods, these figures suggest that, after the first few months have been passed, the conditions of life in jail are not unfavourable to vitality. This view is further corroborated in an unmistakeable manner by the statistics already referred to of the gain and loss of weight by prisoners discharged from jail, and by the following tables, which show that 70 per cent. of those who died were admitted in bad and indifferent health, and that the health of the prisoners discharged during the year had, on the whole, improved during their residence in jail:—

I.—For Central and District Jails only.

It has recently been asserted with much emphasis in a section of the public press, that the high death-rate in Bengal is due to excessive work and tyrannically severe discipline. The answer to this charge is to be found in the fact that, with one exception, all the Central Jails, where a substantial amount of labour is exacted, and prison-life is made really irksome, return comparatively low death-rates. The one exception is Rajshahye, which receives very unhealthy prisoners from the neighbouring malarious districts.

25. It thus appears that during the first few months of jail life weakly prisoners have a worse chance of life than they would have had in their own homes, while the longer a prisoner remains in jail the better do his chances become. The question remaining to be solved is how to keep alive, during the earlier period of confinement, prisoners who have been admitted with broken-down constitutions. The sudden change of life, though at first sight it would appear to be for the better, seems actually to affect them prejudicially; but the cause of this is still obscure.

26. The following tables show the jails in which the mortality was highest and lowest during the year:—

I.—Jails returning the lowest rates of mortality.

As regards the jails returning the highest death-rates, it is to be observed that the ratios are in many cases calculated on very small figures: e.g. in Darjeeling the total of deaths and of average population were 8 and 83 respectively, in Chittagong 7 and 81, in Purneah 9 and 114, in Pubna 7 and 102, in Julpigoree 6 and 91, in Maldah 3 and 50. Of the 19 prisoners who died in Dinagepore, only 4 were admitted in good health.

27. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the Inspector-General is able to report favourably on the work of almost all the officers of the Jail Service. His special commendation of certain officers will be noted in the Appointment Department. Dr. Lethbridge visited every jail in the province once, and nine more than once; and was also able to inspect eight subsidiary jails. In his administration of the department generally he continued to display the ability and good judgment which have so often earned for him the commendation of Government.

No. 113, Statistics and Commerce, dated 4th November 1886.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

IN continuation of my despatch of the 21st October 1886, No 109, I forward herewith a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office, dated the 18th ultimo, and enclosure, relative to a Customs Notice regarding the interpretation to be placed on the Royal Order of the Spanish Government of 22nd June last, a copy of which is also enclosed.

No. 2067, dated 18th October 1886.

From—Sir James Fergusson, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs,
To—The Under-Secretary of State for India.

With reference to the letter from this office of the 5th instant, I am directed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to transmit herewith, for the information of the Secretary of State for India in Council, a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul-General at Havana, containing a Customs Notice respecting the interpretation to be placed on the Royal Order of the Spanish Government of June 22nd last, of which a copy is also enclosed.

No. 13, Commercial, dated 23rd September 1886.

From—A. DeC. Crowe Esq., Her Majesty's Consul-General, Havana,
To—The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

With reference to my despatch No. 12, Commercial, of the 16th instant, I have the honour to inclose, for your Lordship's information, a translation of an official notice from the Havana Gazette of yesterday's date, issued by the Administrator of Customs of this city, who, referring to the Royal Order of the 22nd June last, rejects the construction given to the said Order by the Americans, and declares that only American produce in American ships will be admitted to duty under the 3rd column of the Cuban Tariff, and that all foreign produce in these vessels will continue to be chargeable under the 4th column.

The hope I had entertained (based on the seemingly clear wording of the June Order) that British ships in the direct trade would be able to carry foreign goods under the 3rd column, have thus proved illusory.

As no mention is made in the Administrator's notice of navigation dues, I still trust that, on sending in the declaration required by the Royal Order, our ships, after the 15th proximo, will only be charged at the lowest tonnage rate.

I suspect that the United States' Government will not consider this matter as settled, and unless a rational interpretation is given of the word "procedencias," they may incline to annul their recent Treaty and impose differential dues on Spanish ships in their ports.

(Translations.)

Extract from the "Havana Gazette" of 22nd September 1886.

Central Custom-house Administration, Island of Cuba.—His Excellency the Governor-General received yesterday a telegraphic communication from the Home Government to the following effect:—

"Royal Order, 22nd June 1886, ratifies and confirms that of 13th September 1884, it being understood that the 3rd column of the Tariff is applicable solely to the natural products of the United States proceeding from their ports and carried in their ships direct to the Antilles; the equality of the flags includes solely the said products under the above mentioned conditions, and in no case foreign products, although the ships carrying them may be American, and proceeding from the United States."

Authorized and confirmed by His Excellency this day, and published for general information in the Gazette.

JOAQUIN B VALDES, Administrator.

Havana,
The 18th September 1886.

Dated 22nd June 1886.

Decree by the Ministry of the Colonies, Madrid,
To—The Governors of Cuba and Puerto Rico.

The Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States has appealed to Her Majesty's Government against the manner in which the Convention of the 13th February 1884 is carried out in that island, stating that the 1st Article entitles the American flag to be treated on equal terms with the Spanish at the ports of that island with regard to the payment of all sorts of duties; and, consequently, a complaint is made that in that island differential duties should be maintained with regard to foreign merchandise transhipped at American ports; and also that different shipping dues are charged on American vessels to those levied on Spanish ones; and in view of the reasons which have been given, and in view of what has passed before with regard to the true interpretation to be placed on the above-mentioned Convention, the King and in his name, the Queen-Regent, in order to show her good-will towards the United States and the good faith with which she endeavours to fulfil the Treaties, has been pleased to ratify what is established in the Royal Order of the 13th September 1884, that the American flag in the direct trade with Cuba and Puerto Rico is to enjoy absolutely the same treatment as that of Spain when carrying the products and the re-exports ("procedencias") of the United States.

With respect to shipping dues, even though the placing of American ships on an equal footing with those of Spain is not contemplated in the Convention, it is the desire of Her Majesty, in order to show her deference to the above-mentioned nation, that as soon as information is received from the Representative of the United States in that island that the United States' Government has accorded such advantage to Spanish vessels, the Customs authorities shall proceed to apply such dues on a footing of reciprocity; and also in accordance with the Royal Decree of the 4th June 1886 to vessels of the United States of America.

By Her Majesty's commands, I make this communication for your Excellency's information and guidance. God preserve you, &c. This Order has the seal of the Ministry of the Colonies, and is dated the 22nd June 1886. Is forwarded to the Minister of States in consequence of his communication of the 3rd June, in order that he may take such action as he may think proper.

No. 22, Statistics and Commerce, dated 10th February 1887.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

In reply to your letter, dated 21st December 1886, No. 389 (Finance and Commerce) I forward herewith a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office, with enclosures, supplying the required information as to the tariff of the Spanish Antilles.

No. 144, dated 26th January 1887.

From—Sir James Fergusson, Under-Secy. of State for Foreign Affairs,
To—The Under-Secretary of State for India.

With reference to your letter of the 20th instant (R. S. and C. 56), I am directed by the Marquis of Salisbury to enclose, for the information of Viscount Cross, a copy of the Customs Tariff of Cuba and of that of Puerto Rico, together with a copy of a statement* prepared by Her Majesty's Consul-General at Havana of the duties applicable to British trade in Cuba.

* See at pages 165—174 of the London Board of Trade Journal of November 1886.

I am also to enclose a copy of the Agreement recently come to between Spain and the United States for the reciprocal suspension of all discriminating duties in the United States and in the Islands of Cuba and Puerto Rico upon vessels of the respective countries and their cargoes. The Spanish Minister of State has assured Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid that all or any privileges which might be accorded to the United States would be equally enjoyed by Great Britain; under these assurances British vessels and the goods imported in them will be placed on the same footing as United States' vessels and their cargoes in the Spanish Antilles. I am, however, to add that it is believed that the differential tonnage dues are still levied on United States' vessels, and that they are being paid under protest.

Memorandum of Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Spain for the reciprocal and complete suspension of all Discriminating Duties of Tonnage or Imposts in the United States and in the Islands of Cuba and Puerto Rico upon Vessels of the respective Countries and their Cargoes.

1. It is positively understood that from this date an absolute equalization of tonnage and impost duties will at once be applied to the products of, and articles proceeding from, the United States or from any foreign country in vessels owned by citizens of the United States to the Islands of Cuba and Puerto Rico, and that no higher or other impost or tonnage duties will be levied upon such vessels and the merchandize carried in them as aforesaid than are imposed upon Spanish vessels and their cargoes under the same circumstances.

Under the above conditions, the President of the United States will at once issue his Proclamation declaring that the foreign discriminating duties of tonnage and imposts within the United States are suspended and discontinued so far as respects Spanish vessels and the produce, manufactures, or merchandize imported in them into the United States from Spain or her possessions aforesaid, or from any foreign country.

This Memorandum of Agreement is offered by the Government of Spain and accepted by the Government of the United States as a full and satisfactory notification of the facts above recited.

2. The United States' Minister at Madrid will be authorized to negotiate with the Minister for Foreign Affairs, either by an Agreement or Treaty, so as to place the commercial relations between the United States and Spain on a permanent footing advantageous to both countries.

In witness whereof the undersigned, in behalf of the Government of the United States and of Spain, respectively, have hereunto set their hands and seals.

Done at Washington, this 27th day of October, A.D. 1886.

T. F. BAYARD.
E. DE MURUAGA.

Ordered that the papers be forwarded to the Governments of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and to the Chief Commissioner of Burma, with the request that they may be published for general information and communicated to the Chamber of Commerce* for the information of the mercantile community.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the reading during the same period for the past ... The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The ... are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past ... station in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the reading during the same period for the past ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number of rainy days are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past 15 years. The variation in the district amount in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

CALCUTTA, the 29th March 1887.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 1st OF APRIL 1887.

THE weather during the past week has been marked by the occurrence of a remarkable series of thunderstorms or nor'-westers, which have given unusually heavy rain to a large part of the Province. Nor'-westers are local storms limited to a small area, but which are due to a general disturbance of the atmosphere over a large area. They may occur on the same day in East, North and South-West Bengal, but the storms in one district are not, as a rule, the continuation of storms in another district, in which respect they differ entirely from the larger cyclonic storms of the south-west monsoon. For some days before they occur the barometer falls in Bengal and Northern India; the sea winds blowing across the Bengal and Orissa coasts increase in strength and bring up much aqueous vapour into Bengal; whilst the land winds down the Brahmaputra and Gangetic valleys strengthen considerably. Bengal thus becomes a focus towards which winds, opposed in direction and character, converge. The result of their interaction during the hot weather months is frequent periods of disturbance, shown chiefly by the occurrence of local thunderstorms. The barometer falls slowly for some days before, and oscillates rapidly during their occurrence. Each thunderstorm affects a small narrowish area, and probably does not advance as a violent storm more than 30 to 40 miles. They are accompanied by much atmospheric commotion on the small scale, frequently shown by the appearance of two, three, or even a greater number of cloud masses, moving at different elevations in different directions. The rainfall which accompanies these storms is hence very irregularly distributed, but as a general rule is greatest in the districts of East and North Bengal, bordering on the Himalayas, the Assam and Arracan hills, and is least in Behar and Central Bengal.

The barometer began to fall on the 25th, and was considerably below its normal height on the 28th. It fluctuated rapidly and very irregularly on the 30th, and to a less extent on the 29th. Storms occurred in Orissa and South-West Bengal on the 26th, in South-West and East Bengal and the northern districts of North Bengal on the 27th, in East Bengal chiefly on the 28th, and in portions of East and South-West Bengal on the 29th. The general disturbance appeared to increase during this period, and finally culminated in an unusually extensive and vigorous series of storms on the night of the 29th and morning of the 30th. The rainfall accompanying the final series of storms extended over the whole province. It was exceptionally heavy in portions of South-West and East Bengal, more especially the Hooghly, Howrah, Nuddea, and Burdwan districts, and the 24-Pergunnahs. Rainfalls exceeding four inches were recorded on the 30th at Serampore (5·04 inches), Burdwan (4 56 inches), Barrackpore (4 5 inches), and Baraset (4·45 inches). Very strong winds prevailed in all parts of the province from the 26th to the morning of the 30th, and several of the observing stations reported a gale of wind on the 29th and 30th.

The intensity and extent of the disturbance is perhaps best shown by the rainfall returns of the week. The average rainfall of the week in South-West Bengal was 2 96 inches, or more than twice as large as the normal average rainfall for the whole month (viz., 1·39 inches). East Bengal received an average of 2·94 inches during the week, or ·32 inch more than the normal average rainfall of the month. North Bengal obtained an average of 1·79 inches, or 7 inch more than the total monthly average, and Behar of ·55 inch, as compared with ·34 inch, the average for the month.

The barometer rose with unusual rapidity after the storms of the night of the 29th and morning of the 30th, and the winds decreased with similar rapidity. Fine clear weather was again established over the greater part of the province on the evening of the 30th, and the last two days were remarkably cool for the season. The most prominent features of the week are hence—heavy rainfall, great variations of temperature, and unusually low mean temperature.

The barometer was above its normal height on the 25th. It fell steadily but unequally in different parts of the province until the 29th, when it was from ·1″ to ·15″ below the normal height. It oscillated rapidly on the 29th and morning of the 30th, and then rose very briskly, the rise during the next 24 hours varying from ·05″ to ·15″. The mean pressure of the week was ·04″ in defect in Orissa, Chutia Nagpur, and South Behar, ·01″ to ·03″ in defect in South-West Bengal. It was slightly in excess in East and perhaps North Bengal, and also in North Behar. The most remarkable feature was the deficiency in the pressure of the upper strata of the atmosphere, as shown by the Darjeeling observations. The average pressure at that station for the week was ·05″ below the normal pressure. The directions of the strong winds of the first five days of the week at the plains stations appears to have been determined by an area of low pressure outside the province, and to the west of Chutia Nagpur and Orissa.

The mean temperature of the week was considerably below the average in all divisions. This was mainly due to the cloudy weather and rainfall of the first five days. The mean temperature of the week was 5° below the normal temperature in East Bengal and South Behar, 4½° in North Behar, 4° in Chutia Nagpur, and 1½° in South-West Bengal and Orissa. The deficiency was most marked in the day temperature. The maximum temperature at Jessore on the 30th was 20·6° lower than it was on the 25th, at Bogra 18,° at Burrisal and Serajgunge 16°, and at Berhampur 15° lower. Hence the week was characterized quite as much by excessive variations of temperature as by diminished temperature. The following table gives temperature data of the week for eight representative stations :—

The general character of the rainfall has been fully described above Showers were received in the Balasore, Midnapore, and Moorshedabad districts on the 26th. Some isolated showers also fell during local thunderstorms in North Bengal. Thunderstorms with rain occurred over nearly the whole of Orissa, South-West and East Bengal, and the northern districts of North Bengal on the 27th. This rainfall was heaviest in the Jessore, Khoolna, Nuddea, Pubna, and Mymensingh districts. The largest amount recorded on that day was 1·7 inches at Meherpore (in Nuddea).

The rainfall of the 28th was local and irregular in character and small in amount. It occurred chiefly in the Burdwan and Bankoora districts of South-West Bengal, and the Dacca, Tipperah, and Mymensingh districts of East Bengal. Commillah reported the largest rainfall on that day—1·65 inches. Thunderstorms occurred over a larger area on the 29th, and were more violent than previously. South-West Bengal and East Bengal received general, and in some cases heavy, rainfall. The largest amounts recorded on that day were 3·72 inches at Khatra (in Bankoora), 2·81 inches at Kishnaghur, and 2 86 inches at Noakholly.

Rain occurred on the 30th in all parts of the province, excepting some portions of Orissa, and Chutia Nagpur. It was exceptionally heavy in the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Burdwan Hooghly, Nuddea, Khoolna, Jessore, Backergunge, and in Cooch Behar. Rainfalls varying from 2 to 5 inches were recorded at the great majority of stations in these districts. The two last days of the week under review were almost rainless.

The average rainfall of the divisions of the province has been already stated. Noakholly district received 5·19 inches, two districts receivedaverage amounts exceeding 4 inches, viz., Nuddea 4·3 inches : and Burdwan 4·12 inches. The following districts received amounts varying between 3 and 4 inches :—24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, Jessore, Furreedpore, and Dacca; and the following between 2 and 3 inches—Julpigoree, Rungpore, Pubna, Mymensingh, Commillah, Backergunge, Moorshedabad, and Midnapore. It was less than one inch in the Maldah district and in the whole of Behar and Chutia Nagpur. The rainfall in that area was very irregularly distributed, but was largest in the Sonthal Pergunnahs and adjacent districts. It was less than a quarter of an inch over Chutia Nagpur, and the greater part of Central and North-West Behar.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 1st of April 1887 :—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 1·0° lower; and finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

BRIEF REASONS FOR INCREASE AND DECREASE.

Increases.

Jute ... ... 1,503 tons.

This is owing to increased facilities, low rates of freight by rail, and brisk market during this particular period. There is no other increase worth noticing.

Decreases.

Salt ... ... 1,063 tons.

This may be accounted for by abnormal despatches the month previous and sufficient stocks being in hand for local consumption; there are no other decreases worth noticing during the period under reference.

Increases.

Metals and manufactures of ... ... 617 tons.

This may be accounted for by the gradually extending use of metals for building and other purpores.

Mineral oil . ... 252 tons.

This too is attributable to the more general use of kerosine in preference to vegetable oil for lighting purposes.

Tea . ... 187 tons.

This produce may be expected to fluctuate with the variable tea seasons.

Wood ... . 426 tons.

This increase is remarkable, and I cannot attribute any other reason for it than by supposing an abnormal demand during the period under reference for building and manufacturing purposes.

Decreases.

Coal and coke .. .. 2,187 tons.

There was a much large falling off in this staple last month, and I would repeat the reason there given for the decrease.

Cotton, raw ... ... 205 tons.

This decrease may be attributed to there being less demand for this article in the market than during the corresponding period last year.

Jute unscrewed .. .. 2,525 tons.

This decrease, although not so great as last month, may be attributed to business being less brisk and prices lower in the markets than last year at this time.

Grain .. .. 755 tons.

Dull markets may account for this decrease in which traffic fluctuation may be expected.

Rice ... . 6,287 tons.

This large decrease may be traced partly to the abnormal increase last year and to the falling off generally of traffic in the produce from the Northern Bengal State Railway and other districts. It should be remembered that the floods had destroyed the crops, and last year this destruction necessitated importation to parts where crops were comparatively good this year.

Railway materials .. . . 5,020 tons.

This decrease might be anticipted by the fact for material for lines opening in the district tapped by this system of railways having received their requirements.

Salt ... ... 437 tons.

I attribute this to stocks being ample in the districts tapped by our line.

Sugar ... ... 533 tons.

I consider this is attributable to markets being less favorable than last year at this time.

Tobacco ... . 317 tons.

Bad markets and full stocks may also account for this decrease.

All other merchandise . .. . 872 tons.

This, and in fact all the above enumerated decreases, may generally be attributed to dull markets, large stocks in hand by consumers or exporters; and though, on the whole, the traffic from the foregoing figures looks unfavorable, it is not to be assumed as anything but the general movements of railway traffic, and these fluctuations may from time to time be expected.

NOTIFICATION.

The 12th April 1887.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information.

COLMAN MACAULAY,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL, FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTICE TO MARINERS—(No. 19).

BAY OF BENGAL.

CHITTAGONG COAST.

(1) South Patches.

THE following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., in charge of the Marine Survey of India:—

At an examination of the South Patches made lately by H. M. I. M. S. Investigator, only 7 feet of water was found over a ridge about one cable in extent lying S. S. E. distant ¾ mile from the Whistling buoy. There is 2½ fathoms marked on the present Admiralty Charts.

(2) The Megna flats.

A survey having been made of the shoal flats off the Sunderbuns between longitudes 90° and 91° 30′ E., Commander Carpenter reports that no great extension of the banks (3-fathom line) has taken place since the old surveys. A shoal of 15 to 18 feet has, however, formed in latitude 21° 58′ N., longitude 91° 26′ 30″ E. The elbow of shoal water depicted on the charts in longitude 90° 18′ E. does not extend farther South than latitude 21° 24′ N.

Vessels making Chittagong should make certain of passing to westward of the South Patches, standing to north-westward until in 6 fathoms water (reduced). The lead and the ground-log will then enable them to follow up the 6-fathom line until in sight of Kutubdeah or Norman Point lights, it being impossible to get on to the South Patches without first crossing over 10 fathoms of water. It is H. W. F and C. at Kutubdeah at XII*h*. 00*m*., springs rise 15 feet, Neaps rise 10 feet. The tide wave at the elbow in longitude 90° 18′ E. is two hours earlier than Kutubdeah at springs, and half an hour earlier at neaps.

Variation 3° Easterly in 1887.

This notice affects Admiralty Charts 859, Mutlah river to Elephant Point; 829, Coconada to Bassein; and 70, Bay of Bengal.

NOTIFICATION.

The 12th April 1887.—The following revised rules for the guidance of punchayets, and for giving effect to the provisions of the Village Chowkeedaree Act, 1870, as amended by Acts I (B.C.) of 1871 and I (B.C.) of 1886, which have been prescribed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under the authority vested in him by section 65 of the first-mentioned Act, are published for general information.

RULES.

I. The Magistrate may determine the year current in a village, and inform the punchayet accordingly for action under section 16 of the Act. The list under this section shall be made out in columns containing the information required by the law, opposite the names of the persons liable to assessment, as follows:—

Name.	Trade, &c.	Amount assessed.

The list shall be published in some conspicuous place in the village. The name of the member of the punchayet who has been appointed to receive and collect the rate, to grant receipts for the same, and to keep the amounts thereof shall be mentioned at the foot of the list.

II. The list, before publication, shall be signed by each member of the punchayet.

III. Three or more members of the punchayet shall sit at a given time and place, to be notified beforehand, at least once during each week within one month after the publication of any assessment has been made, for the purpose of hearing and disposing of appeals. A note of the orders passed on each appeal disposed of shall be recorded and preserved.

IV. The collecting member of the punchayet shall keep and be responsible for all papers, accounts, and records connected with the administration of the Act by the punchayet.

V. A record of all proceedings taken under section 27 et seq. of the Act shall be made and preserved by the collecting member of the punchayet. Two members of the punchayet shall be present at every sale held under section 29.

VI. The record of any proceeding, order, or action of the punchayet, or any member or members of the punchayet, shall be kept in the form of a diary which shall be open to general inspection.

VII. If, under section 30, any defaulter disputes his liability, and informs any member of the punchayet of the fact, the punchayet shall postpone the sale of any property which may have been distrained for five days, and shall refer the objector to the Magistrate to obtain orders within that period.

VIII. The following form of accounts shall be kept by the punchayet:—

Register I.—Of Collections.

Name. I.	Trade, &c. II.	Amount assessed III.	First quarter.	Second quarter	Third quarter.	Fourth quarter.

The entries in the first three columns will be similar to those entered in the three columns of the list to be prepared under section 16 (vide Rule I); the four following columns are for the four quarters of the year, beginning with the first quarter of the year current in the village, and should be headed accordingly. Opposite each villager's name will be entered his quarterly quota in these columns under each quarter as paid in by him. Each villager should be instructed to satisfy himself, when paying the cess, that the entry of the payment is duly made by the collecting member of the punchayet. This check, when properly understood and worked, will probably be of more value, as proof of payment, than receipts, which should nevertheless be granted under section 22 of the Act.

Register II.—Of receipts and disbursements.—This will be an account in the simplest form of single entry, to be totalled and carried over at the close of every quarter, as follows:—

Date.	Jumma.	Amount.	Date.	Khuruch.	Amount.

IX. Each chowkeedar shall keep an acquittance roll, to be renewed every year, in which shall be entered by the collecting member of the punchayet every sum of money paid to him as salary. This acquittance roll shall be examined and signed by the sub-inspector, or officer in charge of the thana, once a quarter, or when the chowkeedar attends at the police office under section 39 of the law.

The officer shall explain to the chowkeedar the nature of the entries, and report if the chowkeedar's salary has not been duly paid.

X. The thana police should receive from the chowkeedar and forward all reports, proceedings, explanations, and correspondence the punchayet may wish to transmit to the Magistrate.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION —PUBLIC.

Calcutta, the 17th December, 1886.

No. 2226.—With reference to Rule 14 of the draft Rules for the transport and importation of explosives published with Home Department Notification No. 1438, dated the 14th August 1885, and in accordance with the provisions of section 18, sub-section (1) of the Indian Explosives Act No. IV of 1884, and with the directions contained in Home Department Notification No. 1437, dated 14th August 1885, the Governor General in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following draft rule which His Excellency in Council proposes to make on the subject of the tests which certain explosives shall be required to pass before their importation is permitted.

The draft will be taken into consideration on the expiry of six weeks from the date of this Notification.

Draft Rule.

The following explosives and none others shall be liable to be tested under these Rules—

(1) All nitro-compounds included in class III, Division 1.

(2) Nitro-compounds containing gun-cotton included in class III, Division 2.

(3) Chlorate mixtures containing nitro-glycerine included in class IV, Division 2.

2. To nitro-compound mixtures included in class III, Division 1, except methylic nitrate the following tests are applicable :—

(a) Heat test for nitro-glycerine contained in dynamite and analogous nitro-glycerine preparations ;

(b) Heat test for nitro-glycerine preparations ;

(c) Heat test for blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite ;

(d) Test for liquefaction of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite ;

(e) Test for liability to exudation of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

3. To those nitro-compound mixtures included in class III, Division 2, which contain gun-cotton the heat test for nitro-glycerine preparations in clause (b) of the preceding paragraph is applicable.

4. To those chlorate mixtures contained in class IV, Division 2, which contain nitro-glycerine one or more of the five tests contained in paragraph 2 above are applicable, but the precise test or tests to be applied shall be regulated by the composition of the explosive.

5. The tests specified above shall be applied in the following manner :—

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE CONTAINED IN DYNAMITE AND ANALOGOUS NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

Apparatus required.

1. Test tubes from 5½ inches to 5¾ inches long, and of such diameter that they will hold from 20 to 22 cubic centimetres of water when filled to a height of 5 inches.

2. The test-tubes to be fitted with perforated corks, which should be conical so as to fit all the tubes equally well. The perforations hold glass rods provided with a hook of glass or platinum to hold the test-paper.

3. The heating apparatus, as prescribed with the original Government heat test.* This apparatus is described at p. 112 of the Report of the Special Committee on gun-cotton, 1871 to 1874.

Materials required.

a. Test-paper.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch, previously washed with cold water, are added to 8½ ounces of distilled water, the mixture is stirred, heated to boiling, and kept gently boiling for 10 minutes; 15 grains of pure potassium iodide (i.e., which has been re-crystallized from alcohol) are dissolved in 8½ ounces of distilled water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed and allowed to get cold Strips or sheets of white English filter paper, previously washed with water and re-dried, are dipped into the solution thus prepared, and allowed to remain in it for not less than 10 seconds; they are then allowed to drain and dry in a place free from laboratory fumes and dust. The upper and lower margins of the strips or sheets are cut off, and the paper is preserved in well-stoppered or corked bottles and in the dark. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about $\frac{4}{10}$ inch by $\frac{8}{10}$ inch (10 mm. by 20 mm.)

b. Standard tint paper.—A solution of caramel in water is made of such concentration that when diluted one hundred times (10 cc. made up to 1 litre) the tint of this diluted solution equals the tint produced by the Nessler test in 100 cc. water containing 0·000075 grm. of ammonia or 0·00023505 grm. of chloride of ammonium. With this caramel solution lines are drawn on strips of white filter paper† by means of a clean quill-pen. When the marks thus produced are dry, the paper is cut into pieces of the same size as the test-paper previously described, in such a way that each piece has a brown line across it near the middle of its length, and only such strips are preserved in which the brown line has a breadth varying from ½ mm. to 1 mm. ($\frac{1}{50}$th of an inch to $\frac{1}{25}$th of an inch).

Preparation of the Sample to be tested.

a. Apparatus required.—A wide-mouthed bottle (a) of about 6 oz. capacity, to which is fitted an India-rubber stopper (b) having two perforations. Through one of these passes the bent tube (c), through the other the filtering tube (d). The latter should have sufficient capacity to hold about 500 grains of dynamite. Within the bottle is placed a small test-tube (e) to receive the nitro-glycerine filtering through (d).

b. Mode of Operation.—About 400 grains of dynamite, finely divided, are placed into the filtering tube (d) (small piece of cotton-wool having previously been pushed into the contracted part of the tube), and made to fill it as evenly as possible by shaking and tapping; the upper surface is smoothed by gently pressing with a wooden rammer.

Water is then poured on the top of the dynamite and allowed to sink into it by its own weight until a sufficient quantity of nitro-glycerine has been displaced. The bent tube (c) may then be connected with the filtering pump or other means of reducing the pressure in the bottle, the displacement of the nitro-glycerine being thus accelerated.

The nitro-glycerine collects in the tube (e), and the operation is stopped before the water reaches the narrow part of the filtering tube.

If any water should have passed through with the nitro-glycerine, it should be removed with a piece of blotting paper, and the nitro-glycerine, if necessary, filtered through a dry paper filter.

Application of the test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160°F.) to a depth of 2½ inches. 50 grains of nitro-glycerine to be tested are weighed into a test-tube in such a way as not to soil the sides of the tube. A test-paper is fixed on the hook of the glass rod, so that, when inserted into the tube, it will be in a vertical position. A sufficient amount of a mixture of half distilled water and half glycerine is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's hair pencil to moisten the upper half of the papers, the cork carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube, and the position of the paper adjusted, so that its lower edge is about half way down the tube; the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to such a depth that the lower edge of the test-paper is just above the surface of the cover. The test is complete when the faint brown line which after a time makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint paper.

* A globe of copper or other suitable material may be used instead of the glass globe, and any efficient gas regulator, such as a Page's regulator, may be substituted in place of Schenbler's regulator.

† This paper must be carefully washed with distilled water in the first instance to remove any traces of bleaching matter and dried.

The nitro-glycerine under examination will be considered as "thoroughly purified" within the terms of the license, whenever the time necessary to produce the standard tint as above described is not less than 15 minutes.

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

Fig. I.

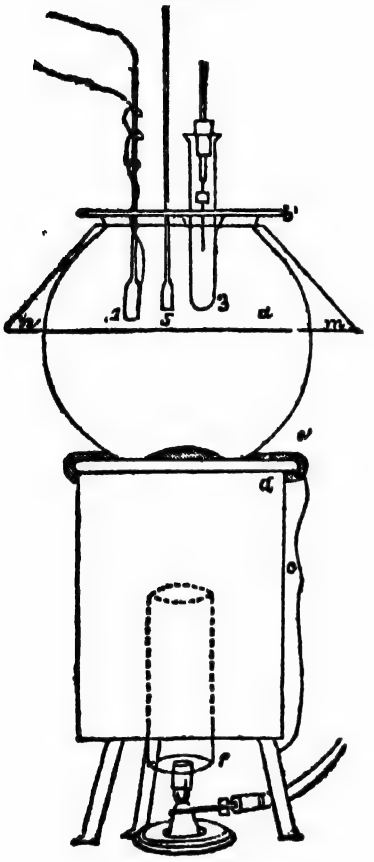

Fig. II.

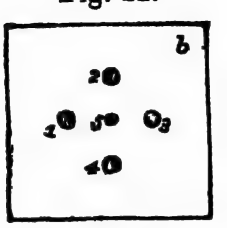

Fig. III.

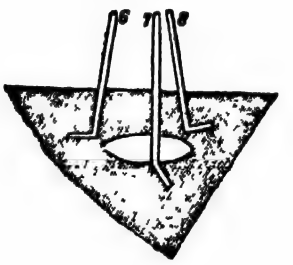

Fig. IV.

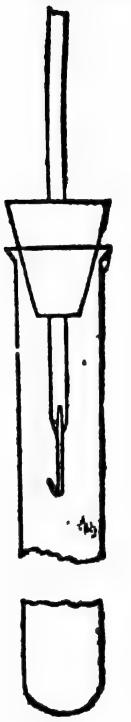

Apparatus required.—1. A spherical glass vessel (Fig. I) about 8 inches diameter (a) filled with water to within a quarter of an inch of the edge, having a loose cover of sheet tin or copper about 7 inches square (b), rests on a tripod stand about 14 inches high (c), covered with coarse iron-wire gauze (e), and surrounded with a screen of thin sheet copper (d). Within this is placed an argand burner (f) with glass chimney. Over the glass globe is placed a common green paper lamp shade (m, n). The cover (b) has five holes arranged as seen in Fig. II; No. 5 to receive the thermometer; No. 1, the regulator; No 4, a small funnel; and Nos. 2 and 3, test-tubes, containing the gun-cotton to be tested. Around holes 2 and 3, on the under-side of the cover, are soldered three pieces of the brass wire with points slightly converging (Fig. III turned upside down); these, acting as springs, allow the test-tubes to be easily placed in position and removed.

2. Scheibler's temperature regulator.

3. Two cells of Le Clanche's battery No. 1.

4. A few yards of insulated copper wire.

5. Test-tubes about $\frac{5}{8}$ inch diameter, and not less than 5 inches long.

6. Glass rod with a flat head—of sufficient length to reach to the bottom of test-tubes.

7. Corks, fitting the test-tubes and carrying an arrangement for holding the test-paper (a thin glass tube passing through the centre of the cork, drawn out and terminating in a platinum wire hook, Fig. IV).

8. A thermometer with range not less than from 30° to 212° Fahrenheit.

9. A minute clock.

Materials required.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch are added to 8½ ounces of water, and the mixture is stirred and heated to boiling; 15 grains of iodide of potassium are dissolved in 8½ ounces of water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed together. Strips or sheets of white Swedish filter paper are dipped in the solution thus prepared; they are then allowed to drain and dry. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about ½ inch by $\frac{5}{8}$ inch. The paper should be preserved in a well-stoppered or corked bottle.

Preparation of Samples for Testing.—Half a cartridge of the material (or about 500 grains if it is not supplied in the form of cartridges) is thoroughly rubbed up together, so as to furnish a very uniform sample. If the material is frozen, it should first be thawed.

Application of the Test.—The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160° Fahrenheit to a depth of 2½ inches). 50 grains of the samples to be tested are inserted into the test-tube and gently pressed down to the bottom with a flat-headed glass rod. The test-tube is then inserted through the perforation in the cover, and is immersed in the hot water to the depth of 2½ inches, the tube being closed with a loosely-fitting cork. A test-paper is fixed on the lower extremity of the glass rod, so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A drop of distilled water, containing 10 per cent. of pure glycerine, is applied to the upper edge of the test-paper, the quantity used being only sufficient to moisten about half of the paper; the first cork is then taken out of the test-tube and replaced by the cork holding the glass rod and test-paper, keeping the test-paper as near the top of the test-tube as possible until the tube has been immersed for about five or six minutes. A ring of moisture will about this time be deposited in the test-tube a little above the cover of the bath; the glass rod must then be lowered until the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is on a level with the bottom of the ring of moisture in the tube; the paper is now closely watched. The test is complete when a very faint brown coloration makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper. The interval of time between the first insertion of the tube containing the sample in the water at 160°, and the first appearance of discoloration on the paper, constitutes the test.

HEAT TEST FOR BLASTING GELATINE AND GELATINE DYNAMITE.

Fifty grains of blasting gelatine are to be intimately incorporated with one hundred grains of French chalk. The mixture is to be gradually introduced into a test-tube of the dimensions prescribed in the dynamite heat test, with the aid of gentle tapping upon the table between the introduction of successive portions of the mixture into the tube, so that, when the tube contains all the mixture, it shall be filled to the extent of 1¾ inches (one inch and three quarters) of its height. The test-paper is then to be inserted, and the heat is to be applied in the manner prescribed for the dynamite heat test, and the sample tested is to withstand exposure to 160° Fahrenheit for a period of ten minutes before producing a discoloration of the test-papers corresponding in tint to the standard colour test which is employed for governing the results of the dynamite heat test.

Test for liquefaction of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

A cylinder of blasting gelatine to be cut from the cartridge to be tested, the length of the cylinder to be about equal to its diameter and the ends being cut flat.

The cylinder is to be placed on end on a flat surface without any wrapper and secured by a pin passing vertically through its centre.

In this condition the cylinder is to be exposed for one hundred and forty-four consecutive hours (six days) to a temperature ranging from 85° to 90° Fahrenheit (inclusive), and during such exposure the cylinder shall not diminish in length by more than one-fourth, and the upper cut surface shall retain its flatness and the sharpness of its edge.

Note.—(If the blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite to be tested be not made up in a cylindrical form, the above test is to be applied with the necessary modifications.)

Test for liability to exudation of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

There shall be no separation from the general mass of the blasting gelatine or gelatine dynamite of a substance of less consistency than the bulk of the remaining portion of the material under any conditions of storage, transport or use, or when the material is subjected three times in succession to alternate freezing and thawing, or when subjected to the liquefaction test hereinbefore described.

CALCUTTA PORT TRUST AMENDMENT BILL.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY, in moving that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Calcutta Port Improvement Act, 1870, be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, said:—He need only point out to the Council two main alterations which had been made in the Bill. In the first instance, the Committee had thought that the system of election would be made more complete if some reciprocity was recognised in the arrangement which the Select Committee on the Municipal Bill proposed of allowing the Port Commissioners to elect a certain proportion of the Commissioners of the Town of Calcutta. They thought that by allowing the Town Commissioners to elect a member of the Port Commission, they would at once secure the counterpart of this arrangement, and provide for some representation of local interests on the Board. The next point was the consideration which was laid before them by members of the existing Port Trust, who represented that it would be extremely inconvenient if the Bill brought about at once a system of general election, and that continuity of experience in the Port Trust was a matter of such great importance that it would be desirable to allow the appointments of existing members to run for the term for which they were originally made. The Committee proposed accordingly that, as vacancies fell in, they should be filled up by election by the bodies who informally were now represented on the Board by such members. He moved that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

The HON. MR. ANUNDO MOHUN BOSE moved that, in the last clause of section IV, the words "not less than" be inserted before the word "two." He said the proviso to this section enacted that when all the vacancies in the number of Commissioners appointed under Bengal Act V of 1870 had been filled under the first four clauses of section X, two of the Commissioners should be natives of India residing in Calcutta or Howrah. He believed the object was to provide that at least two of the Commissioners should be natives of India, and not to fix two as the statutory number of which the representation of native interests should consist. In fact, if the latter were the object, it would hardly be effected by the Bill as it stood; and for this reason, that where there was a system of election more than two natives of India might come in by election. He might state that that was also the language in the Bombay Act, in which it was provided that not less than three Commissioners should be natives of India.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY said he had no objection to the amendment. It was intended that two should be recognised as the minimum number, and, perhaps, it would be better to adopt the Hon Member's proposal.

The motion was carried, and the section, as amended, was agreed to.

The HON. MR. ANUNDO MOHUN BOSE moved that to paragraph 4 of section V the following be added:—

"And one shall be elected by such body, bodies or firms representing the native commercial community of Calcutta as the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, from time to time direct. In the first three cases, the election shall be held"

He said he trusted it would be possible for the Council to accept this amendment, which he submitted was a very small and a very moderate one, and he hoped it might be possible by accepting it to make a concession to the expression of native as well as of Anglo-Indian public opinion on the subject, and also to the just requirements of the case. The amendment did not introduce any new proposal. All that it suggested was that, the Bill having affirmed the principle that there should be at least two native members on the Port Commission, one of these members should be a direct and accredited representative of the native commercial community of Calcutta. He believed this would save the Government some responsibility, and the rather invidious task of selecting a native gentleman to represent native commercial interests. The Government accepted the principle of there being two native members on the Port Commission. It also accepted the principle of election as far as the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades' Association and the Municipal Corporation were concerned. It laid down that instead of the members of these bodies being selected in an informal way, as at present, they should be allowed to say whom they wanted to have on the Port Trust to represent their interests; and it was eminently desirable that the same concession should be made in favour of the native commercial community. It was pointed out in the Report of the Select Committee, in connection with the memorial received from the National Chamber of Commerce, that it was a body which had not existed long, and that its status was not sufficiently known to justify this power being placed in its hands. He entirely appreciated that difficulty, but he submitted that it might be met in the way he had indicated, in a way which was not of his own suggesting, but which he had taken from a Bill which had been passed by this Council only last Saturday, namely, the Chittagong Port Trust Bill. There also there was a difficulty felt owing to the fact of no organization being in existence which could send some elected representative to the Port Commission; and therefore, in order to give effect to the principle of representation, the Council adopted the expedient which he had followed in this amendment. That was a precedent to which he appealed in favour of his amendment, the language of which also was virtually taken from section V of that Act. And he might also point out that in the Port of Calcutta, not only was a large amount of revenue derived from the foreign trade, from the jetties and quays to which steamers and ships resorted, but tolls to the extent of nearly Rs. 4,00,000 were derived annually from the inland vessels or boat wharves or boat wharves at which the inland trade was carried on. The exact figures in the last report were these. The revenue derived from the foreign trade at the jetties, including "miscellaneous," was stated to be Rs. 9,09,758 and odd, while the tolls received at the inland wharves from boats was Rs. 3,93,587. On these grounds he hoped the Council would accept this amendment, which did not limit the Government to any particular body, though it was to be hoped that the recently-constituted body would show signs of vitality and justify the Government in conferring the privilege of election upon it. But in any case, the Government would have no difficulty in finding a suitable electorate for the purpose, as indicated in his amendment.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay said that he regretted he was unable to recommend to the Council the adoption of this amendment. The Hon. Member had rightly pointed out that his amendment followed the provision made in the Port Trust Bill for Chittagong, but Mr. Macaulay was wholly unable to follow him in the comparison which he sought to establish between the course which the Council adopted then and that which they were asked to adopt now. When he had the honour of laying that measure before the Council, he explained that selection by Government or local bodies or firms to exercise the elective franchise was the only practicable expedient, but that it was a very clumsy expedient. The desire was to give the right of election to the representatives of the commerce of the port But though there would no doubt some day be a Chamber of Commerce at Chittagong, at present there was none, and the only alternative to abandoning the elective principle altogether was the very awkward expedient of leaving the Government to select certain firms, and allowing them to exercise the franchise. Had there been a Chamber of Commerce at Chittagong, or any body to represent commercial interests, no mention would have been made of the selection of firms. Yet in a Bill which related to the Port of Calcutta, where there was a long-established Chamber of Commerce, where there was an incorporated Trades' Association, and an enlightened and powerful Municipality—in a Bill which provided for a more elaborate system of election to the Port Trust than any other measure of the kind on the Indian Statute book—his hon. friend proposed to introduce a provision from a measure which related to one of the smallest ports of India—a measure which owed its elementary character, so far as the provision for election was concerned, to the very circumstance that the port had not reached the point of commercial representation at all. For this reason, on the ground of form only, he would ask the Council to reject the amendment.

His hon. friend appeared rightly to recognise that the effect of the amendment would be that the right of election would be given to the National Chamber of Commerce. Clearly that would be the result, because the only other alternative would be one which it would be very difficult for the Government to accept. As there was no other native commercial body than the National Chamber of Commerce, if that body was not allowed the right of election, then the Government would have a task to fulfil, which might be easy enough in Chittagong, where there were but five or six mercantile firms, but which would be very difficult in Calcutta It would have to select from the numerous native firms in this great city a sort of corps d'elite, who would have the right of election, to the exclusion of all others. This duty, like all other unpleasant duties, would fall on the Government, and he apprehended that if the Council laid this duty on the Government of Bengal, it would be doing an act which might not tend to promote friendly feelings between the Council and their incoming President. He thought it would have been better if his hon. friend had proposed in plain words to give this right to the National Chamber of Commerce. In support of his views, the hon. member had referred to certain figures, but Mr. Macaulay would remind him that the question was not whether native commercial interests should be recognised—a point on which all were agreed—but whether this particular body should be recognised by law, as the accepted representative of those interests. He might mention that he had had the honour the other day of receiving a deputation of four very intelligent gentlemen, members of this new body—the President, two members, and the Secretary—who made a suggestion very much like that embodied in the amendment. But after Mr. Macaulay had pointed out to them the difficulties in the way, he understood them to withdraw the suggestion. He had then discussed with them generally the question whether the request contained in their memorial, which was now before the Council, could be complied with, and he had pointed out to them that the Legislature would probably find great difficulty in giving legal status and recognition to a body like theirs, which, though it bore many honourable names, had been very recently established, and had not yet had the opportunity of showing by its working how far it possessed the elements of stability, or how far it was really accepted and acknowledged by the native merchants as the guardian of their interests and the exponent of their views. He had recommended them, from himself, to work quietly for a time, and by their working to justify them hereafter in approaching the Government with the prayer that their claim to be represented on the Port Trust might be recognised by the Legislature. He understood them to accept that advice. As he had pointed out, it was not a question of the representation of native interests, because provision had been made that two members of the Port Trust should be natives, and his hon. friend only proposed that one of these two should be elected in the manner suggested. He could safely say that the Government would always endeavour to select as much as possible, under the Act, a genuine representative of native commercial interests. He mentioned this, not because he wished in any way to detract from the force of anything which had been said, but to show that the memorial of the National Chamber of Commerce had been duly considered. On the merits of the amendment he hoped the Council would reject it.

The Hon. Babu Kally Nath Mitter said that, as one of the members of the Select Committee, it would not be out of place if he said a few words on this subject. This representation of the National Chamber of Commerce was laid before the Committee, and they were unanimously of opinion that this body had not been in existence for such a length of time, and that its status was not such, as to justify the power of election being vested in it by law; and it was only on that ground that the Committee, though it was anxious to give representation to this body, had come to the conclusion, after much deliberation, that they would not be justified in giving it that status by legislation. He thought there was a good deal in what the hon. member in charge of the Bill had said with reference to the comparison which the hon. mover of the amendment had drawn between Calcutta and Chittagong. It seemed to him that it would be an awkward thing for Government to determine to what native firms in this city the power of election should be given. On principle, he was entirely with the hon. member that the native commercial interest should be represented in the Calcutta Port Trust by election, and he hoped that when the time came for the Acts relating to the Port Trust to be consolidated, the claims of this body, if it then showed signs of vitality, would be reconsidered.

The Hon. Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose said in reply that the effect of adopting the amendment would not necessarily be, as the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill seemed to apprehend, the recognition of the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce. He was not speaking as the champion of that body. With regard to the alleged difficulty in the selection of native firms, he would draw the attention of the Council to an important letter from the British Indian Association, in which a scheme was sketched out, by which, without the Government committing itself in the slightest degree to the recognition of the newly-started National Chamber of Commerce, the principle of giving direct representation to the native commercial community might be easily acted upon. The Association pointed out that all merchants who paid a certain amount to the municipality, by way of license to carry on their business, might be recognized and constituted into an electoral body, and they might be asked to elect some members of the Port Commission. Therefore it was plain that if this amendment were accepted, the Government would not be under the necessity of recognizing this new body, but would be able to give effect to the principle of election, the importance of which he was glad to see admitted. Not only as regards the total amount received in the shape of tolls, but also as regards the net amount of revenue derived from inland trade, he found that it amounted to Rs 1,47,000, as against Rs 2,96,000 from the foreign trade; and there also the proportion was maintained, showing that one-third of the income of the Port was derived from this source. It would be a matter of deep regret if an interest so large and important should be passed over without its representatives getting the power of returning even one member to the Commission.

The motion was put and negatived.

The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison moved that in section X, clause 3, for "is caused by the Chairman of the Commissioners of the Town of Calcutta ceasing to act," read "is caused by a Commissioner other than the Chairman of the Commissioners of the Town of Calcutta, who, at the time of his appointment, was a Commissioner of the Town of Calcutta, ceasing to act."

He said that the words which he proposed to alter clearly embodied a principle, and not merely a convenient expedient. He would first point out the principle embodied, and then contend that it was a wrong one, and that the object of his amendment was to suggest the right one. The Select Committee had given the right of electing one member to the Municipality of Calcutta, and the words which he objected to were that this right should be exercised when a vacancy occurred on the Board "by the Chairman of the Commissioners of the Town of Calcutta ceasing to act" as a member of the Port Trust. He submitted that that was clearly an indication of the view of the Legislature, that the vacancy thus caused corresponded with the election to be made. The making their election dependent upon the vacancy caused by their Chairman clearly suggested that the Port Commissioner to be elected should be the substitute for the Chairman. He thought it was equally clear that that was a wrong principle for the Council to adopt. The work done by the Municipal Chairman as a Port Commissioner was radically and substantially different from that which the representative of the Town of Calcutta should do. The Chairman of the Town Corporation had from the outset been appointed a member of the Port Trust, and the Municipal Act had always contemplated the probability of his being so appointed. The work of the Town Commissioners came into contact with that of the Port Commissioners all along the line, and the establishments of the one with the establishments of the other; and to avoid the friction which otherwise might ensue, it was desirable that the Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners should be a member of the Port Trust, so that he might be consulted in camerâ, instead of embarrassment being caused by correspondence. It was also clearly desirable that the Commissioner of Police should be on the Port Trust, as many police questions arose in which the Commissioner of Police had been able specially to arrange matters The object of giving the election of a member of the Port Trust to the Town of Calcutta was, Sir Henry Harrison submitted, substantially and fundamentally different. What had just been stated by the hon. member in charge of the Bill in reply to the motion of the hon. member opposite (the Hon. Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose,) that the native commercial interest would not be unrepresented, as the Municipal Commissioners might elect a native merchant—

[The Hon. Mr. Macaulay observed that he had certainly no intention of saying that a member elected by the Municipal Corporation could be regarded as representing native commercial interests, and he believed that he had not said so.]

The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison continued—Obviously the interests which the member elected by the Municipal Commissioners on the Port Trust were those of the resident community of Calcutta. The action of the Port Commissioners frequently affected the value of property in the town. It had been pointed out that the construction of tea warehouses and other buildings by the Port Trust affected the rents of houses in town and the tea sales in town, and he had little doubt that the Calcutta Commissioners, if left to themselves, would select one of the more active of their number who would give effect to the interests of the residents of Calcutta. That interest was a totally and fundamentally different interest from the interests which the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation represented. He represented executive interests—the interest of well-working and the absence of friction and collision between the two bodies. Not only was he there to prevent friction, but mistakes were committed which he was able to set right. In questions of water-supply, and drainage in connection with the new docks, it would be doubly important in future that the municipal executive should be represented on the Port Commission. What Sir Henry Harrison contended for was that the question whether the Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners should be on the Port Trust or not, was a question for the Government to consider, but that no attempt should be made to force the Commissioners into this dilemma—either the Chairman would not be on the Port Trust at all, or they must elect him. That, he submitted, would be the effect of the wording of the section as it stood. Hitherto they had others of their number on the Port Commission, and recently they had four, all nominated by the Government. What he, therefore, submitted was that this right of electing a member on the Port Trust should be made a real boon to the Town of Calcutta, and that they should understand that they were invited to elect a member who should represent them—not the executive working of the municipality, but the interests of the rate-payers Consequently he only wished to embody in this section the right principle instead of a wrong principle. It should be open to them to elect their Chairman if they pleased, and similarly it would be open to the Government not to nominate the Chairman of the Municipal Corporation. As the law stood, if the Commissioners did not elect the Chairman, the Government could nominate him; but the Legislature should give in the law a right and not a wrong indication. The right indication would be that the election by the Municipal Commissioners should not be the election of the gentleman whom the Government had selected to preside over the executive working of the Municipality, but of one of their body who should represent the interests of the residents of the town, and it would still be left open to the Government to determine whether, all things considered, the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation should or should not also be a member of the Port Trust.

The Hon. Babu Kally Nath Mitter said he was very glad to support this amendment, which he thought would make it clear that the Municipal Commissioners should elect some one of their own body to represent them on the Port Commission. If the intention was that such member should be their Chairman, then it would be no boon, because hitherto the Government had always appointed the Chairman to be a member of the Port Trust. This matter was discussed in Committee, and the possibility of the Municipal Commissioners electing a native gentleman to represent them was taken into consideration, and it was pointed out that, if that was done, the Government would only be able to appoint another native gentleman on the Port Trust. Therefore, as far as the principle was concerned, he believed the Committee was of opinion that the Commissioners should not be hampered in their election. The effect of this section, as had been pointed out by the hon. mover of the amendment, would be that the Municipal Commissioners would be hampered in their choice, because, unless they elected their Chairman, there would be the difficulty that the executive interests of the Municipality would not be represented, and there would be the risk of a considerable amount of friction between the Municipal Commissioners and the Port Commissioners.

The Hon. Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar thought the hon. mover of the amendment had very well shown the distinction between the interests represented by the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation and the Municipality. The Chairman represented quite different interests from those which were represented by the Commissioners, and therefore he thought the Chairman should if possible, be an ex-officio member of the Port Commission. Under the Bill it would be left to the Government to appoint the Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners or not as they considered fit, but the Municipal Commissioners should be left free to elect any other person than their Chairman. On these grounds he supported the amendment.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay said that he desired, first, to correct a misapprehension into which his hon. friend, Sir Henry Harrison, had fallen with reference to the remarks he had made in answer to the hon. mover of the last amendment. He had no intention of referring to the representation of the Corporation. He had pointed out that two native members would, in any case, be on the Board. His hon. friend wished that one native member should be elected by the National Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Macaulay had said that the Government would be always anxious to see that native commercial interests were represented in the Port Trust, but that the question here was not whether those interests should be represented, but whether their representative should be chosen by the National Chamber of Commerce, which had yet to prove itself the real representative of the native commercial community, or be chosen by the Government.

With reference to the amendment before the Council, he wished to point out that section X was not intended to involve any principle It was worded merely for the sake of convenience, in order to provide for the initiation of the elective principle in the Port Trust; and the Committee had found some difficulty in framing it, because, as they had three different bodies who would elect, they found it difficult to arrange how they were to take up their right of election as vacancies in the present Board fell in. They decided that the best way would be to allow the Chamber of Commerce to elect a successor when any Port Commissioner, who now happened to be a member of that body vacated office; when it happened to be the gentleman who represented the interests of trade, the Trades' Association should take up the right of election, and they had taken the opportunity of providing for the Corporation exercising this right when the vacancy was caused by its Chairman vacating his office as Port Commissioner. But he would point out that it would be a dangerous thing, and would most seriously hamper the action of the Government, if the Council adopted the principle which his hon. friend said the amendment contained. It would be a dangerous thing first to limit the number of nominations, which the Government should have, to six, and then to insist that one of these should be given to the Chairman of the Corporation of the Town. [Sir Henry Harrison—"I never said that".] But that would be the result, if the Council adopted the amendment, under the explanation which his hon. friend had given. He maintained that, if the Council adopted the amendment as avowedly containing the principle which his hon. friend wished to assert, the Government would practically be bound to give one of the six nominations to the Chairman of the Corporation. He thought it very likely the Government would, when it could conveniently do so, nominate the Chairman, but there were conceivable circumstances when it might find it extremely inconvenient to follow that course. And if, when the vacancy occurred by the retirement of a Port Commissioner, who was a member of the Corporation, that body thought proper to elect their Chairman, then they would be substantially represented, and both interests would be subserved.

The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison in reply said, that the Hon. Member in charge of the Bill had put the matter very fairly on principle; he fully conceded that the principle indicated by the amendment was the right one, but denied that the Bill indicated the opposite. This was a simple question, and the issues were clearly before the Council. As regards what the hon. member had said in reply to the hon. member opposite (Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose), the importance did not arise from the fact of its having been said, but from the argument itself. The argument was naturally a good one, that the member elected by the Municipal Corporation would, to some extent, represent native interests if they were unhampered in their choice. Sir Henry Harrison only contended that the question of the Chairman of the Corporation being on the Port Trust was substantially an executive question. Was it or was it not convenient and conducive to the well-working of the Municipality that the Chairman of the Corporation should be on the Port Trust in order to avoid friction between the two bodies? That was a question which the Government should decide, but the Commissioners would have a real boon given to them if they were expected to elect some one of their own body to represent the interests of the town.

His Honor the President said that it should be noted that the last clause of section X provided that, thereafter all vacancies caused by elective

Commissioners ceasing to act should be filled up by election by the respective elective bodies, and all vacancies caused by nominee Commissioners should be filled by appointment by the Government; so that really the question at issue was as regarded one individual, and though it might have been brought forcibly to the attention of Sir Henry Harrison that he was going away on leave, and that the provisions of section X might affect his place on the Port Commission, His Honor thought the principle was a right one. It was quite possible that the Government might wish to have the Chairman of the Municipality as a member of the Port Commission, but that was a question which should be left entirely to its own judgment and discretion. In the case before them of the hon. member going away, according to him the Chairman of the Corporation should be appointed by the Government ex-officio as one of its number, but on the resignation of one other member of the Corporation on the Trust, like the Hon. Mr. Reynolds, creating another vacancy, the right of the Municipality to elect a member in his place would place the Government in a difficulty. It was always in the power of the Municipal Commissioners to appoint their own representative, and if to that was added the appointment, ex-officio, of the Chairman to the Corporation, it would reduce the number to be nominated by the Government to the Port Trust. The provisions of section X were purely for a temporary purpose, and provided only for the first elections. Under these circumstances, His Honor would vote against the amendment. He noticed that the native members of the Council who had spoken on both sides of the House, and who were in Committee, had deserted the hon. member in charge of the Bill. He did not know whether this question was raised or discussed there, but certainly no objection was taken by them to the particular question which was now raised.

The question having been put to the vote, the Council divided:—

	,, The President.

So the motion was lost.

The Hon. Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose moved that in section XI the words "elected or appointed" be inserted before the words "under this Act." He explained that as the section stood, all vacancies in the number of the Commissioners, whether appointed under Bengal Act V of 1870, or under this Act, should be filled by election or appointment, as the case might be, within one month, and it seemed obviously necessary that the language of the section should be altered. Under Act V of 1870 the Commissioners were only appointed. Under this Bill the Commissioners would be either appointed or elected. The object of the amendment was to state that whenever there was a vacancy amongst the Commissioners, whether elected or appointed under this Act, and not simply in the case of appointed members, the vacancy should be filled by election or appointment, as the case might be.

The motion was carried, and the section, as amended, was agreed to.

The Hon. Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose moved that to section XIII of the Bill the following words be added:—In section XV, before the words "some other person" shall be inserted the words "or cause to be elected, as the case may be." This amendment, he said, was rendered necessary by the alteration in the constitution of the Port Trust. Section XV of Act X of 1870 provided that, in the case of the temporary absence of any Commissioner, it should be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint some other person to act for him until he should return to Calcutta, or until he ceased to be a member. Under that Act, all the members of the Trust being appointed by the Government, whenever there was a temporary absence, the law necessarily laid down that the Lieutenant-Governor should appoint some other person to act for the Commissioner so absent. But after the passing of this Bill, when an elected Commissioner was temporarily absent and the Lieutenant Governor thought it right to fill up the place until the return of the absent member, or until he ceased to act, Mr. Anundo Mohun Bose submitted that the only right and proper course would be virtually to transfer that seat from the body which returned the absent member to the Lieutenant-Governor. He did not think that would be carrying out the object of the Bill, and there was no reason why the absence of a member should entail the punishment on the returning body of being temporarily disfranchised. Section XV of Act V of 1870 did not relate to the case of a vacancy, but only to the case when a member continued on the Board but was absent for a short period, and therefore section XII of the Bill which had been pointed out would not meet the case. Under the amendment which he proposed, the Lieutenant-Governor might appoint where the absent member was a nominated Commissioner, but where an elected Commissioner was so absent, another member might be appointed by the body which elected the absent member. He submitted that that was a necessary amendment which ought to be made, and the effect of a member being temporarily absent, who was an elected member, ought not to be to transfer the seat for the time being from the body which elected him to the Government.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay said he would first take objection to the form of the amendment. The introduction of these words "or cause to be elected, as the case may be," would afford no indication with regard to the manner in which the election was to be made, or by whom it was to be made. But as regards the merits of the amendment, this question was fully considered by the Select Committee, who were of opinion that it was desirable, in the case of these temporary vacancies, not to have recourse to election, and require those bodies to go through a series of forms, but to leave the appointment in such cases to be made by the Government. He thought the balance of convenience was in favour of that course, and there was no question of the elective principle involved.

The motion was put and negatived.

The Hon. Sir Alfred Croft asked the permission of the President to move a trifling verbal amendment, namely, to substitute the phrases "elected Commissioners" for "elective Commissioners," and "nominated Commissioners" for "nominee Commissioners," in section IV and in any other sections of the Bill in which those phrases occurred. In trying to find out the meaning of the phrase "elective Commissioner," he had considered other connexions in which the word "elective" was ordinarily used. It was used, for example, in the phrase "elective principle," which meant the principle that related to, or concerned, or governed election. It was used again in the phrase "elective body," that is to say, a body in whom was vested the right of election. But he must confess that the phrase, as it stood in the Bill, could not be said to be used in either of those senses. An "elective Commissioner" was not a Commissioner who was concerned with an election, nor was he a Commissioner who possessed the right of election. The phrase merely meant an "elected Commissioner"; and he therefore moved that the word "elected" be substituted for "elective." So with regard to the phrase "nominee Commissioner." A "nominee" was a nominated person; the difference between "nominee" and "nominated" being just the difference between the substantive and the adjective. The phrase seemed to savour of Teutonic complexity, if not of an Americanism. He therefore moved that in place of the word "nominee" the word "nominated" be substituted.

The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison said he had suffered much during the last few days from some of his friends who had also taken exception to the use of these phrases in the Bill, and who expressed their surprise that he could consent to the passing of a Bill in which these phrases occurred. But being very diffident he did not venture to put any notice of motion in his own name for the correction of these phrases. Now, however, that he had found a sturdier spirit come forward, he was glad to support the motion.

The Hon Mr. Macaulay said the Council would no doubt expect from him some explanation of his conduct. He could only say that he had to plead other authority, inferior no doubt to the authority of his hon. friend the mover of the amendment, but still respectable authority. The words were taken from the Bombay and Madras Acts. The Bombay Act, he believed, was in part the work of a distinguished member of the Bombay Civil Service, Mr. Max Melville, and had as well the authority of Mr. Raymond West and others; and Mr. Macaulay, though he had not himself liked the phrases, had felt diffidence in departing from their example. But, as he recognized his hon. friend as the very highest authority on questions of phraseology, he hoped the Council would accept the amendment.

The motion was carried, and the sections as amended were agreed to.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY applied to the President to suspend the rules for the conduct of business to enable him to move that the Bill be passed.

The Hon. the President having declared the rules suspended, the Hon. Mr. Macaulay moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill passed.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL BILL.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Municipal affairs of the Town of Calcutta, and in doing so said:—The Select Committee was called upon to make this report on the 10th of January last, but he had to express regret on behalf of the Select Committee that they had found it altogether impracticable to do so. The amendments which had been suggested to the Committee had been very numerous indeed, and it had, therefore, taken a very long time to give them that consideration which they deserved. They had therefore only been able now to present the Report. The Bill had been so materially altered that they recommended to the Council that its consideration should be postponed to the next Session, in order that the public might have the opportunity of considering the numerous alterations which had been made in it.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE COUNCIL.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said, the presentation of this Report on a Bill which has occupied my interest and attention during the last two years gives me the opportunity of saying a few words, which will be the last which I shall be able to speak from this Chair. I do not think any one can impute to the Bengal Council that it has indulged in anything approaching to over-legislation. I think we have during the past five years passed several important and useful measures, but the special character which will attach to the legislation accepted by this Council during the past Lieutenant-Governorship will be that connected with the reform of municipal administration throughout these Provinces. We passed an Act in 1884, which is already effecting a great deal of good in municipalities established throughout the mofussil. We passed a Local Self-Government Act in 1885, which has been applied to specially selected districts, and has shown, as far as we can judge at present, very fair results; and which is now being more widely extended to other less advanced but more numerous districts, where there is every hope that the introduction of a system of local administration, though novel to the country, will still secure the co-operation of the natives of Bengal in the conduct of their own local affairs, ensuring thereby great relief to the Government and the political education of the people of the country. I need not detain you by longer remarks upon this point, except to say that, though I naturally regret that it has not fallen to my lot to see to its final conclusion the important Bill upon which the Select Committee have now reported for the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act, I have the satisfaction of knowing that it will be in the hands of a successor who will devote to it the keenest interest, and that the delay which arises from its unavoidable postponement to another Session will enable the fullest consideration to be given to the provision of a Bill which affects many interests.

And now, gentlemen, allow me to thank you, and through you those who have preceded you as members, for the assistance and advice you have always been willing to render, and the labour you have devoted to the work of this Council. I do not think that in any of our discussions in this Council it can be said that very heated language has ever prevailed; on the contrary, we have enjoyed that serene calm in our deliberations and proceedings which is best suited to the elevated atmosphere in which our Council sits. It has been my endeavour, by the introduction into this Council of different sections of native representatives, of Hindu and Mahomedan gentlemen, and of those who can be the exponents of different interests in Bengal, to give wider intelligence and value to the character of our discussions, and I have reason to believe that very good results have followed in consequence. With the last opportunity I shall have of presiding amongst you, accept from me, gentlemen, my heartiest appreciation of your services, and my regret for the commission of any mistakes which I may have made. It happens that coincident with my own retirement is that of a very old servant of this Council, who is also about to leave his post and take his pension. I refer to Mr. Kirkpatrick, the Registrar of the Legislative Department, whom I have known, during all the years that I have had any connection with this Council, as one of its most valued and useful officers. I am glad to know that, in resigning his Registrarship, he will be able to retain his position as the official reporter of your proceedings, and I am sure I may wish him in your name many more years of life and success in the discharge of his duties. Now, gentlemen, I bid you all farewell.

The Council was adjourned sine die.

CALCUTTA,
The 11th April, 1887.

TENURE OF OFFICE OF UNDER-SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT IN THE CIVIL DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION.

APPOINTMENT DEPARTMENT.

Dated Calcutta, the 3rd March 1887.

READ—

A letter from the Government of India, in the Home Department, No. 27—1340, dated 4th September 1886, enclosing a copy of a notification by the Punjab Government, No. 1355, dated 21st August 1886, laying down certain conditions under which certain Secretariat appointments in that province are in future to be held.

THE conditions approved by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab in the notification above quoted are as follows:—

(1). The tenure of the specified appointments will be limited to a maximum term, ordinarily of four years, to be extended, if the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it advisable to prolong it, under special circumstances for the convenience or interest of the administration.

(2). No leave other than privilege leave or leave on medical certificate will be granted to incumbents of the specified appointments, except on grounds of the most urgent character, when special leave only will be granted under sections 61, 62, and 63 of the Civil Leave Code.

The appointments in regard to which these conditions have been prescribed are those of the Under-Secretary to Government in the Public Works Department, the two Under-Secretaries in the Civil Department, and the Senior and Junior Secretaries to the Financial Commissioner.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that some such limitations as those sanctioned by the Government of the Punjab may with advantage be adopted by this Government, so far as the junior appointments in the Civil Department of the Bengal Secretariat are concerned. Secretariat training is useful to young officers, but is not so important as the direct experience of the working of the administrative machine, and of the views and feelings of the people, which can be gained only by district work. Sir Rivers Thompson would even go further than the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, and fix three years as the limit of tenure of the office of Under-Secretary. It is also important, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, to secure, as far as possible, that full pay shall be given for work done in the Secretariat. It is work of a specially arduous and trying character, involving a very considerable strain on the constitution, and is not adequately remunerated by anything short of the full pay of the post. The Lieutenant-Governor would add to the second rule laid down by the Punjab Government a further condition that, if an Under-Secretary leaves his post to take up an officiating appointment outside the Secretariat for a longer period than six months, he must resign his post of Under-Secretary, so as to allow his successor to draw the full pay attached to the appointment.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor therefore approves of the following conditions as those under which the appointments of Under-Secretaries in the Civil Departments of the Bengal Secretariat shall be held:—

(1). The tenure of the specified appointments will be limited to a maximum term, ordinarily of three years, to be extended, if the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it advisable to prolong it, under special circumstances for the convenience or interest of the administration.

(2). No leave, other than privilege leave, or leave on medical certificate, will be granted to incumbents of the specified appointments, except on grounds of the most urgent character, when special leave only will be granted under sections 61, 62, and 63 of the Civil Leave Code.

(3). An Under-Secretary shall not be allowed to carry with him the substantive pay of his appointment, when deputed to act in another appointment, provided that such deputation be for a longer term than six months.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Offg. Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h. 10h. 16h. and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, t thunder, d drizzling rain, ▲ dew.

METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL SUMMARY OF THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF MARCH 1887.

THE weather of the past month has been marked by unusually large variations from the normal features of the month.

During the latter part of the month of February the barometer fell steadily for several days, and was about a quarter of an inch below its normal height at the end of the month. Strong southerly winds were blowing across the Bengal and Orissa coasts to the area of depression in North Bengal. The weather became unsettled, and a series of thunder-storms took place in North and East Bengal on the 1st and 2nd of March. They occurred on the 1st in the northern districts of East Bengal (including Tipperah, Dacca and Mymensingh), and in the northern and eastern districts of North Bengal (including Bogra, Pubna, Dinagepore, Rungpore and Cooch Behar)

They were almost entirely confined to the south-eastern districts of East Bengal (including Chittagong, Backergunge, Noakholly and Tipperah) on the 2nd and 3rd, after which fine weather was established throughout the province. The heaviest falls reported during this period were 5 inches at Fenny on the 2nd, 3·08 inches at Joydebpore, and 3·03 inches at Nowkhila on the 1st.

The barometer began to rise on the 1st, and pressure increased rapidly until the 3rd. Cool, dry westerly to north-westerly winds extended from Behar across Western and Central Bengal on the 3rd and 4th, and the weather on these days was hence dry, cool and pleasant throughout Bengal.

From the 5th to the 8th hot weather conditions were gradually re-established over the province. The barometer began to fall, winds became light and variable and then shifted round to south or south-west in the coast districts, and temperature increased more or less rapidly from day to day. The day temperature of the second week of the month was from 1° to 4° above the average temperature of the period, and the night temperature ½° to 4° above it. Pressure decreased rapidly on the 10th and 11th, and was on the latter day from one to two-tenths below the normal pressure of the day. This fall of the barometer was accompanied by the usual increase in the strength of the sea winds in the southern districts of Bengal. These conditions gave rise to a disturbed state of the atmosphere, shown by the occurrence of a series of thunder-storms. They began in East Bengal on the 12th, and extended to North Behar and North Bengal on the 13th, but the rainfall on these two days was not large in amount. A rapid fall of the barometer occurred during the next 24 hours, and preceded a vigorous series of storms on the evening of the 14th, which were attended with heavy rain over the greater part of East Bengal, North Bengal, the central and northern districts of South-West Bengal and in Behar. The Moorshedabad and Rajshahye districts received the largest amounts. The former obtained an average of 1½ inches on that day, and the latter one inch. The barometer began to rise again on the 15th. Thunder-storms occurred on that day in Orissa, South-West Bengal and some parts of East Bengal, but the rainfall was small in amount. A few showers fell in the south-eastern districts of East Bengal on the 16th. The weather then began to clear up on the 15th and 16th, when the winds changed in character. Westerly winds re-commenced in Behar and extended eastwards into Bengal, and the air became rapidly drier. The temperature was slightly below the normal of the period during the day, but the night temperature was from 1° to 4° in excess. The temperature fell rapidly (especially the night temperature) with the changed conditions of humidity and wind. The weather during the next eight days was such as occurs more usually in the month of February than in March. Dry land winds prevailed over nearly the whole of the province. Temperature was unusually low, and the air remarkably dry. The minimum or night temperatures on the 19th, 20th and 21st were from 10° to 15° below the normal in North Bengal and North Behar. The land winds began to retreat from the coast districts of Bengal on the 22nd, and southerly winds gradually set in and extended northwards.

No change, however, occurred in Behar, Chutia Nagpur or North Bengal, and remarkably low humidities were registered in Chutia Nagpur and Behar. The 10 A.M. humidity at Hazaribagh on the 21st was only 7 per cent. and at Dehree 5 per cent. The normal humidity of these stations in March is 30. Temperature increased steadily, but was throughout below the average of the period. The deficiency in the day temperature averaged 3° over the greater part of the interior of the province, and of the night temperature from 1° to 8° (at Purneah). On the 25th strong south-westerly humid winds were blowing across the Bengal coast into the interior, whilst abnormally dry westerly winds were advancing across Behar and Chutia Nagpur into the same area. The intermingling and interaction of these two currents, as opposed in character as they were in direction, apparently initiated a series of changes, which were accompanied and followed by a remarkably vigorous and prolonged series of thunder-storms, that gave rain to almost every district of the province. The barometer began to fall on the 25th, and fell considerably until the 28th, after which it oscillated rapidly for 48 hours and then began to rise.

Storms occurred in Orissa and South-West Bengal on the 26th, attended with heavy showers of rain in some cases. On the 27th the storms occurred over a larger area, including South-West and East Bengal, and the northern districts of Northern Bengal, and some very heavy showers fell on that day in Eastern Bengal. The storms were confined almost exclusively to East Bengal on the 28th, and to portions of East and South-West Bengal on the 29th, and the rainfall of these two days was small in amount as compared with that of the 27th. The general disturbance (of which the thunderstorms were the local expression), as shown by the irregularity of the barometric changes, appeared to increase during this period, and culminated in an unusually extensive and vigorous series of thunder-storms on the night of the 29th and morning of the 30th. The rainfall accompanying this final series of storms extended over the whole Province. It was exceptionally heavy in portions of South-West and East Bengal, and more especially in the Hooghly, Howrah, Nuddea, and Burdwan districts and the 24 Pergunnahs. Rainfalls exceeding four inches were recorded on the 30th at Serampore (5·04 inches), Burdwan (4·56 inches), Barrackpore (4·5 inches), and Baraset (4·45 inches). Very strong winds prevailed throughout the province from the 27th to the morning of the 30th, when the conditions were reversed. Skies cleared rapidly, light local breezes replaced the strong winds, the barometer rose rapidly, and a brief interval of fine, clear, cool weather followed. The intensity of the disturbance is most easily estimated by means of the rainfall which it gave to the province. Thus East and South-West Bengal received an average of 3 inches, North Bengal 1·8 inches, and Behar ·55 inch. The normal average rainfall of the whole month varies from 3 inches in East Bengal to a third of an inch in Behar.

The chief features of the meteorology of the month were hence—

1.—Unusually large variations of temperature. This was shown by the contrast between the excessive temperature of the first fortnight and the low temperature of the last ten days of the month, and also by the unusually large daily and monthly range of temperature.

2.—Abnormally large variations of the humidity of the air. This feature was most marked in North and East Bengal.

3.—Heavy rainfall due to larger and more extensive disturbances than usually occur in March.

The following gives fuller details of some of the elements of meteorological observation during the past month:—

Pressure.—The variations of pressure were much smaller in amount, and occurred much more frequently than during the preceding month. The chief feature was the slow fall for some days before each series of storms, the rapid fall immediately before the disturbance, the large and irregular fluctuations during the storms, and the rapid rise coincident with the termination of each period of disturbance.

The mean pressure of the month was below the average mean pressure at all stations. The defect was greatest in Orissa and the adjacent districts of South-West Bengal, and a portion of South Behar, represented by Patna and Gya, where it slightly exceeded ·04″. It was least in East Bengal, where it was only ·02″. Over the remaining districts, including the greater part of South-West Bengal, North Behar, and Chutia Nagpur, it averaged ·03″. The deficiency of pressure in the higher strata of the atmosphere, as represented by Darjeeling, was identical with the average deficiency in the plains, viz. ·08″.

Temperature.—At the commencement of the month the night temperature was from 2° to 6° above the average. The storms of the 1st and 2nd cooled the air, and the temperature of the 3rd and 4th was slightly below the average. This was followed by a general and almost continuous increase of temperature until the 11th, when the mean daily temperature was from 2° to 5° above the normal. The excess was most marked in the night temperature, which at the great majority of stations was from 6° to 10° above the normal night temperature. A series of storms occurred on the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th, which cooled the air considerably. Dry land winds extended eastwards, and a very great reduction occurred in the humidity of the air. From the 18th to the 25th was a period of excessive dryness of the air in every part of the province, but more especially in East and North Bengal. Unusually low minimum temperatures were registered during this period, and as the day temperature increased steadily at the same time, the differences between the night and day temperature were unusually great.

The following are the most striking examples. The range of temperature (that is, the difference between the highest and lowest temperatures of the day) on the 20th at Serajgunge was 35·9° and at Bogra 34·7°, on the 21st at Motihari was 41° and at Purneah 38·4°, on the 22nd at Dinagepore was 38·4°, and on the 24th at Patna was 35° and at Arrah 34°.

The highest temperatures of the month were registered at the majority of stations on the 25th. The series of storms which commenced on that day and lasted until the 30th produced a very large reduction of the day temperature, and a slight decrease in the night temperature. The former is illustrated by the following statement:—

The diminution of temperature was greatest in the area of heaviest rainfall and largest cloud amount.

Hence the first fortnight of the month was characterized on the whole by higher temperature than usual, the next ten days by abnormally low night temperatures and by very large daily range of temperature, whilst the last six days were marked by a very great reduction in the day temperature, which was greatest in Central and East Bengal, ranging from 11° to 21° in amount.

The mean temperature of the month was practically normal in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur, and was ½° in defect in South-West and East Bengal and in South Behar, and 1·2° in North Behar.

The following table gives temperature data for eight representative stations for purposes of comparison:—

Humidity.—The variations of humidity have been unusually large during the past month. Each series of storms and period of rainfall was immediately followed by a very rapid decrease of humidity and extension of westerly dry winds from Behar across Central into East and South-West Bengal. After two or three days, southerly winds set in over the coast districts, and were, just before and during the stormy periods, continued as easterly winds over North Bengal and Behar. It is very unusual for the dry winds to influence the weather in Eastern Bengal during March so strongly as in the present year. The interval from the 16th to the 25th was especially remarkable for the dryness of the air in Eastern Bengal. The following table illustrates this feature :—

	Lowest 10 A.M. humidity during week ending March 25th.	Average 10 A.M. humidity of week ending March 25th.	Normal 10 A.M. humidity, March.

Rainfall.—As already stated, there were three periods of rainfall during the month—

1st.—From the 1st to the 4th, during which showers of moderate intensity were received in East and North Bengal

2nd.—From the 12th to the 16th, when thunder showers occurred in almost every district. Heavy rainfall was, however, confined to a few districts in East and South-West Bengal, more especially Moorshedabad, Rajshahye and Mymensingh.

3rd.—From the 26th to the 31st, when an unusually severe series of storms occurred and gave an exceptionally hot weather burst of rainfall. East and South-West Bengal received the heaviest showers.

Every district, except Chutia Nagpur, has received rainfall during the month in excess of its normal amount. The districts which have received the largest averages are—Noakholly 10·58 inches, Commilla 6·64 inches, and Pubna 5·85 inches. These amounts are from three to five times the normal rainfall of the month. The following districts have received amounts ranging between four and five inches, and from two to four times the normal rainfall :—Nuddea, Mymensingh, Furreedpore, Dacca, Jessore, Burdwan, Bogra and Chittagong; the following amounts between three and four inches :—the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, Moorshedabad, Backergunge, Rajshahye, Julpigoree, and Cooch Behar. In these districts the rainfall was one to two inches above the average. Balasore, Midnapore, Beerbhoom, and Rungpore received averages between one and two inches, and Cuttack, Bancoorah, Dinagepore, Patna, and Bhagulpore amounts ranging between one and two inches.

East Bengal, on the whole, received a total average rainfall during the month of 5·33 inches, or slightly more than double the average amount (2·50 inches); South-West Bengal of 3·48 inches, or considerably more than twice the average (1·36 inches); North Bengal 2·71 inches, or nearly three times the normal average (1·06 inches); South Behar obtained an average of one inch, or three times its normal amount; North Behar 0·47 inch, and Orissa 1·56 inches, slightly more than their respective average amounts, whilst Chutia Nagpur had only an average fall of one-tenth of an inch, its normal fall in April being one inch.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven Meteorological Divisions of the Province for the month of March 1887:—

Explanations.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the reading during the same period for the past t
The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numi are the numerical means or averages of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past station in the district standing in columns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

* Means for 6 days.

CALCUTTA, the 11th April 1887.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 8TH OF APRIL 1887.

At the commencement of the week under review, the barometer was unusually high, and the temperature considerably below the average of the season. These were after effects of the remarkable series of storms and unusual rain which occurred in Bengal during the previous week.

Westerly winds prevailed in Behar and light unsteady winds in Bengal. Temperature increased rapidly in the interior of the province, and southerly winds set in again on the 2nd over the coast districts, and gradually extended their influence over the greater part of Bengal. The barometric oscillations and movements were small in amount and were slightly irregular, the barometer on more than one occasion falling at Darjeeling when it was rising in the plains and vice versâ. A small disturbance which appears to have formed in Upper or Central India entered the province on Wednesday afternoon. The winds shifted round to east in Behar on Wednesday morning, and the southerly winds in the coast districts increased in intensity. Skies began to cloud over in Behar, and rain in moderate amounts fell in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur on Thursday (the 7th).

The barometric depression over this area of rainfall was very slight, but the indraught to it increased rapidly and strongish winds prevailed throughout the whole province on Thursday and Friday. The westerly winds across Chutia Nagpur appear to have been continued on Thursday across Central Bengal, as remarkably low humidities were registered on that day at Calcutta, Jessore and Berhampore. The disturbance passed through Southern Bengal on Friday. Skies were overcast on that day over the greater part of the province, and light to moderate showers were received in the Beerbhoom, Midnapore, Bancoora, Burdwan, Hooghly, Nuddea and Moorshedabad districts of South-West Bengal, and in Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and also locally in the Darjeeling and Julpigoree districts of North Bengal. The largest amount registered on either of these days was ·92 inch at Buxa Fort in the Bhootan Dooars. The rainfall of the week was hence confined almost entirely to Chutia Nagpur, South Behar and South-West Bengal, and was small in amount Chutia Nagpur, which received the largest amount, only obtained an average of a quarter of an inch.

Pressure.—The barometric movements during the week were small and of little importance. A very slight fall accompanied the eastward passage of the disturbance through the province. Pressure was very considerably in excess during the week. The mean pressure for the week was ·09″ above the normal in Orissa, South-West and East Bengal, and in Central Behar, ·10″ at Darjeeling, ·13″ in North Behar, and ·07″ in Chutia Nagpur.

Temperature—Has been throughout the week considerably below the average. The day temperature increased in Behar until the 6th, and in Bengal until the 7th. Maximum thermometric readings were registered on the 6th at Ranigunge (101·8°), Chyebassa (101·5°), Bankoora (101·1°), and Gya (100·8°), and on the 7th at Ranigunge 101·0°), and Bankoora (100·1°). The maximum or day temperature of the week was from 1½° at Dacca to 5° at Patna below the normal temperature of the week, and the minimum or night temperature from 2° at Purneah to 5° at Bankipore below it. The slight disturbance caused a brief, but rapid, reduction of temperature, which was greatest at Calcutta. The mean daily temperature at that station on the 8th was 12½° lower than on the 7th. The mean temperature of the week was 4·3° in defect in South Behar, 3·5° in Orissa, 3° in South-West Bengal and North Behar, and 2° in East Bengal and Chutia Nagpur.

The following table gives temperature data for eight representative stations:—

Darjeeling	60·6	58·7	—1·9	46·4	43·6	—2·8	53·5	51·2	—2·3

Humidity.—The air was unusually dry at the commencement of the week in Chutia Nagpur and South Behar. The lowest 10 A.M. humidities recorded were 8 per cent. at Hazaribagh on the 6th, 10 per cent. at Debree on the same day, and 12 per cent. at Chupra and Gya on the 12th. The air was unusually dry on the morning of the 7th in Calcutta and South Bengal. Thus at Calcutta it was 38 per cent., at Krishnaghur 29 per cent., at Jessore 42 per cent., and at Dacca 54 per cent.; the average Apr humidity at these stations varying from 60 at Calcutta to 70 per cent. at Dacca. A rapid increase of humidity took place on the 7th and 8th in Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and in Bengal on the 8th.

Rainfall—Occurred in connection with the feeble disturbance which passed through the province from west to east. South Behar and Chutia Nagpur received a few local showers of little importance on the 7th, and Behar, Chutia Nagpur, the western districts of South-West Bengal, and the most northern districts of North Bengal on the 8th.

The only districts which received an average for the week exceeding two-tenths of an inch were—the Darjeeling district (·71 inch), Shahabad (·42 inch), Lohardugga and Manbhoom (·38 inch), the Sonthal Pergunnahs (·3 inch), Beerbhoom (·45 inch), and Midnapore (·26 inch). The largest amounts hence fell in those districts which received the least rain from the disturbance of the previous week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Friday, the 8th of April 1887:—

MEMORANDUM.

THE table annexed to this memorandum shows—

1. That during the week ending 26th March 1887, births and deaths were registered in the principal Municipalities in Bengal, at the rates respectively of 19·2 and 27·8 per 1,000 of population, against 20·3 and 25·1 per 1,000 respectively, during the preceding week ending 19th March, indicating a fair advance in the registration of deaths with a falling off in that of births.

2 That these events were returned in the highest proportions from the following Municipalities :—

Births.	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Comillah	42·4	Gya	85·4
Beauleah	39·4	Comillah	61·6

Gya	38·3	Serampore	45·1
		Bali	42·1
		Poori	42·0
		Beauleah	34·2

3. That the mortality from the specific death-causes stood as follows, in comparison with that of the preceding week :—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—

Small-pox	·03	·1
Fevers	9·7	7·6
Bowel-complaints	2·8	3·8
Injury	·4	·4
Other causes	6·7	6·9

indicating chiefly that there was a sensible increase of mortality from cholera and fever, with a noticeable decrease in that from bowel-complaints.

4. That excluding small-pox, bowel-complaints, and injury, the casualty-rates from which were nowhere conspicuously great, the remainder of the above-named diseases caused the highest mortality in the following Municipalities :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, taken in February 1881, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans [illegible] may be considered as a basis of calculation owing to the [illegible] authorized form of [illegible]

N. ST.L. CARTER,
Traffic Manager.

TRAFFIC MANAGER'S OFFICE, JAMALPUR, the 7th April 1887.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during the month ended 26th February 1887.

INCREASES.

Cotton.—The increase in this staple was due to a good demand for export.

Piece-goods.—This increase may be ascribed chiefly to demand in connection with native marriage ceremonies and the approaching Holi festival.

Other fibres, raw.—This is the new traffic in hemp referred to in previous reports.

Rice (husked and unhusked).—Due to a heavy demand in Calcutta for shipment. There was still the demand referred to last month in the Central and North-Western Provinces.

Railway Material, Foreign.—Due to despatches to Sonepore for the Bengal and North-Western Railway, to Benares for the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway, and to Chowsa for the Indian Midland Railway.

Seeds.—There was an increase in all descriptions of seed, except "other seeds," due to a fair demand during the period for ready sales in Calcutta.

DECREASES.

Coal and coke, up and down.—The decrease in the upward despatches follow the larger increase reported to have occurred in February in coal taken by Foreign railways.

The decrease in downwards traffic is not large when the total traffic is taken into consideration.

Gunny.—Due to absence of demand for bags, following the decrease in the export wheat traffic.

Fruits, other kinds.—Chiefly in betel-nuts from Howrah, and myrabolams from Jubbulpore line stations.

Wheat.—The decrease was in the despatches from all wheat-despatching stations, Hathras and above.

Gram and pulses.—This decrease was due to an exceptional demand in 1886 not existing in 1887.

Other rain and spring crops.—High local prices checked the demand at Howrah and elsewhere: hence this decrease.

Hides.—This decrease can only be accounted for by absence of demand at Howrah.

Oil.—The falling off was in Kerosine oil.

Opium.—Due to Government arrangements.

Salt.—There was an increase in the weight carried, attended with a slight decrease in earnings.

Spices.—This decrease was chiefly in chillies and other spices to Howrah from Mokameh and Tirhoot.

Sugar, refined and unrefined.—There was an increase in the weight carried and a decrease in the earnings due to short lead traffic over this line.

CHITTAGONG COAST.

(1) South Patches.

THE following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., in charge of the Marine Survey of India:—

At an examination of the South Patches made lately by H. M. I. M. S. Investigator, only 7 feet of water was found over a ridge about one cable in extent lying S. S. E. distant ¾ mile from the Whistling buoy. There is 2¼ fathoms marked on the present Admiralty Charts.

(2) The Megna flats.

A survey having been made of the shoal flats off the Sunderbuns between longitudes 90° and 91° 30′ E., Commander Carpenter reports that no great extension of the banks (3-fathom line) has taken place since the old surveys. A shoal of 15 to 18 feet has, however, formed in latitude 21° 58′ N., longitude 91° 26′ 30″ E. The elbow of shoal water depicted on the charts in longitude 90° 18′ E. does not extend farther South than latitude 21° 24′ N.

Vessels making Chittagong should make certain of passing to westward of the South Patches, standing to north-westward until in 6 fathoms water (reduced). The lead and the ground-log will then enable them to follow up the 6-fathom line until in sight of Kutubdeah or Norman Point lights, it being impossible to get on to the South Patches without first crossing over 10 fathoms of water. It is H. W. F and C. at Kutubdeah at XII*h.* 00*m.*, springs rise 15 feet, Neaps rise 10 feet. The tide wave at the elbow in longitude 90° 18′ E. is two hours earlier than Kutubdeah at springs, and half an hour earlier at neaps.

Variation 3° Easterly in 1887.

This notice affects Admiralty Charts 859, Mutlah river to Elephant Point; 829, Coconada to Bassein; and 70, Bay of Bengal.

4. To those chlorate mixtures contained in class IV, Division 2, which contain nitro-glycerine one or more of the five tests contained in paragraph 2 above are applicable, but the precise test or tests to be applied shall be regulated by the composition of the explosive.

5. The tests specified above shall be applied in the following manner :—

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE CONTAINED IN DYNAMITE AND ANALOGOUS NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

Apparatus required.

1. Test tubes from 5½ inches to 5¾ inches long, and of such diameter that they will hold from 20 to 22 cubic centimetres of water when filled to a height of 5 inches.

2. The test-tubes to be fitted with perforated corks, which should be conical so as to fit all the tubes equally well. The perforations hold glass rods provided with a hook of glass or platinum to hold the test-paper.

3. The heating apparatus, as prescribed with the original Government heat test.* This apparatus is described at p. 112 of the Report of the Special Committee on gun-cotton, 1871 to 1874.

Materials required.

a. Test-paper.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch, previously washed with cold water, are added to 8½ ounces of distilled water, the mixture is stirred, heated to boiling, and kept gently boiling for 10 minutes; 15 grains of pure potassium iodide (i.e., which has been re-crystallized from alcohol) are dissolved in 8½ ounces of distilled water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed and allowed to get cold Strips or sheets of white English filter paper, previously washed with water and re-dried, are dipped into the solution thus prepared, and allowed to remain in it for not less than 10 seconds; they are then allowed to drain and dry in a place free from laboratory fumes and dust. The upper and lower margins of the strips or sheets are cut off, and the paper is preserved in well-stoppered or corked bottles and in the dark. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about $\frac{4}{10}$ inch by $\frac{8}{10}$ inch (10 mm. by 20 mm.)

b. Standard tint paper.—A solution of caramel in water is made of such concentration that when diluted one hundred times (10 cc. made up to 1 litre) the tint of this diluted solution equals the tint produced by the Nessler test in 100 cc. water containing 0·000075 grm. of ammonia or 0·00023505 grm. of chloride of ammonium. With this caramel solution lines are drawn on strips of white filter paper† by means of a clean quill-pen. When the marks thus produced are dry, the paper is cut into pieces of the same size as the test-paper previously described, in such a way that each piece has a brown line across it near the middle of its length, and only such strips are preserved in which the brown line has a breadth varying from ½ mm. to 1 mm. ($\frac{1}{50}$th of an inch to $\frac{1}{25}$th of an inch).

Preparation of the Sample to be tested.

a. Apparatus required.—A wide-mouthed bottle (a) of about 6 oz. capacity, to which is fitted an India-rubber stopper (b) having two perforations. Through one of these passes the bent tube (c), through the other the filtering tube (d). The latter should have sufficient capacity to hold about 500 grains of dynamite. Within the bottle is placed a small test-tube (e) to receive the nitro-glycerine filtering through (d).

b. Mode of Operation.—About 400 grains of dynamite, finely divided, are placed into the filtering tube (d) (small piece of cotton-wool having previously been pushed into the contracted part of the tube), and made to fill it as evenly as possible by shaking and tapping; the upper surface is smoothed by gently pressing with a wooden rammer.

Water is then poured on the top of the dynamite and allowed to sink into it by its own weight until a sufficient quantity of nitro-glycerine has been displaced. The bent tube (c) may then be connected with the filtering pump or other means of reducing the pressure in the bottle, the displacement of the nitro-glycerine being thus accelerated.

The nitro-glycerine collects in the tube (e), and the operation is stopped before the water reaches the narrow part of the filtering tube.

If any water should have passed through with the nitro-glycerine, it should be removed with a piece of blotting paper, and the nitro-glycerine, if necessary, filtered through a dry paper filter.

Application of the test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160°F.) to a depth of 2¼ inches. 50 grains of nitro-glycerine to be tested are weighed into a test-tube in such a way as not to soil the sides of the tube. A test-paper is fixed on the hook of the glass rod, so that, when inserted into the tube, it will be in a vertical position. A sufficient amount of a mixture of half distilled water and half glycerine is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's hair pencil to moisten the upper half of the papers, the cork carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube, and the position of the paper adjusted, so that its lower edge is about half way down the tube; the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to such a depth that the lower edge of the test-paper is just above the surface of the cover. The test is complete when the faint brown line which after a time makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint paper.

* A globe of copper or other suitable material may be used instead of the glass globe, and any efficient gas regulator, such as a Page's regulator, may be substituted in place of Schenbler's regulator.

† This paper must be carefully washed with distilled water in the first instance to remove any traces of bleaching matter and dried.

The nitro-glycerine under examination will be considered as "thoroughly purified" within the terms of the license, whenever the time necessary to produce the standard tint as above described is not less than 15 minutes.

HEAT TEST FOR NITRO-GLYCERINE PREPARATIONS.

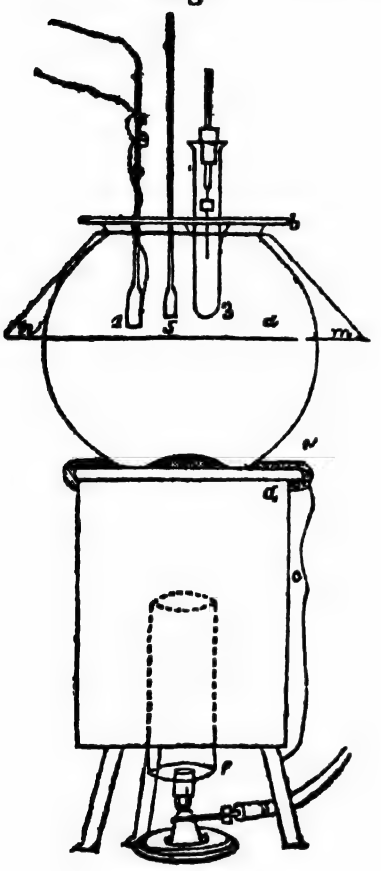

Fig. II.

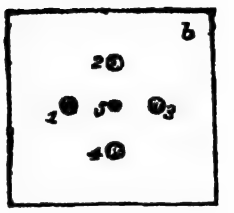

Fig. III.

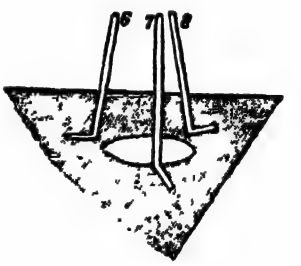

Fig. IV.

Apparatus required.—1. A spherical glass vessel (Fig. I) about 8 inches diameter (a) filled with water to within a quarter of an inch of the edge, having a loose cover of sheet tin or copper about 7 inches square (b), rests on a tripod stand about 1½ inches high (c), covered with coarse iron-wire gauze (e), and surrounded with a screen of thin sheet copper (d). Within this is placed an argand burner (f) with glass chimney. Over the glass globe is placed a common green paper lamp shade (m, n). The cover (b) has five holes arranged as seen in Fig. II; No. 5 to receive the thermometer; No. 1, the regulator; No 4, a small funnel; and Nos. 2 and 3, test-tubes, containing the gun-cotton to be tested. Around holes 2 and 3, on the under-side of the cover, are soldered three pieces of the brass wire with points slightly converging (Fig. III turned upside down); these, acting as springs, allow the test-tubes to be easily placed in position and removed.

2. Scheibler's temperature regulator.

3. Two cells of Le Clanche's battery No. 1.

4. A few yards of insulated copper wire.

5. Test-tubes about ⅝ inch diameter, and not less than 5 inches long.

6. Glass rod with a flat head—of sufficient length to reach to the bottom of test-tubes.

7. Corks, fitting the test-tubes and carrying an arrangement for holding the test-paper (a thin glass tube passing through the centre of the cork, drawn out and terminating in a platinum wire hook, Fig. IV).

8. A thermometer with range not less than from 30° to 212° Fahrenheit.

9. A minute clock.

Materials required.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white starch are added to 8½ ounces of water, and the mixture is stirred and heated to boiling; 15 grains of iodide of potassium are dissolved in 8½ ounces of water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed together. Strips or sheets of white Swedish filter paper are dipped in the solution thus prepared; they are then allowed to drain and dry. The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about ½ inch by ⅝ inch. The paper should be preserved in a well stoppered or corked bottle.

Preparation of Samples for Testing.—Half a cartridge of the material (or about 500 grains if it is not supplied in the form of cartridges) is thoroughly rubbed up together, so as to furnish a very uniform sample. If the material is frozen, it should first be thawed.

Application of the Test.—The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the glass globe into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160° Fahrenheit to a depth of 2¾ inches). 50 grains of the samples to be tested are inserted into the test-tube and gently pressed down to the bottom with a flat-headed glass rod. The test-tube is then inserted through the perforation in the cover, and is immersed in the hot water to the depth of 2½ inches, the tube being closed with a loosely-fitting cork. A test-paper is fixed on the lower extremity of the glass rod, so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A drop of distilled water, containing 10 per cent. of pure glycerine, is applied to the upper edge of the test-paper, the quantity used being only sufficient to moisten about half of the paper; the first cork is then taken out of the test-tube and replaced by the cork holding the glass rod and test-paper, keeping the test-paper as near the top of the test-tube as possible until the tube has been immersed for about five or six minutes. A ring of moisture will about this time be deposited in the test-tube a little above the cover of the bath; the glass rod must then be lowered until the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is on a level with the bottom of the ring of moisture in the tube; the paper is now closely watched. The test is complete when a very faint brown coloration makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper. The interval of time between the first insertion of the tube containing the sample in the water at 160°, and the first appearance of discoloration on the paper, constitutes the test.

HEAT TEST FOR BLASTING GELATINE AND GELATINE DYNAMITE.

Fifty grains of blasting gelatine are to be intimately incorporated with one hundred grains of French chalk. The mixture is to be gradually introduced into a test-tube of the dimensions prescribed in the dynamite heat test, with the aid of gentle tapping upon the table between the introduction of successive portions of the mixture into the tube, so that, when the tube contains all the mixture, it shall be filled to the extent of 1¾ inches (one inch and three quarters) of its height. The test-paper is then to be inserted, and the heat is to be applied in the manner prescribed for the dynamite heat test, and the sample tested is to withstand exposure to 160° Fahrenheit for a period of ten minutes before producing a discoloration of the test-papers corresponding in tint to the standard colour test which is employed for governing the results of the dynamite heat test.

Test for liquefaction of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

A cylinder of blasting gelatine to be cut from the cartridge to be tested, the length of the cylinder to be about equal to its diameter and the ends being cut flat.

The cylinder is to be placed on end on a flat surface without any wrapper and secured by a pin passing vertically through its centre.

In this condition the cylinder is to be exposed for one hundred and forty-four consecutive hours (six days) to a temperature ranging from 85° to 90° Fahrenheit (inclusive), and during such exposure the cylinder shall not diminish in length by more than one-fourth, and the upper cut surface shall retain its flatness and the sharpness of its edge.

Note.—(If the blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite to be tested be not made up in a cylindrical form, the above test is to be applied with the necessary modifications.)

Test for liability to exudation of blasting gelatine and gelatine dynamite.

There shall be no separation from the general mass of the blasting gelatine or gelatine dynamite of a substance of less consistency than the bulk of the remaining portion of the material under any conditions of storage, transport or use, or when the material is subjected three times in succession to alternate freezing and thawing, or when subjected to the liquefaction test hereinbefore described.
